HUNT LAUNCHED AS NEW ATTACK ROUSES HAWAII

POLICE ARE ORDERED TO USE THEIR PISTOLS

Grand Jury Still Considering Fortescue-Massie Case; Clean-Up Continues.

Honolulu, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A new attack upon a woman and a grim hunt with ready pistols for a desperate convict as the suspected assaulter were heaped upon Honolulu's grist of trouble today.

The city, still rumbling over other attacks, the lynching of one alleged assaulter and the ensuing deluge of investigations and reform movements, was stirred anew by the story of Mrs. Toka Okazaki, 29, a Japanese. She said she had been the victim of a man who overpowered her escort on the outskirts of the city last night.

Medical authorities made varying reports as to the accuracy of her story, but finally announced the evidence showed she had been criminally assaulted.

Police Ordered to Shoot.

Mrs. Okazaki identified a photograph of Daniel Lyman, escaped murderer convict, as the assailant, and police were ordered to shoot if necessary in their hunt for him. Lyman escaped from Oahu Prison December 31, 1931, along with Lui Kaikapu, burglary convict. The latter was captured and returned to prison for life after confessing to criminally attacking a school teacher January 2.

Despite the fact that Oahu Island, on which Honolulu is located, is comparatively small and escape from it is possible only by boat, the police had found no trace of him. Rewards for his capture alive total $1,100.

As the man hunters went into action City and County Attorney James F. Gilliland completed preparations to go before the grand jury to ask the indictment of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie; E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, for the murder of Joseph Kahawai, suspected attacker of Mrs. Massie.

New Prosecution Witness.

Mr. Gilliland announced a new prosecution witness had been found, but refused to reveal his identity or say what his testimony would be.

Montgomery Winn, defense attorney, said if the grand jury had not completed its investigation by 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the defense would consent to postponement of argument on its motion to dismiss the police court murder charge against the four accused. Mr. Winn yesterday asked dismissal of the charge on the ground that the prosecution was delaying the case and thus depriving the four of their constitutional rights to a speedy trial.

Mr. Winn said Mrs. Fortescue, who with the three accused men is being held in custody of naval officers, had shown improvement after a long period of nervousness, but was worried about the condition of her husband, ill in New York.

Armed Men Rob Downtown Store

One Fires Shot Into Floor as Patrons Seek to Interfere.

Two armed men this morning held up the Liberty Food Shop at 906 Fourteenth street northwest and escaped with between $45 and $50 from the cash register after they had convinced two patrons, the proprietor, his clerk and a porter that their guns were loaded by firing a bullet into the floor. They are believed to have abducted a cab driver in making their escape.

After ordering food to go out, and asking for change for $20, one of the men stepped up to Sam Abraham, clerk, and stuck a pistol in his ribs. The other man had stepped to the door. Abraham was about to make a struggle, but the man at the door drew a gun and said: "Never mind, leave it alone."

A man and woman, eating in the place, stirred nervously in their seats, as if to interfere. The man at the door said: "Everybody sit still. This gun is loaded. I'll show you!" And the place was filled with deafening noise as the man fired into the floor. The two men commandeered a cab when they ran from the shop, forced the driver out at Sherman avenue and Fairmont street northwest. They told him he would find his cab at Twenty-first and M streets. The cab was recovered.

Spain Speeds Army to End Anarchy Plot

Madrid, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Troops were rushed today into the Province of Catalonia and a naval destroyer was ordered to Barcelona, the principal Catalonian city, to combat revolutionary strikers who launched what Premier Azana declared to be an "anarchist movement."

Extremists were reported to have seized control of the local government in Berga, Salient and other towns, and proclaimed a "social revolution."

Buses, taxicabs and private automobiles were commandeered to transport a battalion of infantry and detachments of cavalry, artillery and the civil guard to the district around Manreso, where the strikers cut railway and communication lines.

Reports from the district late tonight indicated that some semblance of order had been restored.

The strong measures taken by the government to suppress the disorders were made a question of confidence before the Assembly here in Madrid.

COAL RATE REVISION PETITION DISMISSED

Interstate Commerce Body Refuses Higher Charges for Lake Shipments.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday dismissed petitions for a general readjustment of freight rates on bituminous coal moving to the Northwest by way of the Great Lakes.

Rejecting the plea of mine operators in the Pittsburgh and eastern Ohio areas for increased rate differentials against the producers of Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia, the majority opinion of the commission held the existing differentials of 35 and 50 cents a ton in favor of the Northern fields to be not unduly prejudicial to the operators of that territory.

The decision marks a new phase in the historic lake cargo rate controversy, which has been contested for twenty years before the I. C. C. in Congress and in the Federal courts.

Briefly, the struggle has been a quest for a rate structure which would put both the Northern and Southern bituminous fields on an equal competitive footing in relation to the 35,000,000 tons of coal which moves annually to the Northwest from the Lake Erie ports.

Twenty years ago approximately 70 per cent of the lake cargo coal came from the Northern fields and 30 per cent from the Southern. Last year this picture was completely reversed, with the Southern fields shipping a little more than 66 per cent and the Northern fields approximately 33 per cent of the lake tonnage.

The Pittsburgh and Ohio operators, acting in concert, have demanded repeatedly a readjustment of rates from the Southern fields to Lake Erie, to bring them into line with rates from the Northern fields on the oasis of mileage. Yesterday's decision, the fifth from the commission in this litigation since 1917, reaffirmed the rule that distance alone can not be regarded as the controlling factor in the determination of competitive rates.

"In the exercise of their managerial discretion and under the stress of competition, carriers often establish rates and rate relationships which we could not require them to establish," the majority opinion said. "When such rates appear as a whole to be in the public interest, they should not be condemned merely because they are not based on the same distance scale of maximum reasonable rates."

The carriers serving both districts

G. O. P. IN OHIO BACKS HOOVER FOR NEW TERM

President Is Given Right to Select Candidates for Delegates.

ONLY 2 COMMITTEE MEMBERS VOTE NO

Brown to Assist State Body in Choosing Group for Chicago Convention.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Ohio Republican State central committee today indorsed President Hoover for a second term in the White House and gave him what is virtually a free hand in selection of candidates for delegates to the Chicago national convention.

Overwhelming Hoover sentiment among committee members was evidenced by the fact that but 2 of the 48 votes were cast in opposition to the Hoover proposals, which is construed as insuring the President a solid delegation from Ohio.

Former State Chairman Fred W. Warner, of Marion, a leader of the faction that supported the candidacy of the late United States Senator Frank B. Willis in the contest with Hoover for Ohio's delegation four years ago, led the fight against the President today.

Jones Supports Opposition.

He was openly supported by Committeeman Gomer Jones, of Gallipolis, the eleventh district.

After the committee tabled Mr. Warner's motion to block selection of delegation candidates by leaving their selection to district and county organizations, the committee adopted the motion of Committeeman Fred Weaver, of Lancaster, to accord the President's campaign manager the right of selecting candidates.

The Weaver motion carried by acclamation with Mr. Warner's voice booming an emphatic "No."

Support Is Questioned.

Out of the vote came some dispute over the actual support given the successful proposals, but Chairman E. D. Schoor said only Warner and Jones voted in the negative.

Postmaster General Walter Brown, director of the Hoover campaign, is to confer with the State central committee within a week or ten days regarding choice of delegation candidates.

Former Representative Henry T. Bannon, of Portsmouth, the Sixth District, offered the resolution indorsing the President for renomination and election. He predicted the coming campaign would be the most educational since 1896, and that its result will be reelection of Mr. Hoover.

Senators to Fight Brown Nomination

Couzens Announces Plan to Oppose Appointee for Radio Board.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday nominated Thad Brown, of Ohio, to be a member of the Radio Commission in defiance of the opposition of Chairman Couzens, of the Senate Interstate Commerce committee. A contest was promptly predicted.

The Senator did not name his grounds, but it is understood he regards the Brown appointment as a political one. It seems certain that the Ohio Republican leader will be opposed by a political line-up in the Senate.

Predictions were made in the Senate that his confirmation would be defeated. The nomination will be taken up shortly by the Interstate Commerce committee. Mr. Brown has the indorsement of Senator Fess, Republican, of Ohio.

Japan Rushes More Troops Into Shanghai

(Associated Press.)

Extraordinary precautions were taken yesterday to prevent more bloodshed in Shanghai, scene of the sanguinary clashes between Chinese and Japanese during the last few days.

Japan dispatched an aircraft carrier, four destroyers and a special landing party to the port, Tokyo dispatches received in Shanghai said.

The authorities of the Shanghai International Settlement guarded the city with strong street patrols, composed of "white" Russians equipped with steel helmets, rifles and bayonets.

The American and Canadian trade commissioners took further steps to keep more of their countrymen from coming to China in the expectation of flying Chinese military planes for big salaries. There are no such jobs.

American fliers now here are Tom Derby and H. S. Mead, of San Jose, Calif.; Vincent Schmidt, of New York; Henry Reynolds, of Washington, D. C., and another whose name could not be learned. The Canadians

SENATE WETS LOSE FIRST LIQUOR VOTE

Bingham Resolution Seeking States' Repeal Sentiment Defeated, 55 to 15.

(United Press.)

Antiprohibitionists were overwhelmed, 55 to 15, in the first Senate test of dry law referendum sentiment yesterday.

The vote was forced by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, over the resentful opposition of several fellow antiprohibitionists who nevertheless supported it on the final vote. The measure was a resolution asking governors to hold dry law referenda to sound out sentiment of their States.

Senator Bingham himself announced thereafter that he would press later for a test vote on his beer legalization plan.

Eight Republicans and seven Democrats voted for the resolution.

Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, another antiprohibition leader, said he knew six or eight moderate senators who would have voted for his own "State option" resolution for selective repeal of the eighteenth amendment in wet States.

Prohibitionists hailed the vote as a decisive rejection of the referendum idea. Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, leader of the militant prohibition bloc, sought at first in the two-hour debate to refer the resolution to the judiciary committee, but after privately sounding out the sentiment of the measure, allowed it to come to a vote.

Senator Bingham introduced his resolution after noon yesterday with only a few hours warning. It read:

"Whereas several States have already taken appropriate action for the purpose of obtaining a referendum of their people upon the prohibition question; and

"Whereas several periodicals and newspapers in the United States have conducted so-called "polls" on the prohibition question, the importance of which polls it is difficult to estimate: Therefore, be it

Officials Deny Edge Will Succeed Dawes

Paris, Jan. 21 (U.P.).—The American Embassy today formally denied a Washington report published in the French press that United States Ambassador Walter C. Edge had said he would succeed Charles G. Dawes as Ambassador to Great Britain, with Ambassador John Garrett, at Rome, replacing Edge here.

"Ambassador Edge is happy at his present post, and the report is without foundation," said the official denial.

El Salvador Proclaims National State of Siege

San Salvador, Republic of El Salvador, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The provisional government has declared a state of siege in six departments of El Salvador because of the activities of Communists.

Little more than a month ago President Arturo Araujo was overthrown by a group of army officers and he fled from the country. A military junta has been ruling since then and has been arranging for municipal elections.

SNELL CALLS HALT TO PAY WAR IN HOUSE

Wood Agrees to Delay Fight for Slashing U. S. Salaries.

G. O. P. LEADER CITES OTHER VITAL NEEDS

Demands Postponement of Wage Issue Till Relief Work Is Finished.

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, Republican leader of the House, stepped into the fight over cutting Government salaries yesterday and cracked the whip with such a resounding crack that opponents of pay slashing breathed a sigh of relief and a song of praise.

As a result Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, who has occupied newspaper front pages recently by way of his assaults on Government salaries and the high wages paid in industry, was pushed into the background and agreed that he would cease his pay slashing efforts for the time being.

"I believe," Representative Snell said, "that if Government salaries are to be cut we should deal with the question in a straightforward, manly fashion. We should deal with it directly. We should deal with it in such a manner that it would not be confused with other matters.

Urges Direct Presentation.

"I am not expressing my opinion about pay cuts. I am not saying they should be cut. I am not saying they should not be cut. I am saying that if the question is to be presented to the House it should be presented in a straightforward manner which will permit a vote on the question without the constraining influences of other matters interfering."

Representative Snell's declaration came after a conference with Speaker John N. Garner, the Democratic czar of the House, and was interpreted as meaning that the Speaker agreed with him.

Representative Wood, it is understood, has agreed to withhold any effort to amend the Agriculture Department appropriation bill, now under consideration in the House, as well as other appropriation mesures subsequently to be reported and considered, until the general legislative bill. That course agreed with the ideas expressed by Representative Snell, who said:

Stresses Other Needs.

"I believe the question of salary cutting should be withheld from decision until we have maped out the fiscal course of the country. We should not talk of cutting salaries here or there, with its inevitable inequalities which should result.

"When we get through with the appropriation bill and when we see what we will have to do about taxes and see what we will have to do to balance the budget, regardless of whether we cut salaries or not, then it is time to consider salary cutting—when we have full information."

Five Killed and 20 Held In Portugal Labor Row

Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—After a labor disturbance here in which five persons were wounded and twenty arrested, authorities said tonight that Portuguese labor organizations, emulating extremists in Spain, would declare a general strike next Monday.

Tonight's trouble arose when several thousand workmen held a noisy street demonstration over a withdrawal of the government's ban on the Confederation of Labor, which was ordered dissolved in 1925 and later declared illegal. The workmen refused to obey an order to disperse and raised what police considered to be subversive cries. The police, assisted by republican guards, charged into the crowd with clubs.

Briish Cabinet Crisis Looms in Tariff Fight

London, Jan. 21 (U.P.).—The possibility of a British cabinet crisis over proposals for tariff barriers was discussed tonight in official circles.

It was understood that Lord Snowden, the lord privy seal, and Sir Donald MacLean, president of the board of education, were particularly strong in their opposition to the tariff proposals of a majority of the ministers

U. S. ATTITUDE DENOUNCED AS LAVAL SEEKS CHAMBER SUPPORT ON DEBTS POLICY

America Planning No Further Word on Issue.

EUROPE'S ROW END AWAITED

Will Remain Silent Until Lausanne Parley Is Decided Upon.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States has made its last pronouncement on intergovernmental debts until the political stability of Europe has "crystallized," it became known authoritatively here yesterday. This reign of silence in the administration office of the American Government will rest until the date of the Lausanne conference has been determined and may even be prolonged beyond that.

The position of this country with regard to European obligations to the United States Treasury is believed to be so well known that any further statement would add nothing to the picture. However, prudent regard for the difficult position of several European leaders, such as Premier Laval, Prime Minister MacDonald and Chancellor Bruening has further decided the policy of absolute silence.

It is believed that any clarification of the war debts-reparations atmosphere at this time would serve to further embroil European political leaders with their own problems.

Example in France.

This is especially true in France, where the recent publication of what purported to be a version of the famous American memorandum of December 29 appeared in the opposition press and caused great embarrassment to Premier Laval.

Any further statement from Secretary Stimson will merely reiterate the well-worn tenets of America's attitude toward intergovernmental debts. The first definite step toward a more conclusive approach to this problem will not be made before the visit of Secretary Stimson to the disarmament conference. At that time it is hoped and believed that some common determining factor will have been found by the allies and Germany for their common problem of reparations.

The political instability of Europe is at the base of many problems now before the world for solution. This applies as well to the problems of disarmament as to the principles of war debt adjustments, it was definitely declared here. Any move by the United States at this time would be certain of misinterpretation, it is

Denver Kidnaping Suspect Is Taken

Two Others Held for Quiz; House-to-House Hunt of City Slated.

Denver, Jan. 21 A.P.).—Police tonight announced they were holding Kenneth Coffman, 28, of Denver, for questioning in connection with the kidnaping for $50,000 ransom of Benjamin P. Bower, bakery manager.

Another man and a woman were detained at police headquarters for check on their movements in the past 48 hours. Chief of Police Albert T. Clark said these two were not under arrest, but were being questioned on a phase of the kidnaping and information already obtained "looks promising."

Two hundred firemen will make a house-to-house search of the city tomorrow, officials decided. Lack of any communication from the kidnapers and Bower's delicate health and age made officials apprehensive of his life. His grief-stricken wife has offered to pay "any reasonable sum" for his safe return.

U. S. to Spurn Paris Pact to Get Arms Cut

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

French insistence on security as a prerequisite for arms reduction meets no objection from this Government so long as the United States is not depended on for the guarantee.

With receipt here of the news that France intends to make a naval arms reduction offer at Geneva, it was the American attitude that much progress has been made on restricting sea armaments and the more urgent need now is to get land arms down. Nevertheless, careful consideration will be given to the readiness in Paris to join a naval cut conditioned on an agreement allotting navy strength on the basis of geographical requirements.

Reiteration of the French position

HOOVER ASKS SPEED ON FINANCE FUNDS

Wants Reconstruction Work to Start Immediately, He Tells Congress.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover last night appealed to Congress for an appropriation enabling the great Reconstruction Finance Corporation to begin its task of striking the shackles from American business without delay.

He submitted to the House a brief special message asking prompt approval for the $500,000,000 outlay called for in the bill creating the credit organization.

"I am transmitting this estimate of appropriations at this time so that the important operations of the corporation may be commenced at the earliest possible date," Mr. Hoover said.

His plea received quick response Chairman Byrns, of the House appropriations committee, said he would begin hearings on the appropriation today, with Undersecretary Mills, of the Treasury, as a witness. The House will probably be asked to vote on it tomorrow, he added.

Only formalities remained last night to complete congressional action on the reconstruction corpora-

Guatemala City Rocked As Volcanoes Erupt

Guatemala City, Jan. 21 (U.P.).—The capital was shaken by frequent earthquake shocks this afternoon and the volcanoes of Fuego and Acatenango were in eruption. Black clouds darkened the sky and ashes were falling continuously.

Guatemala City, capital of Guatemala, is located at an elevation of some 4,800 feet. The present capital is the third city on the same site. The second city was destroyed by the earthquake of 1773. There are several volcanic peaks in the mountainous country which makes up most of Guatemala. The population of Guatemala City is about 90,000.

The highest bid announced by Secretary Mellon, following their opening at the Federal Reserve Banks was 99.500, equivalent to an annual interest rate of approximately 1.94 per cent. The lowest accepted was 99.332.

Leader of French Radicals Scores Pact Rejection.

BUT PREMIER IS CONFIDENT

Safety Union Demand With America Causes Tense Situation.

Paris (Friday) Jan. 22 (A.P.).—The United States was sharply criticized in the French Chamber of Deputies late last night for an aloof attitude toward France in international negotiations.

The criticism came from Edouard Herriot, leader of the radical Socialists, in debate on a request from Premier Pierre Laval for an expression of confidence in his new cabinet.

The Chamber adjourned early today until afternoon with the premier apparently confident that he had its support for his foreign policy, although a vote of confidence had not yet been reached. He told interpellators that his task would not be difficult, for the debate thus far had shown that the House was almost unanimous in support of his contention that reparations were sacred and that France must not be expected to pay more than she received.

Hits Pact Rejection.

M. Herriot deplored America's rejection of a proposal twelve years ago for a guarantee pact in line with the Versailles treaty.

"The United States, which often gives us advice," he said, "would gain by being closer to us in international negotiations aimed at uniting the whole world to assure peace."

He also criticized the statement of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, of Germany, that Germany could no longer pay reparations and reminded the Chamber that recourse could be had to The Hague tribunal under the Young plan by any of its signatories in event one of them failed to pay its intergovernmental debts.

The chamber met in an atmosphere made tense by Germany's refusal of a simple extension of the Hoover moratorium and complicated by a call for union with the United States in a pact guaranteeing mutual assistance for defense in any case of aggression.

Might Reduce Armaments.

This call was sounded at the afternoon session of the chamber by Pierre Forgot, former cabinet minister, who suggested that in return for the agreement France might reduce her armaments by about 25 per cent.

Predictions in the lobbies were that when the question of confidence came the new Laval ministry in which Aristide Briand, veteran foreign minister, has no place, would receive a majority of at last 45.

When the night session started, Deputy Delsol, of Paris, caused a disturbance by saying he wished to see the government's majority enlarged, but composed "solely of French deputies."

The Socialist members took this as an insult and made so much noise President Fernand Emile Bouisson suspended the sitting.

Before the outbreak by the Socialists M. Delsol had attacked Germany, accusing her of building up clandestine armaments, and had paid a glowing tribute to the aid rendered France during the war by the American Expeditionary Force.

He urged that the government tell America "which loves frankness, either Germany will pay and then we will pay, or Germany will not pay and France will not pay either."

The suggestion for a pact of mutual

Britain Has Repaid Most Of U. S. Loan, Is Report

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—It was reported in banking circles today that the Bank of England had repaid between $55,000,000 and $60,000,000 of the $75,000,000 credit granted by the Federal Reserve about five months ago.

Officials of the New York Federal Reserve Bank would not comment on the report, nor would they affirm or deny a report that the dollar balances of the Bank of England were increasing at a rate that promise the complete retirement of the credit upon maturity at the end of this month.

Patriotic Leaders of U. S. Watching Post Essay Test

Mrs. Charles H. Bissell, National Executive of D. A. R., Praises Competition and Benefit to Children Through Study of Washington's Life.

The attention of patriotic leaders throughout the country has been attracted to The Post Washington Essay Contest as an object lesson in how a newspaper can cooperate in the observance of the George Washington Bicentennial.

"I am very much in sympathy with The Post Essay Contest," declared Mrs. Charles H. Bissell, recording secretary general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, yesterday. Mrs. Bissell is in Washington for a few weeks to attend the conventions and other interesting events of patriotic organizations.

"The Post Washington Essay Contest is a splendid thing," continued Mrs. Bissell. "It not only stimulates the interest of the boys and girls of the city and nearby territory in Maryland and Virginia, but it also is excellent training in English and history as well. I am gratified to note that The Washington Post urges the contestants to take care in the preparation of these essays and to study the life of George Washington before they begin to write about it. There is no American who can know too much about George Washington. Just the reading of his life is fruitful of inspiration to follow his example and do our part in keeping alive the principles on which he and the founding fathers built this mighty nation.

"Therefore, those of us who are pledged to the effort to perpetuate the things for which Washington stood in his day and generation are delighted to sponsor The Post Washington Essay Contest. I shall watch its progress with special interest and call it to the attention of my young friends who are eligible to compete in it."

Great impetus was given to The Post Washington Essay Contest yes-

Mother He Never Knew Sends Gift as Crowley Dies

Sing Sing Prison, Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 21 (U.P.).—Francis (Two-Gun) Crowley, 21-year-old desperado, who killed a policeman and defied the whole New York police force to get him, was put to death in the electric chair tonight at 11:06.

Crowley went to the chair swaggering, a smile on his lips. But there was none of the sullen hatred for the world in his face as he entered the little green door.

At 11:01 the grim procession from the deathhouse entered the silent chamber where the instrument of death stood in the center, ten steps from the silently swinging door.

Crowley looked neither startled nor afraid as he approached the chair. Beside him were Chaplain John McCaffrey and Chief Keeper T. C. Scheehy. He disdainfully shook away the support they were willing to offer.

His gait was firm and swinging as he walked toward the silent spectators.

As he reached the chair of his own

Knock Out Wealthy Cosmetics Manufacturer's Butler in New York, Bind 4 in Household, Escaping by Rear as Officers Arrive.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Three men, posing as bootleggers, invaded the East Sixty-seventh street home of Harry Glemby today, knocked a butler unconscious, bound four members of the household and scooped 41 pieces of jewelry valued at $349,000 from a wall safe.

They escaped through the service entrance just as a police squad car screeched to a stop at the front.

The detectives were called by a friend with whom Mrs. Glemby was talking on the phone when the trio entered. She saw their guns and screamed, dropping the receiver. Her friend notified police.

Glemby, art connoisseur and millionaire cosmetics manufacturer, has one of the most richly decorated homes among the upper East Side homes of wealth who in recent months have been victimized to the extent of more than a million dollars by jewel thieves.

Mrs. Glemby is known as one of the best dressed women in America. She recently reported the loss of a $25,000 diamond earring while attending a New Year's Eve party at the Waldorf-Astoria.

It was subsequently found and returned, but the earring and its mate together valued at $50,000, were among the gems taken today. The loot, Noel C. Scaffa, insurance company detective, said, also included a wide assortment of pearly necklaces, bracelets, rings, pendants and pins and watches.

Glemby was having a shower and others in the household were engaged in usual occupations when the service bell rang. The butler, Fred Hamayer, pressed the button that opened the downstairs door automatically and presently three men arrived at the third floor apartment.

The butler opened the door a few

RAILWAY HEADS PLEDGE RELIEF FOR WAGE CUT

Stabilizing Employment Promised to Labor as Trade Aid.

BARE CRITICAL STATUS TO LEADERS OF UNIONS

Roads Agree to Majority of Workers' Proposals in Appeal for Support.

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Railway managements of the United States offered today to do "everything practicable" to stabilize employment if their organized workers would "contribute toward a general revival of business" by accepting a 10 per cent wage cut.

The presidents had the floor today in the negotiations with union leaders, and they covered almost every point made thus far by either side.

Labor had asked for the "whole picture" of the financial difficulties of the carriers. Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, answered with statistics it had taken two days to compile. The picture, he said, was of an industry rapidly losing credit, facing additional bankruptcies, unless help arrived.

Statement Is Amended.

The presidents amended their previous statement regarding the stabilization of employment. Instead of saying they did not think it possible to work out a definite method, they promised to do whatever was practicable to relieve the "fear of unemployment." They did not agree to the labor suggestion that employment be stepped up to the 1930 figures, an increase of 10 per cent or more.

On all other proposals made by the brotherhoods and unions, the rail executives gave little, if any ground. They indicated they were unwilling to agree to labor proposals regarding the six-hour day, coordination of train crews and train lengths, the protection of labor in railroad consolidations and a billion dollar bond issue for grade crossing elimination.

"We believe," said the president's committee in a formal statement, "a reduction in the compensation of all persons engaged in railway service is an essential step toward enabling the railways to improve their credit, increase their employment and purchases, and thereby contribute toward a general revival of business."

All Employes Affected.

David B. Robertson, head of the labor delegates, called attention to the words "all persons engaged in railway service," and asked if that were meant to include the lower paid, unorganized employes, many of whom have not been affected in reductions thus far. Mr. Willard responded that should the unions agree to a reduction, it was the plan to cut all other employes in similar manner.

As to the necessity of the saving of about $215,000,000 which could be made in the pay reduction, Mr. Willard said 72 railways failed to earn their fixed charges last year, and that unless net earnings could be increased this year the number would be "much larger."

Danger of Bankruptcy.

"The railway companies that are failing to earn their fixed charges are plainly in danger of becoming bankrupt," he said. "In addition, in 1932, there will become due and payable the principal of $405,000,000 of railroad mortgage bonds, equipment trust obligations and other loans. These obligations must be satisfied to avoid bankruptcy."

Last year, Mr. Willard said, the total net income was $784,000,000, while the fixed charges amounted to $695,000,000, leaving the total net income in excess of fixed charges only $89,000,000.

Some 800 brotherhood and union general chairmen were invited to join their executives in tomorrow's session to listen to the plea of the presidents' committee. It was the first time they had been asked in since the negotiations started last Friday and was taken to mean the conference might be about over.

Rioting Students Routed By Jugoslavian Police

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Jan. 21 (A.P.). Students rioted at the University and Institute of Technology here today until besieged by gendarmes after the students had thrown a newly appointed dean out of their dormitory. There was an unconfirmed rumor that two students were killed. More than 100 students, including many girls, were arrested.

The gendarmes surrounded the dormitory in a state of siege, cutting off water, lights and heat to compel the students, who previously had burned a picture of Premier Zivkovitch with cries of "Long Live the King," to leave the campus.

Iglesias Approves Beverley Naming

Porto Ricans Are Delighted Over Hoover's Choice for Governor.

(Associated Press.)

"The best selection President Hoover could make," was the way Santiago Iglesias, member of the Porto Rican Senate and secretary of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, expressed himself on the appointment of James R. Beverley as Governor of Porto Rico.

"Former Attorney General Beverley, better than any official from the United States, understands the people of Porto Rico and their problems," he said. "I am very glad."

Felix Cordova Davila, Porto Rican resident commissioner, was no less enthusiastic.

Davila visited the War Department yesterday and conferred with officials about affairs of the island in view of the designation of the new governor.

NEW YORK ARRANGES LOAN OF $251,000,000

Contract Signed at All-Day Session of City Officials and Banking Group.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The City of New York, richest of all cities but temporarily crimped because of lack of cash, again finds itself with abundant money on hand to spend freely for necessary expenses, but not for those that bankers call wasteful.

Representatives of the city and of a Wall street banking group signed a loan contract tonight, after an all-day session which climaxed six weeks of intensive negotiation. This agreement provides $100,000,000 cash for the city and also sets up a credit of $151,000,000 into which the city can dip at any time to meet its current spending needs.

Successful conclusion of the loan closes a lively exchange of views in which the bankers told city officials that they must retrench, and city officials said they were willing to do that, but under no condition would surrender their adherence to a 5-cent subway fare—a political battle cry which has overwhelmingly elected several Tammany administrations.

Public sale of the new city loan will be made tomorrow. Upwards of 50 New York City banks and banking houses will participate in the offering which will be made at par, the same price that the banking underwriters have agreed to pay to the city for its securities.

The securities will be of a new type in New York City finance. They will consist of $100,000,000 New York City corporate stock notes in dividend maturities of three, four, and five years and will bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. J. P. Morgan & Co. will head the offering group.

Thomas W. Lamont, who said yesterday that he expected the new type of short-term city security would meet with instant investment approval, reported today that early requests for subscriptions were unusually large. Other bankers who are party to the offering expressed belief the "notes would fly out of the windows."

The banking underwriters have waived all claim to profit in this offering. They will, however, derive a 5¾ per cent interest charge or the $151,000,000 revolving fund. This fund will run throughout 1932.

HOOVERS' RECEPTION GIVEN FOR SENATORS

Cabinet Members, Wives, Army and Navy Officers Among Guests.

The President and Mrs. Hoover held the third one of this season's receptions last evening, with the members of the Senate as the special honor guests. It was quite the smallest reception for some time at the White House, the guests all having been received a few minutes before 10 o'clock. It took just one hour, but the greater number of guests remained until after 10:30 to dance in the East Room, where the Marine Band moved from the corridor as soon as the President and Mrs. Hoover and members of the Cabinet circle retired up stairs.

The simple floral decorations which Mrs. Hoover has sponsored were very effective, and the arrangement last night was particularly beautiful. The stairway, down which the receiving party came for the opening of the reception had a border of palms, ferns and pale pink carnations and carnations were used more plentifully elsewhere than any other blossom. Tall bunches of rich red roses gave an added note of color to the East Room, and an effective bower-like arrangement of ferns and red roses filled the space in front of the great French windows which open on to the east terrace. The green parlor had its customary pale pink carnations and pink and white begonias on the mantel and several small tables.

The flowers in the blue room departed from the traditional white blossoms, and great bunches of pale yellow, orange and mahogany coreopsis and white carnations were on either end of the quaint old mantel. Quantities of white carnations were on tables behind the President and Mrs. Hoover as they stood to receive.

New Flower Arrangement.

White flowers were used in the red parlor, and the state dining room had a new arrangement in the placing in the center of the room the heavy mahogany dining table with a huge mound of large red carnations in its center. Heretofore table and chairs were always entirely removed from the room. Great mounds of the red carnations were placed on all side tables, and a lovely arrangement of ivy was used on the mantel, and banks of farleyeuse ferns were on the serving tables on the east side of the room.

There were but a thousand guests received, and of this number there were more Army and Navy officers than senators. Among the missing, Senator and Mrs. Borah, Senator and Mrs. La Follette and Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, were conspicuous. Senator and Mrs. Norris were among the absent, but they rarely go to these receptions. Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the first woman to be elected to the Senate, also was absent. She is observing mourning for the late Senator Caraway, whom she succeeded. There were scores of members of residential society and many of the clergy and their wives or daughters, or both.

The little procession of the President and Mrs. Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Gann, and the Cabinet members and their wives, were prompt in descending to the Blue Room. Conspicuous by their absence were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, Mrs. Adams, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont. Secretary Adams walked with Secretary Mellon, and the line was a shorter one than at any reception for several years.

Mrs. Hoover Is Lovely.

Mrs. Hoover never looked more lovely, and was never more gracious, her smile and cordiality lasting throughout the reception. She wore a particularly graceful gown of lime green satin, heavy and soft, made without trimming except for a touch of lace in front at the neck. She wore no jewels save a tiny chain about the neck, upon which hung a huge square-cut aquamarine set with diamonds, and which hung low, nearly to the waist line. Her gown flared at the bottom, touched the floor in front and had a short train, and she wore long pearl-colored gloves.

Mrs. Gann, sister of the Vice President, wore a gown of cloth of silver made on simple lines, with a short train. Mrs. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of State, wore pale pink brocaded satin fashioner with panniers on each side of the skirt. Mrs. Mitchell was in a gown of two shades of blue, the bodice being of the lighter tore, and beaded in small crystals. Mrs. Brown had on a gown of ice blue satin with a long circular train and a bodice of crystal embroidery. Mrs. Wilbur was in a gown of white georgette crepe with narrow bands of rhinestones on the blouse. Mrs. Hyde wore a gown of rose pink satin trimmed with bands of lace of the same shade. Mrs. Doak wore a smart gown of pale blue satin fashioned with a train and brilliant shoulder straps. Senator and Mrs. James Couzens also attended.

Mrs. Pat Harrison, wife of the Senator from Mississippi, was accompanied by her two daughters, the Misses Catharine and Marianna Harrison. Mrs. Felix Hebert, wife of Senator Hebert, of Rhode Island, had with her Miss Catherine Hebert and Miss Marguerite Hebert.

Mrs. Jahncke Attends.

Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Miss Adela Jahncke, Mrs. William R. Castle, wife of the Undersecretary of State; Mrs. Wilbur Carr, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State; Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins, wife of the Chief of Protocol of the State Department; Mrs. Russell Train, wife of the Naval Aid to the President; Mrs. Fellowes Gordon, sister of Mr. Warren Delano Robbins, Mrs. William P. MacCracken.

Former Senator and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Dial were accompanied by their daughter, Miss Dorothy Dial.

The Alien Property Custodian and Mrs. Howard Sutherland also were present.

The Rev. Ze Barney Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, was accompanied by Mrs. Phillips and their daughter, Miss Sallie Hews Phillips.

Delegates to the Business and Professional Women's Clubs conference, and to the conference on the cause and cure for war were among the guests at the reception.

Gangster's Extradition Refused.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Gov. William H. Adams today refused to order the return to Chicago of Louis "Diamond Jack" Alterie, one-time henchman of the late Dion O'Banion, gang leader, until Illinois officials present more convincing evidence of his implication in a kidnaping plot.

GLASS INTRODUCES NEW BANKING BILL

Depositors' Relief Provided With Curbs on Speculating and Chain Systems.

(Associated Press).

After a year of study, Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, yesterday introduced a bill under which extensive changes would be made in the Nation's banking laws, relief provided for depositors of closed banks, and speculation and chain banking curbed.

It includes three points embodied in the Hoover economic program, making new types of paper eligible in emergencies for rediscount by the Federal Reserve system, provision for relieving depositors of closed banks and new safeguards for the depositors of national banks. In addition, it calls for curbs upon speculation and chain banking.

The Reconstruction Coporation bill authorizes loans to Federal and State banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, mortgage loan companies, insurance companies, credit unions Federal land banks, joint stock land banks, Federal intermediate credit banks, agricultural and live stock credit corporations and interstate steam and electric railways, exporters and farmers.

A new type of farm relief is provided by the agricultural loans. Under a provision sponsored by Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, $50,000,000 is earmarked for direct loans to farmers who lack both collateral and credit. The loans are to be secured by a first lien on the crop to be planted.

Fresh representations on behalf of outstanding Democratic candidates were made to the President today in connection with possible directors for the Reconstruction Corporation. No two may come from the same Federal Reserve District.

M. B. Wellborn, of Anniston, Ala., former governor of the Federal Reserve Banks at Atlanta, was strongly urged by Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama; Chairman Steagall, of the House banking committee, and Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic floor leader.

L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, proposed McLean as a man who understood the rural problem and could serve properly in helping administer agricultural aid under the bill.

2-GUN CROWLEY DIES CALMLY FOR SLAYING

accord he began unbuttoning the top buttons of his white shirt.

As he stood there firmly on his feet and still smiling, his gaze came to rest on the figure of Sergt. Stephen Lyons, one of the guards who had been attentive to him in the death house. His smile broadened and he said, cheerfully, "Hello, Sarge."

The sergeant, almost imperceptibly replied, "Hello, Crowley."

When he had unbuttoned the fastenings of the shirt—necessary he knew so that the doctors could place their stethoscopes over his heart—he sat down in the chair.

As the guards began adjusting the cap to his head, Crowley's smile faded for a moment and he made his last speech. In view of the significance of his illegitimate birth, his life of criminality, and his death, his words were the most dramatic ever spoken in the death house of this prison.

"My last wish," he said, clearly and without a trace of bravado—and perhaps there was a touch of wistfulness in his voice—"is to send my love to my mother."

Crowley died not knowing where or who his mother was. But this afternoon from some place in New York she sent him a rosary.

Crowley had kept his promise to Warden Lewis E. Lawes, to his guards and to the chaplain when he accepted death calmly. It was clear, too, that in the last days of his life there had come a repulsion from the vicious philosophy that had marked years of crime. He had accepted religion.

Gift From Unknown Mother.

On the death march he carried a shining gold cross, the personal cross of the chaplain. He hugged it to the white shirt over his heart until they were ready for him at the chair. Then he handed it over to the chaplain, with a short little bow of thanks.

Drama that was never written for any stage marked the hours of the short winter day before Crowley walked "the last mile" to the little green door.

Eight hours before his death he received the first—and only—message from a mother he had never known. It was a rosary. Mailed from New York in a simple wrapping of brown paper. Scrawled in pencil on an enfolding note were the words—"from your mother."

Foster-Mother Leaves.

At 9:15 the woman he had called "Mom" through his stormy life, his foster-mother, Mrs. Anna Crowley, was called from his cell, and he was left alone—with the gift from the woman who left him at birth because of the scandal attached to his coming into the world, 21 years ago.

Mrs. Crowley was in tears as her two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Kennedy and Mrs. Alice McNally, walked with her through the dimly lighted, steel-barred corridors and out of the great doors.

Helen Walsh, his 16-year-old sweetheart, who had beaten vainly against the prison doors during the day, trying to see him for the last time, ended her vigil outside the prison an hour before the execution, and was taken away by automobile.

Throughout the day the 21-year-old "cop-killer" had scorned the girl who was a companion in his criminal career, and whose testimony had helped fix upon him the death penalty for the slaying of a policeman five months ago.

Rebuffs Fail to Halt Girl.

"To hell with her," he had sent word out. "She just wants to sell the story to a newspaper."

Rebuffed at the prison gates, Miss Walsh sent a telegram to him from Ossining.

"Dear Shorty," she said, "I am with you to the end. Do you want to see me? I am waiting. Love, Helen."

Darkness found her waiting in an automobile across the street from the prison. A driving rain formed a curtain between her eyes and the dim lights of the penitentiary. No word came from Crowley's cell.

tion bill itself. Today possibly, tomorrow certainly, it will receive the signature of Mr. Hoover. Almost immediately it is to begin functioning with Charles Gates Dawes at its head and a huge fund from which to make loans to railroads, banks, agriculture and other interests.

In addition to the $500,000,000 of Government money, the corporation will have authority to issue bonds to the extent of $1,500,000,000, underwritten by the Treasury.

While the technicalities of legislative procedure prevented final congressional action yesterday, President Hoover studied the completed bill and found it much to his liking. He went over its provisions, one by one, with Senator Walcott, of Connecticut, co-author of the measure. The senator quoted the President as saying he was "very much pleased."

The report of the conferees of both chambers of Congress, bodying the measure in its final form, was submitted to the House yesterday. Under the rules of that branch no action could be taken until today.

After the House has approved it, the report will go to the Senate and may receive immediate action there, although the objection of one member could delay final approval until tomorrow.

Although the reconstruction bill was inactive yesterday, another important item of the President's program for invigorating business jumped its final congressional hurdle and was sent to the White House for Mr. Hoover's signature.

This was the measure providing $125,000,000 of additional capitalization for the Federal land banks and thus increasing the credit of the farmer. Of the total carried by the bill, $25,000,000 was specifically earmarked to enable the banks to postpone the mortgage installment payment of needy farmer borrowers.

A third of the President's measures, proposing the creation of a system of home loan discount banks to encourage home building, received both praise and abuse from witnesses before a Senate banking subcommittee.

Robert Oakman, of the Michigan Tax Commission, said the measure would not help "the workingman who is trying to pay for his home." He criticized a clause providing for mortgage loans as high as $15,000 and said the maximum should be reduced to $6,000 or $7,000.

On the other hand, I. Friedlander, of Houston, Tex., described the bill as "excellent," and said the $15,000 limit was all right, although he preferred to set it at $10,000.

Late yesterday the Treasury Department made a ruling partially clarifying a developing uncertainty as to the restrictions imposed by the reconstruction bill upon the appointment of its board of directors.

The measure stipulates that the Secretary of the Treasury, the Farm Loan Commissioner and the governor of the Federal Reserve Board shall serve as exofficio members, with four more to be appointed by the President. It sets forth that not more than one shall be from the Federal Reserve district.

The Treasury yesterday said the geographical restriction applied only to the four presidential appointees. This cleared the way for the appointment of Bernard M. Baruch, whose eligibility had been questioned because of the fact that he comes from the same reserve district as Gov. Meyer, of the Federal Reserve Board, New York.

Angus W. McLean, former governor of North Carolina, who served as a member of the war financing corporation, is regarded as a likely choice. The name of Harvey C. Couch, public utilities man of Arkansas, also is prominently mentioned.

$375,000,000 Aid Bill Reaches Senate Floor

(Associated Press.)

The drive for Federal appropriations to help the unemployed swept a $375,000,000 bill on to the Senate floor yesterday with indications of Democratic-Independent Republican support.

Despite the President's unyielding opposition, the Senate manufactures committee voted, 6 to 2, to approve the Costigan-La Follette bill authorizing relief appropriations of $125,000,000 for this winter and $250,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July.

The committee's report was submitted to the Senate by Chairman La Follette, one of the bill's authors, a few hours later. He forecast an effort to bring the measure up for action at the first opportunity.

The bill was given the solid support of Democrats and Independent Republicans on the committee, but Democratic leaders were noncommittal with respect to their attitude on the measure. It was indicated that, although the bill may have the support of many Democrats, it probably will not be made a party issue.

Administration Republicans on the committee maintained their opposition to the bill. Senator McNary, of Oregon, and Senator Goldsborough, of Maryland, opposed it. Senator Watson, the Republican leader, reiterated his objections later.

4 MEN QUESTIONED IN MARYLAND DEATH

Police Reexamine Suspects in Aged Man's Murder at Old Germantown.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Rockville, Md., Jan. 21.—Four colored men were being questioned tonight in connection with the murder Wednesday night of Horace D. Waters, 79-year-old storekeeper, and the wounding of Richard A. Bennett, 78-year-old clerk, during an attempted holdup of Mr. Waters' store at Old Germantown, about twelve miles from here.

Dissatisfaction with the earlier stories of the three colored witnesses of the shooting, caused the Montgomery County police again to question them. Buddie Prater, colored, who was arrested early today was also being questioned.

Shortly before the shooting, three colored men, in an automobile carrying Washington tags, inquired of several homes in the vicinity of the Waters store, asking for Prater, police said. Because of the apparent familiarity of the bandits with the habits of the storekeeper and their knowledge of his possession of a money belt, police believe they had aid from some one who knew Mr. Waters' habits.

Three Others Questioned.

In addition to Prater, those who were questioned are Herman Moore, 35 years old; Milton Warren, 42 years old, and Quaint Terry, 65 years old, all of whom live near the scene of the crime.

Police Commissioner Gaither, of Baltimore, assigned Detective Sergeants M. J. Dunn and William J. Flynn to assist county police in handling the case. Sergeant Roy Bodmer and Detective Theodore Vollten, of the Montgomery County police, today brought the three colored witnesses of the crime to the scene, and the slaying was reenacted.

Prater, the police said, spends much of his time in Washington. Sergeant Guy L. Jones, of the Silver Spring substation, and Detective Vollten went to Washington today to check Prater's acquaintances there.

Mr. Waters was killed when two colored men entered his store. No attempt was made to rob the cash drawer. One of the colored men went directly to Waters and, after shooting him in the hip and left side, searched through his vest. The bullet which entered his hip is believed to be the one which pierced the left wrist of Bennett, the clerk. Mr. Bennett was treated by the Rockville rescue squad.

$100 Found In Clothes.

The belief that Waters had lost money from his clothes was dissipated yesterday when his wallet, containing more than $100 was found hidden in the lining of his coat by Warner E. Pumphrey, Rockville undertaker, at whose establishment an autopsy was performed today. The three colored customers who were sitting in the store when the robbery occurred, were held at bay by the second bandit, who covered them with a gun.

Funeral services for Mr. Waters will be held from his home at 3 o'clock today. The Rev. Arthur B. Rudd, of Washington Cathedral, will officiate. Burial will be in Neelsville Presbyterian Church Cemetery. Officials of the Farmers Banking & Trust Co., of Rockville, will be honorary pallbearers. Mr. Waters was a director of the bank.

For the past 50 years he had been in the general mercantile business. In addition to his widow he is survived by five children: Mrs. Ethel Spates, of Germantown, secretary to the judges of the Washington Police Court; Mrs. Vivian Hedgman, of Rockville; Miss Madeline and Kenneth Waters, of Germantown, and Herbert D. Waters, of Washington, and two stepchildren, Mrs. George M. Hunter, of Rockville, and Mrs. Mary G. Boland, of Germantown. A sister, Mrs. Nettie Etchison, lives in Gaithersburg.

He is also survived by four half-brothers, Bowie F. Waters, former State's attorney; Julia B., William and Eugene H. Waters, all of Germantown.

inches, and one of the men whispered that they had "some liquor" for Glemby. It would be necessary, he said, to deliver it personally. The butler refused them admittance, whereupon the leader hit Hamayer on the head with a pistol. The butler sagged to the floor and the intruders stepped in over his body.

They bound a maid, Mrs. Glemby saw them and screamed. Glemby stepped out of the bath, wearing a robe. They forced him back with their pistols and tied his hands.

One of the men was so nervous the electric cord used for trussing the victims tangled in his hands. The leader snatched it from him and wired the Glembys and the butler together. A governess who had come into the room then was directed to lead the way to the wall safe. Terrified, she opened it. The thieves scooped the jewels—diamonds, emeralds and other gems collected by Mrs. Glembys here and abroad—into a bag, leaving the velvet cases scattered helter-skelter. Then they vanished through the service entrance.

Heart Attack Kills Woman Physician

Dr. Helen Smith, 69, Dies; Insisted on Treating Her Own Case.

Dr. Helen Smith, 69 years old, died suddenly yesterday at her residence, 215 Allegheny avenue, Takoma Park, Md., while seated on a sofa in the living room. Police said the elderly woman had been ill for some time and that she had insisted upon treating herself, refusing to go to a hospital or to accept medical treatment from any other physician.

She is said to have died from a heart attack, superinduced by starvation, which was part of the treatment she prescribed for herself. Town Policeman Frank Lane, of Takoma Park, responded to a call, but found the residence was in Prince Georges County, and called police of that county.

The woman was pronounced dead by Dr. R. M. Rose Zoretskie, of Casualty Hospital's ambulance, which summoned, and later by Dr. A. W. Shannon, of Takoma Park, who issued a certificate of death from natural causes. The body was removed to Lee's undertaking establishment, in Washington, pending word from relatives. Dr. Smith was a graduate of the University of Michigan.

PREVAILING SCALE ORDERED BY HOOVER

Clause to Be Written Into All Government Contracts.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover moved yesterday to keep contractors on Government buildings from paying lower wages than other employers in the same community.

By an executive order, it was decided that stipulations of the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage scale law shall be written into all public building contracts, along with a clause permitting cancellation of the contracts if the prevailing wage is not paid.

Existing contracts do not include the cancellation stipulation or the prohibition of rebates, as will the new agreements.

Secretary Doak analyzed the new executive order for the House labor committee. He argued against passing new laws, holding the executive order would be satisfactory.

Chairman Connery, however, insisted that the prevailing wage provision should extend to all other forms of Government work given to contractors, such as that on river levees and flood control projects.

"I will introduce a separate bill to do that," he said after hearing Doak.

Inquiry Is Asked Into Haitian Loan

Minister Says Testimony in Senate Has Harmed His Country.

(Associated Press.)

Minister Bellegarde, of Haiti, yesterday asked the Senate finance committee to ascertain the details surrounding a loan by American bankers to his country in 1922.

Mr. Bellegarde, in a letter transmitted to the committee through the State Department, said testimony in its foreign securities inquiry had damaged the honor of all Latin-American governments which had contracted loans in this country, and particularly had harmed his country. He referred to the testimony of the New York banking representatives that it was customary to give commissions to Latin-American government officials in arranging loans.

Bellegarde said his government felt it was imperative to have complete light on the conditions surrounding the negotiations of the $23,660,000 Haitian loan of 1922, including the manner of its being contracted, the profits of the National City Co. of New York and the commission paid to the person negotiating the loan.

Soviets May Permit Trotzky to Leave Exile

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Daily Mail said today that messages from an unknown source in Moscow said Leon Trotzky would be permitted to leave his exile in Turkey and reside in Germany. Negotiations have been in progress for some time between Trotzky and social democratic leaders in Germany, the paper said.

It added that Trotzky is said to have agreed to advise his followers in Germany to support Chancellor Bruening instead of Adolf Hitler, national Socialist leader.

ued work on its bill to reorganize Honolulu's severely criticized police department and other measures designed to clean up island law enforcement.

Great Secrecy Observed.

With great secrecy the Honolulu grand jury began investigation today of the murder case against Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, her son-in-law, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, Navy enlisted men, charged with slaying Joseph Kahahawai, suspected attacker of Mrs. Massie.

All transoms of the grand jury room were closed as a large crowd gathered around the judiciary building.

Dr. Robert Faus, city and county physician, the first witness, was called to describe the condition of Kahahawai's body at the time of the autopsy.

Among witnesses summoned were at least six members of the police department. Others present, presumably under call to testify, were three members of the naval shore patrol. One of these was Delbert E. Gilkie, who had been held by police as the man who rented the car in which Kahahawai's body was found in possession of Mrs. Fortescue, Massie and Lord. Gilkie was released when he said the car had been stolen from him the night before the killing.

Edward Ulli, cousin of Kahahawai, who first reported the abduction, was escorted into the grand jury room by detectives.

While the grand jury worked, the Territorial Senate was confirmed Gov. Lawrence M. Judd's appointment of Maj. Gordon C. Ross, National Guard officer, to be territorial high sheriff and warden of Oahu Prison.

WINCHESTER KILLING ADMISSION LAID TO 2

Police Claim That Pistol Was Found in the Home of One of Them.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Police tonight claimed to have confessions from Lawrence Fleet and John Wallace, each 18, arrested in Baltimore in connection with the slaying of William F. Keller, Winchester hardware merchant.

Commonwealth's Attorney James P. Reardon said Fleet, after questioning here, finally admitted he fired the shot which killed the aged merchant a few moments after he answered a door bell's ring Saturday night.

Wallace was said to have been in a nearby field, setting fire to a brush pile to avert suspicion.

Fleet was quoted as saying the two had come from Baltimore for the purpose of robbing any one who might have money. He said he watched the merchant enter his home and a moment later rang the door bell. When Fleet ordered the merchant to "stick 'em up," Keller was said to have seized him and pulled him inside the hallway.

It was then that Joseph Jones, Keller's nephew, ran down the stairway, shooting blank cartridges. Police said Fleet admitted shooting Keller because he feared he might be outnumbered.

Wallace previously had told police Fleet's Spanish automatic pistol had been hidden in the attic at the home of Fleet's grandfather, Benjamin McFarland, where it was found today. Suspicion pointed to the two youths, police said, when they learned by chance that Fleet had such a pistol.

Vernon M. Mann, restaurant employe, owned a similar weapon, and first suspected of the crime, was released after being arrested in Hagerstown, Md., last night.

Capper Bill Asks Petroleum Tariff

Measure Would Place Duties as Protection to Americans.

(Associated Press.)

A resolution to set up tariff duties on petroleum and its products based on $1.03 a barrel on crude oil, was introduced yesterday by Senator Capper (Republican), Kansas.

The resolution would direct the Tariff Commission to publish tariff duties of 63 cents a barrel on gas and fuel oils; 5½ cents a gallon on gasoline; 5¼ cents on kerosene, and 10 per cent ad valorem on other refined products.

The rates would become effective 30 days after being published by the commission. Capper said they were designed to correspond to the differences in cost of production here and abroad as shown by the commission's most recent report. The rates, he said, would be in the interest of American consumers as well as independent producers and refiners. The big importers are forcing the independents out of business and it is only a matter of time until the practical oil monopoly in this country will be an accomplished fact, he said.

CHURCHMAN'S DEATH MYSTIFIES PROBERS

Ordinary Motives Lacking as Police Scout Theory of Cabalism.

Philadelphia, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The slayer of Norman B. Bechtel, young church worker, was still at large tonight and elimination of certain theories served only to deepen the mystery surrounding his death.

Bechtel, 31-year-old accountant, was found dying early yesterday on an untenanted estate in the Germantown section. He had been stabbed many times and died in a hospital without naming his assailant.

Detectives on the case intensified their efforts, however, with word that Kern Dodge, director of public safety, in office less than a month, had declared, "I want this case cleared up if it takes every man in the department."

Wounds Are Unusual.

The odd shape of wounds found on Bechtel's face and head and a circular design of eight stab wounds around his heart led police to believe they had some cabalistic significance. While they put little stock on a theory that Bechtel might have been a "hex victim," detectives said they had not entirely abandoned the theory.

A diary found in Bechtel's apartment, several miles from the place of the killing, was carefully scanned for some solution of the case, but authorities announced tonight its contents had proved of little value.

Robbery as a motive for the slaying was virtually discarded and a lock of hair found in Bechtel's blood-stained automobile hours after his death was definitely identified as belonging to him. Fingerprints on the automobile were too badly smeared to be of use, police said.

Only Suspect Freed.

John Colen, young Negro garage attendant, who looked after Bechtel's car, the only one arrested in the case, was released late today after much questioning.

Friends and relatives of the dead man scoffed at the suggestion that "hexing" or anything pertaining to mysticism was connected with the crime. They preferred to believe, they said, that its unusual aspects were the manifestations of a disordered mind.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

SONS of great men are born with a handicap, but Col. Theodore Roosevelt, recently appointed Governor General of the Philippines, is well on his way to overcoming it. From an expedition of big game hunting he suddenly turned back to public service. The summons came when he was deep in the fastnesses of the eternal Himalayas, that lofty plateau of central Asia, which has tempted more adventurers than any other mountain range.

Col. "Teddy" was traveling with his brother Kermit when the cable came from President Hoover asking him to accept the governorship of Porto Rico. "Ted" considered his career in public office before. He had been candidate for the governorship of New York, campaigning against the greatest vote getter in the State of New York, "Al" Smith; he had been Assistant Secretary of the Navy and from that had become one of the younger statesmen of the Republican national committee.

The atavistic impulse of a great father had also made him a huntsman and so he had turned his back on politics and decided to expend the Rooseveltian energy on bald peaks of an Asiatic mountain range in pursuit of the ovis poli.

With the same energy he tackled the job of governorship of Porto Rico. This had hitherto been a political job as undistinguished as any of his predecessors and "Teddy" made it a proconsulship. He started to study Spanish and after he had taken several lessons with one of the Latin-American diplomats in the Capital, he made his debut in Porto Rico in the native tongue of the citizens there. He has since then inaugurated several interesting colonial developments, has put the finances of the island on a sound basis and has injected the Rooseveltian spirit of "doing it and getting-it-done" into an atmosphere almost tropical in its habits and customs.

His new job as Governor General of the Philippines is the biggest one he has tackled yet and has proved to be hopping off place for bigger things. President Taft and Secretary Stimson are among the names of those who have preceded him to our Asiatic possession.

Faithful Old 2-Cent Stamp Called Derelict in Its Duty

—By JOHN J. DALY—

ASIDE from the flag itself, about the only thing that remained true to the traditions of this country was the old two-cent stamp.

Even the Constitution changed and amended, but the two-cent stamp of our forefathers is the same old two-cent stamp of today, the beloved symbol of government, representing as it does the emotions of a mighty people.

Under the boon of two-cent postage have been carried on the business affairs of America, the human relations that begin at the cradle and end with the grave, the two-cent stamp guarding tender messages of love which lead to marriage and the very foundation of family life. In the history of the two-cent stamp may be traced the development of all our transportation. It went over the plains with the pony express and over the lakes and oceans in the airplane.

* * * *

IN spite of all this service and meritorious record, the two-cent stamp is now being attacked, and by the very people who should defend it. The Postmaster General of the United States feels that the two-cent stamp has failed to serve its full usefulness to the Nation. As a revenue producr, he claims it has out-worn its function. To this end, the call is for the retirement of the two-cent stamp from the first-class mails of the country and the substitution of a ritzier form of postage, the aristocrat of the mails—three-cent postage.

Thus, sad days loom before the people. Unless they rally as a man, around Old Glory, and march onto the Capital itself, the two-cent stamp will go the way of the world. Think of it! The time has come to demand protection for the ancient friend of the populace—the modest, humble, sincere, lowly and lovable two-cent stamp. It has, in a long and honorable career, done more than any other force to weld the bonds of friendship and patriotism around 120,000,000 people and their insular possessions.

* * * *

WHATEVER fortunes confronted the Nation—whether pestilence, poverty, depression or prosperity—the two-cent remained true to the faith.

Sometimes, it is true, its mucilage was not always true to the faith. This was when economy forced its ugly head through the portals of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The potato paste on the back of the two-cent stamp was supplanted by broccoli, or spinach, or other substitute—and then the much vaunted stick-to-itiveness of the two-cent stamp waned; but only temporarily. It came back, and now it sticketh closer than a brother.

What will become of the Nation if it must part with a faithful friend, to make way for a great revenue getter, the three-cent stamp? Sad days, indeed, are about to descend on the republic.

TILBURG INDICTED IN POKER SLAYING

Grand Jury Returns True Bill in Death of Woman at Rooming House.

The District grand jury yesterday returned an indictment charging Warden Lowe Tilburg, 52 years old, with the murder of Jeannette Hendricks, 43 years old, of 2318 Eighteenth street northwest, whose mutilated body was found by roomers in the Eighteenth street boarding house ten days ago.

Tilburg is charged with having beaten her over the head in the basement of the rooming house with a poker. Her body was discovered several hours after her death when persons in the rooming house investigated to find out why there was no heat.

The roomers discovered Miss Hendricks' body in the basement, clothed in a dressing gown and bedroom slippers. There were several gaping holes in her head and police were first of the opinion that she had been shot. A coroner's inquest showed that the holes were caused by a stove poker that was found in the basement.

Tilburg was arrested at his home at 605 Massachusetts avenue northwest, by detectives on a tip furnished by Eighth Precinct police. He is said to have admitted that he killed the woman because she told him he could no longer call on her.

LYTTON STRACHEY, AUTHOR, DIES AT 52

British Biographer Is Victim of Fever; Friends Over World Mourn.

Inkpen, Berkshire, Eng., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Lytton Strachey, whose vivid biographies recreated the pomp of Victorian England for a weary, post-war world, died today at the age of 52.

The author of "Queen Victoria" and "Elizabeth and Essex" had been ill with paratyphoid fever for many weeks and had been confined to his home at Marlborough. Although his illness was known to be serious, his sudden passing was a shock to friends in many parts of the world.

Mr. Strachey with his tall angular frame and his striking red beard was a familiar figure in London's social and literary circles. He often said he buried himself in the country when he wanted to work "not so much because of the London noises, but because of the constant social demands on one's time."

Early in his career the biographer wrote for English reviews and he struck the popular fancy in 1921 when he published "Queen Victoria." The book was regarded as a monumental presentation of the entire Victorian epoch and England congratulated itself on knowing more about its famous ruler because of his skill.

He did it again in 1928 with his "Elizabeth and Essex" and his fame as an artist who could make history live was complete. "Eminent Victorians" preceded these works and "Portraits in Miniature" followed them—both being widely circulated.

His writings once led him into a literary debate with "Gloomy Dean" Inge of St. Paul's Cathedral over the legitimacy of Queen Elizabeth's parentage. The dean iterated, "I don't believe she had a drop of Tudor blood in her veins," and Strachey retorted: "As far as I can gather it is simply a question of facial resemblance."

The author was born of Gen. Sir Richard Strachey, an Indian administrator, and Lady Jane Strachey, still regarded as a brilliant woman. He was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge.

Trials for Relief Seekers Put Off

U. S. Delays Decision in Case Against Two Who Led Needy Group.

The question of whether the office of the Associated Charities is a public place within the meaning of the District laws was left undecided yesterday when the trials of William Phillips and Alice Wilson were postponed for one week at the request of Stanley DeNeale, assistant corporation counsel.

Phillips and Miss Wilson were arrested after they had led a group of persons to the Associated Charities office. They were not disorderly, according to the policemen who arrested them, but their visit in such numbers did disrupt the work of the organization. The two led fifteen persons to the charities office and demanded aid for them. They were told that their cases would be taken up in routine.

After that the fifteen left and Miss Wilson and Phillips were arrested. They were charged with disorderly conduct. Attorney Charles Ford pressed Judge John P. McMahon for an immediate trial, but he was overruled when the Government asked for more time to study the case.

H. W. Berry Extols Advertising Value

Concerns Which Made Profit in 1931 Used It Widely, Club Told.

Advertising has been an indispensable factor in the merchandising program of the hundreds of concerns reporting profits in 1931, Howard W. Berry, of Lansburgh & Bros., Co., president of the Advertising Club of Washington, told the club at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel.

"A most important economic development has already taken place, the country's credit has grown stronger," Mr. Berry said. "Healthier financial days are coming back to us again, if we can judge from the evidence of optimism, backed by recent sound economic developments, as pointed out by the Advertising Federation of America."

Mr. Berry cited numerous instances of concerns that have forged ahead, avoiding laying off employes through the impetus of ingenious advertising. "What a change there would be in the employment situation if instead of the comparatively few aggressive companies which have maintained sales volumes through courageous merchandising there would now step forth a hundred thousand enterprises with the energy and enthusiasm to accomplish the same results," Mr. Berry observed.

Senator Lewis to Speak.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, will make a brief address at a reception and dance tomorrow night at the Willard Hotel, given in his honor by the Illinois State Society.

INDIAN NATIONALISTS DISPERSED BY POLICE

Dozen Injured as Authorities Charge Bombay Meeting; Swarm Back Again.

Bombay, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Thousands of Nationalists, assembled on Maidan Green at a demonstration meeting that had been forbidden by the authorities, were dispersed again and again by the police today, but each time they swarmed back to the green.

A dozen of the demonstrators were injured and several were arrested.

The meeting, called under the auspices of more than 40 mercantile associations, had been forbidden with the explanation that it might be used as a cloak for Nationalist propaganda.

Caused Deep Resentment.

This order, promulgated after backers of the meeting announced they expected 100,000 persons to attend, caused deep resentment in the business community, where it was described as an invasion of the right of free assembly. It was in line with an emergency ordinance forbidding meetings of more than five persons.

The government decided today to enlist the aid of the conventional Indian women, who obey the Oriental mandate of seclusion, in its fight against the women agitators of the Nationalist party. A government advertisement in New Delhi newspapers, offered 20 cents a day, a free uniform and free lodging to each woman who would join the police for action against Nationalist picketers.

This step was regarded as revolutionary because its purpose was to obtain the public assistance of women who lived behind the veil of "Purdah," which forbids such public activities.

Fate of Girls Awaited.

At Culcutta the court hearing the murder case against Santi Ghose and Sunity Chowdury, 16-year-old Bengali girls, charged with the murder of a magistrate at Comilla, reserved judgment without indicating when a decision would be announced. S. Sadanand, editor of the Free Press, organ of the Mahatma Gandhi, was arrested in Bombay and it was understood a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Davidas Gandhi, son for the mahatma.

welcome any action that the governors of the several States might take in recommending to their respective legislatures that such action be taken by the State as may be necessary to obtain the opinion of the people of the State with respect to (1) the repeal or modification of the National prohibition act (commonly known as the 'Volstead act').

"Resolved further, that the secretary of the Senate be directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the governor and to the legislature of each of the several States."

The debate on the resolution was vitriolic at points. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, known as "a dripping wet," protested that this was not the right way to attack the referendum question. The courageous way, he said, was to propose repeal. In the end, he supported the resolution, however.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and a dry said it was "a patent effort to pass the buck," and "a pitiable portrayal of impotence and cowardice on the part of this body."

Senator M. M. Neely (Democrat), West Virginia, closed the debate by denouncing the Senate for "spending hours each week debating intoxicating liquors when 20,000,000 people are starving to death."

"In God's name let the booze question be adjourned," Senator Neely pleaded.

After the vote, Senator Bingham commented: "It seems that (John J.) Raskob doesn't have much influence with the Democrats."

Senator Robert J. Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio, and a leading advocate of a prohibition referendum, commenting on the vote said it "didn't amount to a damn," and that the resolution would not have meant anything if it had been adopted.

The roll call on the Bingham resolution follows:

Republicans for: Arbour, Bingham, Blaine, Glenn, Kean, La Follette, Oddie and Walcott. Total, 8.

Democrats for: Bulkley, Coolidge, Copeland, Lewis, Tydings, Wagner and Walsh of Massachusetts. Total, 7.

Grand total for, 15.

Democrats against: Ashurst, Bailey, Black, Bratton, Bulow, Caraway, Connally, Costigan, Dill, Fletcher, George, Glass, Gore, Harris, Harrison, Hayden, Hull, Kendrick, McGill, McKellar, Morrison, Neely, Robinson, of Arkansas, Sheppard, Smith, Thomas of Oklahoma, Trammel and Walsh of Montana. Total, 28.

Farmer-Labor against: Shipstead. Total, 1.

Grand total against, 55.

Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, executive secretary of the national prohibition board of strategy, said last night in a statement "the vote in the Senate today on the latest Bingham proposal for testing prohibition sentiment proved a veritable 'dud.'"

"Instead of gaining votes on their most innocent proposition when they sought to catch the 'drys' unawares and put a 'fast one' over, they did not even poll their normal admitted strength," Dr. Dinwiddie said. "The Senate continues to reflect the overwhelming 'dry' sentiment of the country and shows the people's legislative representatives are wise to manufactured 'wet' propaganda. This is a foretaste of what the 'wets' may expect on repeal and modification and nullification proposals in Congress."

Kearns Sued for Phone Bills.

Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A suit for $1,368.28 alleged unpaid telephone bills was filed today against Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, the boxer, by the Southern California Telephone Co. The company charged Kearns and his sister, Mrs. Helena McKernan, made the long-distance calls between April 6 and June 22, 1931.

U. S. Lines Run Bars at Sea, O'Connor Says at Ship Quiz

Government Gave Away $8,000 Worth of Liquor to Stay Out of Bootlegging, Board Chairman Informs House Committee.

(Associated Press).

Chairman O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, told the House merchant marine committee yesterday he believed that American lines "run bars" out at sea.

He said a concern buying ships had received a free gift of $8,000 worth of liquor listed as "medical supplies" because the Government could not "put itself in the bootlegging business" by selling the liquor on board.

"Isn't it true that all American steamship lines except the Dollar Services run bars and isn't it a fact that it is foolish to keep it secret—that the lines are losing trade thereby?" asked Representative Lehlbach (Republican), New Jersey.

"I believe that is so," O'Connor answered slowly. "I have heard men say, 'I'm going on a foreign vessel where I can buy liquor.'"

Charges of Comptroller General McCarl that a million dollars worth of equipment and supplies were given to the P. W. Chapman Co. in the sale of the United States Lines in 1929 had previously been denied by O'Connor.

He said he was preparing an answer to them, with details on each item included in the inventories.

"Did the stores include liquor?" asked Representative Sirovich (Democrat), New York.

O'Connor answered about $8,000 worth of liquor was included in the medical supplies of the various ships transferred in the transaction.

"Did you give them that liquor?" asked Sirovitch.

"Well, we considered it a long time," said O'Connor. "The Government couldn't sell them the liquor—we just figured we'd have to turn it over as hospital supplies, without cost. If we had sold it it would have put the Government in the position of a bootlegger."

Chairman Davis asked O'Connor if those "medical supplies" were not sold as "liquor" after leaving the 12-mile limit.

O'Connor insisted the liquor turned over to the Chapman interests was "medical supplies," and that $8,000 worth of medicinal liquor was no large stock—"an ordinary barber would have that much."

Pressed for statements on liquor conditions aboard American boats, O'Connor said it was all outside his province—that the committee would have to ask the operators.

O'Connor was testifying in the House's investigation of the Shipping Board. The liquor situation was developed as the committee was seeking information on the successive sales of the liner Leviathan, now laid up awaiting repairs.

Beginnings of Air Travel

By H. G. WELLS

THE internal combustion engine lies at the root of both the automobile and aviation. They came in a necessary sequence. The automobile was the inevitable predecessor of the airship and airplane. Until a fairly reliable light engine had been worked out upon the ground, where sudden stoppages did not involve disaster, sustained flying was no more than a dream. The early "gliders" in the gliding machines, Lilienthal, Pilcher and Chanute, were plainly and consciously preparing for the advent of an efficient engine. So soon as sure and sufficient power was available, both flying and the navigable balloon became inevitable.

* * * *

The automobile story is still a confusion of claims and disputations. Gottlieb Daimler (1885-86) was early in the field, but it is alleged that Siegfried Narkus, in Austria, had made and driven a four-wheeled car with an internal combustion engine as early as 1875 (Encyclopedia Britannica). By 1897 a lot of people were busy making experimental cars of various types in France, Germany, England and America. To show the manner of the growth and do justice to these experimenters would require furlongs of museum gallery. It took a dozen years and the toil of many thousands of inventors before a really trustworthy car, that would not only take its driver out but bring him home again, had become a marketable commodity. In 1897 there were 90 cars upon the roads of the United States; in 1906 the 100,000 mark was passed, in 1913 the 1,000,000, and in 1928, 21,000,000. There is now (1931) a car to every seven people in the United States and to every 60 people in Great Britain and France.

* * * *

THE aeroplane followed fast on the car. The world of inventors was in labor, so to speak, with the automobile in 1896-97. That was the great time of road trials and freaks. The corresponding years for the aeroplane were 1909-11. By 1903 Wilbur and Orville Wright had already added a petrol motor to the gliders with which they had been experimenting since 1900 at Dayton in Ohio. They were certainly flying in 1905. Santos Dumont flew in 1906, and Farman, at the Voisin works at Issy near Paris in 1908. In July, 1909, Blériot flew across the English Channel, and from that date onward the record is crowded with flights of increasing length and height. The Atlantic was first crossed in 1919 by Alcock and Brown.

* * * *

The very earliest speculations on the possibility of mechanical flight were based upon flapping wings. The significance of soaring, with wings placidly outspread, was not at first apparent. And though Sir George Cayley in 1809 stated the principles upon which a heavier-than-air machine could be employed, a hundred years elapsed before this became an accomplished fact. The balloon, invented by the Montgolfier brothers at the end of the eighteenth century (1783)—lifted by hot air, hydrogen or, after 1821, coal gas—had buoyancy, it was capable of lifting a load up into the air, but its direction was that of the wind. In 1852 Gifford fitted a steam engine to a balloon and propelled it at five or six miles an hour. But a larger machine, built three years later, came to grief. During the Franco-German War a balloon which had a propeller worked by eight men was used. In 1885 Renard and Krebs constructed an airship, La France, propelled by a nine horsepower electric motor. This machine flew over Paris and attained a speed of fourteen miles an hour. But that was about as far as the lighter-than-air machine could go until the internal combustion engine came to its assistance. This association became possible at the dawn of the twentieth century. In 1901 Santos Dumont flew a navigable balloon, like a fat flabby fish, for seven miles out and home, round the Eiffel Tower.

* * * *

THE earlier French airships were "nonrigid." They consisted of a lozenge or fish-shaped envelope containing the gas, and the car for pilot, passengers and machinery was suspended from a net, embracing the fragile gas container. The "rigid" type, in which the fabric is stretched over a sausage-shaped metal framework, and the gas is contained in "ballonnets" in separate compartments of the larger vessel, was developed in Germany by that great experimentalist, Count Zeppelin. He was at work before the end of the nineteenth century. He was the first to make a rigid airship (of aluminium covered with silk and linen and containing hydrogen). It made successful flights before the end of 1900. But his Zeppelins remained very tender and fragile for ten years. It was only with the invention of duralumin (an alloy of aluminium) in 1909 that a really adequate, strong and light frame for a rigid airship became possible. Duralumin has five times the strength of aluminium and is nearly as light. During the war France and Great Britain developed nonrigid types of airship, and by 1918 the latter country had several hundred of them for scouting and coastal patrol. Italy showed a preference for semirigid ships—nonrigid envelopes stiffened by a metal keel. Germany, keeping the lead Count Zeppelin had given her, went on building rigid airships of the largest size and using them very effectively, and, until 1916, when the L33 was brought down near London, there was no information available outside Germany as to their design and construction.

* * * *

Experimental work with large airships is less than with aeroplanes; airships are infinitely more costly to build. They are relatively fragile, and when a disaster occurs they are more expensive in human life. Until hydrogen can be replaced by the noninflammable gas, helium, the menace of fire will always be associated with them. Helium is the next lightest element to hydrogen, and, although abundant in the sun's atmosphere, it is on earth a gas of rare occurrence. It is found in various natural gases and in the water of some mineral springs. It is widely distributed, but only in very small amounts. It is obtainable in considerable quantities in America alone. The supplies are manifestly limited, and this puts yet another obstacle in the way of general airship development.

SNELL CALLS HALT TO PAY REDUCTION FIGHT IN HOUSE

pline on Mr. Wood had been expected. He had surprised the House by directly quoting the President in the course of a speech urging salary cuts which he made on the House floor on Tuesday. On Wednesday, confronted with statements from the White House saying the President was not in favor of salary cuts, Mr. Wood told newspaper reporters that he knew the President was not opposed to cutting salaries.

Control Threatened.

The whip cracking by Representative Snell came at a time when the House threatened to get out of control of its leaders.

Member after member, from both sides, took the floor to say they did not believe that Representative Wood had truly represented the sentiment of President Hoover on the question of slashing pay.

Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, led the assault on Mr. Wood's declaration that his pay slashing program had, in principle, the sponsorship of the President.

Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), of Kansas, who has achieved notoriety as a pay cut advocate, multiplied Mr. Wood's estimate of savings by four or five, in seeking to assure the House that cuts in pay would mean a saving of between $200,000,000 and $225,000,000 a year. Even if only $1 were saved, the Kansas representative said, a general slash in salaries would be justified. The cuts advocated by Mr. Wood in his latest plan were inadequate, McGugin said.

Representative John J. Boylan (Democrat), of New York, said it would be a mistake even to think of cutting Government salaries.

Representative Charles A. Karch (Democrat), of Missouri, criticized Mr. Wood's interpretation of the attitude of President Hoover and declared that if the President's attitude had been correctly portrayed by Mr. Wood it would be the outstanding reversal and about-face in the entire history of the President's administration.

Mr. Karch sarcastically described Mr. Wood's program as a cheese paring one and opposed it, saying that if the Government adopted such a policy it would be like starting a forest fire which would rage throughout the country and result in a hysteria of useless, unwise and unnecessary wage cutting.

Accuracy Challenged.

Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), of New York, also challenged the accuracy of Mr. Wood's description of the President's sentiment. Mr. Mead made what was apparently a carefully considered and the most effective speech against pay cuts. Mr. Wood's proposal, he said, was an unscientific approach to a very serious problem. Such a blind slash as proposed by Mr. Wood, Representative Mead said, was contrary to every principle of government and sound economics.

Declaring that it was unfair to established business, the organization condemned the public peddling of gasoline, produce and other merchandise on city streets.

Mrs. F. K. Swett Dies in California

Rites to Be Held at Home of Daughter Here on Monday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anne E. Sweet, 75, resident of Washington for half a century and widow of Dr. Frederick K. Swett, well known Washington physician, will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Robert Y. Sullivan, 3105 Thirty-fourth street northwest. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Swett, who left here last March for a visit in the West, died yesterday at Napa, Calif. The body is en route to Washington.

A native of California, Mrs. Swett had crossed the continent by coach, and by every transcontinental railroad line, and had planned to return to Washington for Easter, via the Panama Canal. Recently she flew from Los Angeles to San Francisco, viewing from the air the same territory she saw on her first trip between these two points, made by stage coach many years ago.

Mrs. Swett is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Sullivan, Mrs. W. W. Fleharty and Mrs. Charles Stevenson, of Washington; Mrs. F. S. Grange, Stag's Leap, Calif., and Mrs. Henry H. Fox, St. Louis.

Auto Hurtles 100 Feet When Pushed by Truck

A light roadster, parked in the rear of 3529 Connecticut avenue northwest, was plunged over a 100-foot embankment yesterday afternoon when it was struck by a truck, according to police reports.

The automobile, owned by Dellie Thomas, of 4028 Alabama avenue southeast, was knocked over the cliff when a truck owned by the Carpel Co., of 2155 Queens Chapel road northeast, and operated by Gilbert Stanley Rowe, 29 years old, of 237 Cromwell terrace northeast, backed into it.

Congress Asks Hoover To Speak February 22

(Associated Press.)

Congress yesterday sent a formal invitation to President Hoover to address it in joint session on February 22, the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

The House resolution extending the invitation was adopted by the Senate yesterday without debate.

Plans to Bring Prosperity Are Swamping Treasury

(United Press.)

Everything from increased use of the horse and buggy to large scale poker and bridge matches have been suggested to Treasury officials as a cure for the depression.

Hundreds of letters now known as "cure-all, end-all" arrive at the department daily. Some of the most feasible suggestions have come from farmers and housewives and not from learned professors of economics and bankers.

The proposals include:

Repeal of the prohibition law and substitution of light wines and beer.

State lotteries.

Bimetallism.

State control of banks and securities.

Government ownership of all utilities.

Issuance of more currency.

Substitution of hand-made for machine-made products.

Increased use of the horse and buggy.

Interstate poker and bridge games.

A plan advanced by a Polish immigrant has received attention. It proposed to issue a $50 monthly script book to each unemployed citizen, the money to finance them being collected from wage earners on a basis of their annual income. The increased purchasing power as a result of such action would give business the stimulation it needs and the Nation confidence, the immigrant believes.

Not all the suggestions, however, come by mail. Some are delivered personally and many are marked "The Hon. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury. Not to be opened by any one else."

Earth Shock Bounces Furniture in Ohio City

Akron, Ohio, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Windows were cracked and furniture bounced about by an earth shock late today on the west side of Summit Lake, within the city limits. Francis Lavery, a resident of the district, said he believed the tremor was caused by settling of earth in caverns of the nearby Colonial Salt Co. Company officials, however, ridiculed his theory.

A similar shock swayed his home two weeks ago, Charles Brady, a bedfast invalid, said. Windows in his house were broken in today's shock, as well as those in two other nearby homes. Other residents reported their houses swayed, dishes rattled and furniture was shaken.

ZIMBALIST HAILED IN VIOLIN CONCERT

Hans Kindler's Orchestra Shares Honors in Bill at Constitution Hall.

The foremost violinist of the modern school, Efrem Zimbalist, and the first presentation in Washington of Glazounoy's violin concerto, made an ideal combination at yesterday's concert of the National Symphony Orchestra in Constitution Hall with Hans Kindler, refreshed and inspired by his recent holiday, wielding the baton. The concert was given under the management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene.

Through the generosity of a friend of the Symphony Orchestra, music lovers were enabled to hear Zimbalist yesterday in one of his most exalted musical moods. The movements of the concerto displayed the genius of the composer, interpreted so vividly by the virtuosity of Zimbalist. The audience showed its deep appreciation by continued applause at the conclusion of the concerto.

Not to be outdone by the soloist of the afternoon, the orchestra, led by Hans Kindler, did its utmost also to win a place for itself in the sun of applause. To this end Bach's suite in B minor with its lovely Polonaise and Bardinerie, featuring Domenico Iascone, came in for its share of the approval of the audience. The orchestra handled the Bach's suite with the technique and ability of a veteran organization and did equal justice to Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet" fantasy played before this season by the orchestra, but none the less effective because of its previous rendition.

Schubert's "Marche Militaire," given with a martial swing and verve, was a fitting conclusion to an admirable program. The "Balletmusik," from "Rosamunde," was also well received.

The next concert of the National Symphony Orchestra will be its sixth Sunday concert at Constitution Hall on January 31, at 4 p. m.

Two in Cabinet Hit In Army-Navy Row

Davenport Says Football Relations Could Be Resumed With Ease.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Davenport blames two Cabinet members, "who are afraid to face each other" for the fact that the Army and Navy aren't playing football.

Before the House expenditures committee, the New York Republican said yesterday one thing he thought would be accomplished by approval of the Byrns bill to consolidate the Army and Navy would be resumption of athletic relations.

"If we had a single Secretary he could set the rules for both and tell them to go ahead and play," he said.

Brazilian Debt Problem Settled.

Rio de Janeiro, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The problem of the Brazilian foreign debt, services on which have been suspended since September of last year, was settled today with the decision to give North American, British and French creditors 5' per cent bonds covering the amount guaranteed by the government. French creditors will be paid in gold according to a verdict of The Hague tribunal.

PADEREWSKI SHUNS SOCIETY FOR TRAIN

Famed Pianist Remains in Seclusion Aboard His Pullman Car.

Inducing Paderewski, the eminent Polish pianist, to leave his private-car home is almost as difficult as persuading Diogenes to leave his tub, organizers for the gala concert which the Polish master will give on Monday night for the benefit of the unemployed, are beginning to discover. The only exception the pianist has ever made to his rule of remaining in seclusion in his traveling Pullman home is at the invitation of the President and Mrs. Hoover. The last time Paderewski played here he was the guest of the President at the White House.

Paderewski is the first and perhaps the last artist ever to desert his art in favor of international politics. The story of his historic interview with the Czar Nicholas is perhaps the best example of his intense patriotism. After the youthful Paderewski's début before the court and the emperor at St. Petersburg, the emperor invited him to the Imperial Loge. The czar greeted him warmly:

"We are proud of you. The entire nation is proud of this greatest Russian pianist."

Paderewski bowed his appreciation and then said:

"But, Sire, remember I am not Russian; I am Polish."

This burning flame of patriotism burst into fire when President Wilson announced the freedom of Poland as one of the essentials of peace. Poland was in need of leaders and Paderewski for the first time in his career left his keyboard and joined the diplomats of the world at Versailles.

Clemenceau is said to have remarked during one of the stormiest sessions of the delegates when President Wilson, Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Salandra were in the midst of a heated argument:

"Gentlemen, we have a distinguished artist amongst us who is not only the representative of Poland but the ambassador of the goddess of music as well. Shall we ask him to sooth our discord with his matchless art?"

During his tourney in the United States, Paderewski often speaks with American leaders of international politics although he has completely abandoned politics. He spends most of his summer vacation in his home in Switzerland, where his wife, Mme. Poderewski raises prize poultry.

At the concert on Monday night, Paderewski will play in Constitution Hall before perhaps the most distinguished audience that the Capital has brought together since the war.

Members of the committee who will thank M. Paderewski for his contribution to the unemployed will include:

House Group Concludes Hearings on Naval Bill

(Associated Press.)

After hearing testimony that approval of the Vinson bill, along with work already authorized, would permit the expenditure of $853,589,906 on the fleet, the House naval committee yesterday concluded its hearings. Capt. E. S. Land, of the Navy, presented the figures.

They showed that over a ten year period, the bill by Chairman Vinson would authorize 120 new ships to cost $616,250,000; that 16 vessels now building would require $90,218,906, and that 15 already authorized but not under construction would take $147,121,000.

House Group Clears Two Circuit Judges

(Associated Press.)

Impeachment charges against two judges in the circuit supervised by Chief Justice Hughes were unanimously ordered dropped yesterday by the House judiciary committee.

They were preferred by Miss Mary Speers, of Baltimore, against Judge John J. Parker, of Charlotte, N. C., and Judge Eliott Northcott, of Huntington, W. Va.

Columbia Plans Engineering Center.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Columbia University today announced plans for a new engineering center to cost $25,000,000. The project contemplates an expansion of the engineering school on a scale similar to that of the school of medicine at the medical center. Faculty and alumni committees are considering ways and means of developing the project, Dean Joseph W. Barker said.

RUTH JUDD MENACES ALIENIST FOR STATE

Psychiatrist Quits Court as Confessed Killer Looses Tirade; Trial Opens.

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—With flashing eyes, Winnie Ruth Judd, confessed slayer, drove a prosecution psychiatrist from the courtroom under a burning tirade today as testimony was started in her trial for the slaying of Agnes Anne LeRoi.

"I won't have him near me," she cried, leaping to her feet to confront Dr. Joseph Catton, of San Francisco, who approached her chair during a court recess. "He's talked about me! He'a acted like a little boy. Get out of here!"

She clenched her hands.

Dr. Catton, who before leaving San Francisco to appear as a witness expressed his opinion Mrs. Judd was sane, left the courtroom immediately.

The defense has indicated it will attempt to establish insanity. Mrs. Judd also is under indictment for the slaying of Hedvig Samuelson. Both women, the State charges, were killed on or about October 16, in Phoenix, and their bodies sent to Los Angeles in trunks.

Would-be spectators mobbed the court house corridors in futile efforts to get into Judge Howard C. Speakman's little court room to hear first State testimony against the slender blue-eyed defendant.

The State plunged rapidly into its case, producing witnesses who heard shots at 10:30 p. m., October 16, who were associated with Mrs. Judd at Grunow Memorial Clinic, where the defendant was employed, and who aided in moving the trunks in which the bodies of Mrs. Leroi and Miss Samuelson were sent to Los Angeles.

County Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews said he expected to show that the relationship between Mrs. Judd and Mrs. Leroi and Miss Samuelson was strained for at least five weeks prior to the crime.

Mrs. Ernest K. Smith, employed in the X-ray department of the clinic, where Mrs. Leroi was an X-ray technician, testified at length regarding two telephone calls on the morning of October 17, one from Mrs. Judd and another purported to be from Mrs. Leroi, but which, she asserted, was from Mrs. Judd impersonating Mrs. Leroi.

Mrs. Smith testified Mrs. Judd informed the clinic she would be a few minutes late at her office. Then, the witness said, Mrs. Judd called again impersonating Mrs. Leroi and saying she would not be at work.

Dr. Percy Brown, in charge of the X-ray department at the clinic, corroborated Mrs. Smith's testimony as to the telephone conversation and her statements to him regarding it.

joined in resisting any widening of the existing differentials, which have been maintained by agreement since January 1, 1929.

Commissioners Eastman and McManamy dissented, both on the ground that the higher ton-mile rates on coal from the Northern fields, as compared with competing shipments from the Southern mines, placed the Pittsburgh and Ohio producers at an unfair advantage in competing for the lake business.

Consumers Opposed Revision.

The consuming interests represented in the proceeding, however, generally opposed any revision of the existing differentials.

In its review of the evidence and arguments, the majority opinion emphasized that in some instances the ton-mile rates varied as between different mines within the Northern zone by amounts equal to the average differentials between the Northern and Southern groups. This situation further sustained the majority's conclusion that freight rates are not the controlling competitive factor in the struggle between the two great coal producing areas.

As further sustaining the view that mileage alone should not be the determining factor in fixing rate differentials, the opinion cited the operating conditions on the roads serving the two competing coal zones. For the year 1929 the Chesapeake & Ohio system, which serves the Southern fields, averaged 54.8 miles per day with each car, whereas the Pennsylvania system, which serves the Northern fields, average only 25.4 miles per car daily. Similarly, the Norfolk & Western averaged 48.3 miles per car daily, against 30.3 miles per car on the New York Central. These computations were based on all classes of freight, including coal.

Handle Double Ton-Mile Load.

Other engineering studies presented in evidence, and accepted by both sides, disclosed that the carriers serving the Southern fields handle almost twice the ton-mile load of coal with a given amount of tractive power, as compared with the Northern roads.

In attempting to explain the sudden falling off of lake tonnage from the Northern fields since 1924, the commission pointed to the lower wage rates which prevailed generally in the Southern nonunion fields until the end of 1928, when most of the Northern mines resumed operations on nonunion scales.

"On April 1, 1924, the Northern mines entered into the so-called Jacksonville agreement with their employes. Under this agreement the wages paid in the Northern mines were on a materially higher level than those paid in the Southern fields. • • • The rapid shift of tonnage from the Northern to the Southern fields, which began in 1924, obviously was not due to the freight rate differential. Beginning with 1928 a definite swing of tonnage back to the Northern districts is shown."

MORE JAPANESE GO TO SHANGHAI 'FRONT'

are Charles Doyle, Jones Evann and John Hansen, of Vancouver; R. H. Geary, of London, Ont., and Charles Bulger, of Prince Rupert.

Meanwhile Japan struggled with a political crisis. Parliament was dissolved because the government had only minority support and a general election was set for February 20.

A brief statement was issued explaining that the ministry headed by Premier Inukai, only six weeks in office, was unable to carry out its policies in the face of minority support in the lower house, and therefore "it was deemed best to dissolve the Diet and submit ourselves to the popular will."

The Seiyukai (government) party estimates it will gain 86 seats in the election, giving it an absolute majority. The Minseito opposition, conceding some losses, declares that under the worst circumstances its strength will not fall below 200 seats. In the dissolved Diet the government party totaled 171 to 246 for the opposition.

Six hundred policemen guarded the Diet building during yesterday's session, the first since the new year recess.

The Chinese government, confronted by poor morale in its inadequately equipped army of 1,200,000 men, decided to slash its armed force to 80,000 and to use the money thus saved in providing them with the proper gear of war.

Defeated Suitor Blamed As Bride Is Spirited Off

St. Helens, Oreg., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A reported kidnaping in which the defeated suitor carried off the bride of the successful wooer, today sent Columbia County officers on the trail of Herman Reiten and Mrs. Patricia Cavin.

John Cavin, who married the 20-year-old girl Tuesday at Vancouver, Wash., swore out a warrant charging Reiten with committing a felony and with attempted murder. He declared that late yesterday while he was away from the house Reiten visited the home and carried the girl away.

MOB HELD FACTOR IN CONVICTING OF 8

Alabama Supreme Court Hits Threatening Letters on Hearing Appeals.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Mob domination and hysteria in the trial of eight young Negroes sentenced to death at Scottsboro last April for attacking two white girls were charged today in arguments on their appeal to the Alabama Supreme Court.

George W. Chamlee, sr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., chief of defense counsel, said a demonstration and celebration was staged around the courthouse after the conviction of two of the Negroes who were tried first. He described the demonstration as including a parade headed by a brass band that played "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

Chief Justice John C. Hancock opened the hearing with a revelation that the court has been bombarded with threatening letters and resolutions regarding the case. He warned contempt judgment against the writers of such communications would be taken against any within the jurisdiction of the court.

Chamlee prefaced his argument with a denial that attorneys were responsible for the letters and resolutions which the chief justice said had been coming in for six weeks.

"We didn't inspire it," he said, "we couldn't prevent it, and we do regret it."

The chief justice served notice on "defense attorneys and everybody else" that the communications would have no more influence "than a drop of water on the back of a duck." He called them attempts to "bulldoze and browbeat" the court, he added.

"The court will confine itself strictly to the records in the cases. If they show a reversible error, the cases will be reversed. If there is no reversible error, the cases will be affirmed. This is purely an appellate court, not one of original jurisdiction."

Klein Sees Nation First to Recover

Assistant Secretary Tells Silk Association U. S. Ardor Will Win.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The belief that America, of all the nations "hit in this world-wide catastrophe," is likely to be the first to recover, was expressed by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant Secretary of Commerce, in an address tonight at the sixtieth annual dinner of the Silk Association of America.

He asserted the "zeal of the youthful pioneer, the venturesome promoter, the daring enterpriser" still remained in the United States.

"This same ardor," he said, "which has so often had not a little to do with our boom-tide excesses, may, through some immutable law of compensations, be likewise, in part at least, responsible for the hoped-for acceleration of our recovery."

Long's Choice FarAhead In Governorship Voting

New Orleans, Jan. 21 (U.P.).—Oscar K. Allen, administration candidate for governor of Louisiana, continued tonight to hold a lead of more than 90,000 votes over his nearest opponent as returns from 1,120 of the State's 1,141 precincts were tabulated in the State Democratic primary election.

His total exceeded 173,000, giving him a lead of 53,000 over the combined totals of Dudley J. LeBlanc and George S. Guion. LeBlanc's total was 79,000 and Guion's was 41,000.

RICHARD CROOKS, noted operatic tenor, who will sing at the National Press Club tomorrow evening.

PRESS CLUB PLANS INAUGURAL PROGRAM

Bascom N. Timmons to Take Reins as New President Tomorrow Night.

A new president of the National Press Club, the twenty-fourth in the club's history—will be formally inaugurated tomorrow night. He is Bascom N. Timmons, the Washington correspondent of the Cleveland News and Houston Chronicle.

The ceremony, a portion of which will be broadcast, will take place in the club's auditorium in the National Press Building at 9 o'clock, and will be witnessed by a host of celebrities, including Speaker John Nance Garner of the House of Representatives. Speaker Garner will present to Mr. Timmons a gavel made from the horn of a Texas longhorn off a ranch where the new president worked as a cowboy in his youth. Arthur H. (Bugs) Baer will act as master of ceremonies.

The inaugural, like all Press Club inaugurals, calls for a program in which the light note will be dominant. To begin with, there will be a motion picture rodeo, burlesquing the range career of the new president. Officers of the club and members of the board of governors play stellar roles in the hard-riding cowboy cast.

Eugene S. Leggett, Washington correspondent of the Detroit Free Press, the outgoing president, will introduce the new president.

The pampas of South America will acknowledge the elevation to the Press Club presidency of a former cowboy from the plains of the Southwest through the appearance of Tito Guizer, the singing gaucho. Irene Beasley will sing, with Virginia Arnold as her accompanist. The program will be featured by the appearance of Richard Crooks, tenor, opera star. A portion of the program will be broadcast by the Columbia system from 9:45 to 10:15.

The program will open with an overture by the Marine Band, and close with a dance.

11 Held in Rail Thefts.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Two Chautauqua County farmers, Charles W. Hurlbert, 32, of Stockton, and Carter Lawson, 19, of Portland, were arrested by State troopers today in connection with a series of systematic thefts from railway express cars. This brought to 11 the number under arrest in Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Corby, Pa., in connection with the same case.

WOMAN GIVEN LIFE IN BOY'S TUB DEATH

Mrs. Stull Again Convicted in Scalding of Stepson, 9; Sentence Stayed.

Lewisburg, W. Va., Jan. 21 (A.P.). Mrs. Minnie Stull once again heard a life sentence in prison imposed upon her today for the death of her stepson.

After an hour and 45 minutes' deliberation, a Greenbrier County jury convicted the 31-year-old Princeton widow of first degree murder for the fatal scalding of 9-year-old Mickey in a tub of water.

Pale, but without expression, she sat in an armchair as Judge Summers H. Sharp pronounced the life sentence, mandatory under the verdict which recommended mercy.

Almost a year ago, Mrs. Stull heard Judge George L. Dillard, in Mercer County, sentence her to prison for life, but that sentence was suspended when she was granted a new trial and a change of venue to Greenbrier County. A trial was held here in December, but the jury disagreed.

Judge Sharp allowed a 60-day stay of sentence and the widow will remain in jail here during that time. Defense counsel will decide later if they will appeal to the supreme court.

Lutheran Council Renames Leaders

Dr. Brandelle Is Reelected President at National Conference.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dr. G. A. Brandelle, of Rock Island, Ill., was reelected president of the National Lutheran Council at its annual meeting today. He is president of the Augustana Synod of the church.

Other officers were also reelected.

The Rev. Dr. L. W. Boe, president of St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., was the principal speaker tonight at a dinner tendered the council by the New York Lutheran Ministers Association. A guest of honor was the Rev. Dr. G. U. Werner, of New York, said to be the oldest Protestant clergyman in point of service in the United States.

Marine King to Tell How He Ruled Isle

Faustin Wirkus to Relate Experiences Before Geographic Society.

"The White King of La Gonave," the American Marine Corps sergeant who was made imperial ruler of an island off the coast of Haiti, will relate his experiences before the National Geographic Society in the Washington Auditorium this evening. Faustin Wirkus, who for three years lived a story-book existence in a tropical Black Eden, has a motion picture record of the primitive life of La Gonave, which shows the native ceremonies and the strange voodoo dances of descendants of black slaves brought over by slavers from Africa. These people still cling to ancient tribal superstitions and beliefs.

As King Faustin II, Sergt. Wirkus was crowned with full voodoo rites. Wirkus had been appointed as the governing official of the island by his superiors in the Marine Corps, but when he found he could maintain law and order better as a king than as a soldier, he accepted the role thrust upon him. His motion pictures reveal for the first time the much-discussed voodoo dance, which Polynices says is "as old as Africa."

Convict Repudiates Death Confession

9-Month-Old Lima, Ohio, Murder Case Reopened; 2 Others Involved.

Lima, Ohio, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—An hour after his return to Lima from the Mansfield Reformatory, Lloyd Zeigler, 19-year-old convict, tonight repudiated his alleged confession of the slaying nine months ago of Thelma Woods, 17, and her companion, Earl Truesdale, 21, whose bodies were thrown into a quarry pool and weighted down with rocks.

Returned to city prison here to face two youths he was alleged to have named as accomplices, Zeigler denied any participation in the killings and said he had no information to give officials about the crime.

County Prosecutor Elmer Botkins returned Zeigler, after the convict was alleged to have admitted killing Truesdale because of jealousy and then slaying Miss Woods because of fear she would reveal the crime. Truesdale and Miss Woods appeared following a Memorial Day dance and a few days later their abandoned automobile was found on the brink of the quarry pool, from which their bodies were subsequently removed.

British Birth Rate Falls.

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The lowest birth rate ever recorded in Great Britain was disclosed today in provisional statistics for last year. It was 15.8 births per 1,000 of population, which is 0.5 per 1,000 below the previous lowest figure, recorded in 1929-1930. The death rate was 12.3 per 1,000, which is 0.9 above 1930.

Gen. Von Lyncker, Once Aid to Kaiser, Is Dead

Potsdam, Germany, Jan. 21 (A.P.). Gen. Baron Mortiz von Lyncker, once chief of Former Kaiser Wilhelm's military cabinet, died today at the age of 78. In 1927, he quarreled violently with the late Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz, who in his memoirs accused Gen. von Lyncker of having influenced the Kaiser banefully during the World War.

Gen. von Lyncker was appointed chief of the Imperial German military cabinet in 1908, and occupied that important post through the war days, until July 30, 1918, when he retired because of ill health.

POSTAL TAXATION.

Postal rate changes recommended by the Postoffice Department may become the most controversial item in the program of higher taxes. The House ways and means committee has properly refused to consider the postal rate structure on the ground that such action would encroach upon the function of the committee on postoffices and post roads. Before the latter body the proposed increase in postage rates doubtless will be considered on its merits, and not as a measure of taxation.

Postmaster General Brown advocates a 3-cent stamp for first-class letters. A short time ago he was asking that the rate be increased from 2 cents to only 2½ cents. Both suggestions have met with hostile response. The general attitude is that expressed by Shairman Mead of the postoffice and post roads committee. It would be unfair for Congress to levy a tax of $100,000,000 per year upon the users of the first-class mails when that branch of the postoffice service already shows a profit.

The Postoffice Department is a business organization. As such it should be self-supporting. But there is no reason why excessive postage should be charged for first-class mail to make up for the deficit in handling other classes. The effect of that policy is to subsidize one class of mail users for the benefit of another. Why does not the department recommend an increased rate scale that would distribute the costs of the postal service in such a way that each branch would pay its own expenses? Subsidies to air and ocean mail carriers and franked mail can properly be charged only against the general funds of the Government.

Parcel post rates are kept low because the department fears competition from private enterprise. If private agencies can render this service more economically and efficiently than the Postoffice Department why should they not be allowed to do so? It is unfair for the Government to maintain a great transportation business, favoring mail-order houses, at less than its actual cost of operation. By all means this branch of the service should be put upon a sound business foundation. No branch of the Government should be allowed to favor one class of domestic business above another.

Let the postoffice committees of both houses take up this problem with a view to adjusting only those postal rates that are now inadequate. The postoffice system should not be used as a tax collecting agency. Nor should it continue to be a heavy drain upon revenue from other sources.

PROCEED WITH THE INQUIRY.

The Senate made itself ridiculous when it recalled the order issued to the Tariff Commission to investigate the effect of the depreciation of currencies and international exchange upon American commerce. On Tuesday the Senate adopted a resolution by Senator Reed to that effect without debate. On Wednesday a squabble ensued and the old Democratic-insurgent coalition forced a recall of the order.

Only one reason prompted the coalition to stop this inquiry. It was afraid that if the facts were known there would be justification for higher tariffs on some commodities. Hence, members of the coalition voted to keep Congress and the people in ignorance on this important matter. This is a typical sample of the "statesmanship" in which the Senate coalition indulges.

Fortunately, the Tariff Commission has already been looking into this matter, and a formal investigation has been ordered. The commission can act on its own initiative without instructions from the Senate. By all means it should proceed with this inquiry.

The reaction of world trade to currency depreciation is not yet clearly established, except in one respect. Unstable currency has become a chief cause of commercial and financial uncertainty. Nations can not trade freely when the currency of one or both of them is constantly fluctuating. Hence their foreign trade is likely to suffer in spite of the fact that depreciated currency gives exporters a greater spread between domestic costs and foreign selling prices.

When England went off the gold standard, followed by the Scandinavian countries and Finland, strict supervision of exchange transactions became general. The Department of Commerce reports that these measures have had a disastrous effect on foreign trade. In some instances commercial relations between countries have come to a complete standstill.

The advantages which Great Britain hoped to gain by suspending the gold standard have not materialized. During the first eleven months of 1931 imports declined 18 per cent and exports 33 per cent. There has been little change in Britain's balance of trade. It appears that the advantages of producing at temporarily lower costs have been offset by the disadvantages of trading abroad with the depreciated and fluctuating pound sterling.

But no one knows what undercurrents may be developing in foreign trade as a result of currency depreciation. It is well to have the subject fully investigated. Congress ought not to allow any country to defeat the American protective system, even temporarily, by the manipulation of currency values. An inquiry into the relationship between the depreciation of currency and tariff rates, together with the disadvantages of transacting foreign trade with unstable money, should encourage all countries whose currencies have depreciated to return to the gold standard at the earliest possible date.

ROOSEVELT'S FARM POLICY.

Gov. Roosevelt's agricultural policy is attracting a good deal of attention because he is the leading Democratic candidate for the presidential nomination. The plan which he has just recommended to the New York Legislature may become a campaign issue of foremost importance.

The central theme around which Gov. Roosevelt has built his policy is that there must be a readjustment of population so that more people will live closer to the soil. He advocates a "back-to-the-farm" movement, without using those precise words, thereby coming into a rather sharp clash with the Department of Agriculture in Washington. In a special message to the Legislature Gov. Roosevelt set forth a $3,500,000 program, including the construction of farm-to-market roads and the establishment of rural credit agencies to "get the farmer out of the mud." But these are only items in his larger project to redistribute population in rural areas.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde seldom delivers a public address without issuing a warning to farmers against the menace of overproduction. Speaking before the New York Agricultural Society, on the same program with Gov. Roosevelt, he urged the retirement from cultivation of "lands which the pioneer subdued, but which stubbornly refuse to yield to his grandchildren a reasonable standard of living." "The cure for overproduction," he said, "is production balanced to market demand." Farmers must unite in limiting their crops to the Nation's needs.

It is needless to point out that the Roosevelt movement to induce people to move out of the cities and resume agricultural pursuits is incompatible with the attempt of the Government to curtail production. Farmers must cultivate their land or starve. A larger number of farmers means larger crops and greater overproduction. How will Gov. Roosevelt deal with this problem?

It is intimated that he has in mind a wide diversification of crops. There are, for example, a considerable number of essential commodities that can be produced in this country which are now supplied from abroad. With tariff protection domestic crops might be substituted for as much as $300,000,000 worth of agricultural imports. Does Gov. Roosevelt, then, favor a broad protective tariff for agriculture?

At present his agricultural policy is incomplete. He has nothing to fill in the gap of overproduction. If the governor comes actively into national politics he will be expected to define more fully his attitude toward agriculture, and particularly the agricultural tariff.

DR. KOO'S NEW POST.

Just before the resignation of the Chinese Nationalist government Dr. Wellington Koo was appointed to the office of foreign minister. The Nanking regime did not survive to enjoy the services of this distinguished scholar, but now another most important post has been assigned to him, that of China's representative on the League of Nation's committee that will make a general investigation in Manchuria next month. Dr. Koo will be confronted by a situation requiring all the diplomacy and intelligence for which he is noted.

Dr. Koo's remarkable and versatile career make him peculiarly fitted for the delicate task before him. As a student at Columbia University he made a record which would have been an achievement even for an American-born youth. He won a Phi Beta Kappa key while engaging in a variety of activities outside the regular studies. He was an intercollegiate debater, ran a magazine for Chinese students in America and besides became editor in chief of Columbia's daily newspaper, the Spectator.

After his graduation in 1909 Dr. Koo took his Ph. D. before returning to China to act as English secretary to President Yuan Shi-Kai. He was later made councilor in the foreign office, and in 1915 was sent as Minister to Washington, at the age of 29, the youngest foreign diplomat of ministerial rank who ever served in Washington. He was later transferred to London. At the peace conference he acted as his country's plenipotentiary, and on his return to China became minister of foreign affairs, minister of finance and then prime minister and minister of foreign affairs.

It is one of Wellington Koo's characteristics that he usually shoulders the work that two or three men might ordinarily undertake. Under present conditions his activities in China probably offer no exception to this practice. In connection with the work of the league committee his incomparable skill will prove a valuable asset in seeing that China's case is fully and fairly presented for consideration.

MEASURING COSMIC RAYS.

A world-wide study of the cosmic ray is to be undertaken by Arthur H. Comptop, of the University of Chicago. With the assistance of an international organization Prof. Compton will record the presence of the rays at sea level, in the depths of the sea, and, by means of balloons equipped with automatic recorders, he will measure shocks from the rays at heights greater than those attained by Piccard. One of the questions which the experiments will seek to answer is the source of the cosmic rays.

According to Eddington, the rays are emitted as matter is torn apart and reformed within the stars. When the rays reach the outer atmospheric rind they lose much of their energy and become softer and less penetrating in their journey through space, reaching the world in a changed state, more like the laboratory X-rays. The Abbe Lemaitre, however, believes the stars are born without atmosphere, the atmosphere evolving after the escape of the cosmic rays. This happened some ten thousand million years ago. As the abbe believes in a closed universe, similar to the Einstein conception, he concludes there is no escape for the primitive rays shot forth at the birth of the stars. If the abbe is right, then the stars originated in a single atom of terrific weight. The star would be formed by the superradioactive disintegration of its original atom. Creation would be the process of radioactivity on a colossal scale, and the cosmic rays would be fossil light.

Millikan produces evidence to show that the rays are waves, similar to the gamma rays of radium, but a hundred times more powerful. Most physicists agree with him, yet Bothe and Kolhorster show important evidence of the rays being fast electrons. If this last theory is correct the rays will be thicker around the earth's lines of magnetic force, which would mean they would be abundant near the poles and scarcer about the Equator. If the theory is incorrect the rays will probably be equally distributed at all thirteen stations at which the tests will be made.

Jeans and Eddington believe that energy is produced by the annihilation of matter; that as the stars dissipate themselves they release light and heat. Millikan, on the other hand, maintains that energy is released as matter is formed, and that the cosmic rays are the excess stuff left over from the building up of the atoms. It will be Compton's aim to settle the momentous questions which these eminent scientists have raised.

IMPROVING ON NATURE.

Seven years ago Col. William Boyce Thompson founded an institute at Yonkers, N. Y., to serve the plant world much as the Rockefeller Institute serves mankind. Though it was not with the primary motive of producing opportunist results, the foundation has made numerous discoveries of economic value. One of its important studies has been in regard to the germination of seeds. Normally seeds require a period of ripening after they are harvested. This time may run into years, as in the case of rose seeds, which require from five to seven years for stratification before they are ready to germinate. The institute discovered that this process can be greatly accelerated by maintaining the seeds at an even temperature. By keeping rose seeds at a constant temperature of 41 degrees they will germinate in 140 days.

Germination is also aided by chemical treatment. In the case of potatoes, seed treated with ethylene chlorhydrin vapors produced vines two feet high, bearing tubers, before the untreated stock appeared above the ground. The process has made possible the transporting of Northern seed, where the hardiest tubers are found, to the South for a second crop during the same season.

A definite contribution has come from the studies of the holly tree. The destruction of this lovely growth was threatening its extinction. During the winter holiday season cutters carried away great quantities of the holly, which requires five to ten years before it begins to bear berries. The institute found that by proper treatment holly cuttings could be made to bear an abundance of bright berries in ten months. This makes it possible for nurserymen throughout the country to provide a sufficient crop for the holiday season.

Experiment in continuous light on plants has revealed that many varieties will work 24 hours a day. Clover, for example, will blossom in 35 days when supplied with continuous light, as compared with several months required in the fields. The tomato, however, requires some time for rest, and will not work over seventeen to nineteen hours a day. For inexpensive crops this method is impractical, but for many hothouse products, and especially for expensive flowers, it is valuable. Many of the flowers require darkness for development, and in such cases artificial darkness is provided in the degree which is proper for their rapid maturity. A great field of research is opened by the discoveries already made in the application of light and heat in plant cultivation.

THE EVERLASTING FLOWERS.

The everlasting flower is grown
In many a garden. Springtime sown
It blossoms in the early fall
And has no fear of death at all.

Its pink and yellow petals feel
Like highly lacquered flakes of steel
Which, if you run your finger round,
Produce a strange metallic sound.

These everlasting flowers defy
The death that other blossoms die.
Stuck in an urn the winter through
They hold their shape and color, too.

They gather dust like statues old
And rattle when the wind blows cold,
Till tired of seeing them about
At last the housewife throws them out.

True charms are delicately made,
The loveliest blosoms soonest fade;
We pass blooms everlasting by
To cherish those we know must die.

While Money Talks, Conscience Seldom Is So Rude as to Interrupt

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE beginning of all progress, as you know, is discontent.

The ability to feel shame is one of Nature's greatest gifts to man, for it is shame that prompts him to overcome his weaknesses and correct his faults.

No man can aspire to higher things while content as he is. So long as he has grace to feel ashamed, he may be salvaged from the very gutter; when the capacity for shame is gone, all hope of reformation is gone with it.

It oftens happens that the ability to feel shame is lost by reason of prosperity. As a man considers himself at peace with God because he is at peace with himself, so he will be pleased with himself because he is pleased with his good fortune.

He no longer sees himself as he is, for his vision is fixed on his pocketbook. No matter what he does, he still feels respectable, for he attributes to his own merit the personal and public respect won by his purse. Whatever its virtues may be, prosperity is not an aid to introspection.

Among the thousands who lost their pose of righteousness along with their other goods in the collapse of market values was a certain physician.

In the midst of prosperity he was a devout churchman whose chief delight was to lecture younger men on the evil of their way and bask in the warm approval of the righteous. He was a good example.

But when his money was gone and much of his community standing with it, he was revealed as another man. He began to drink. He saved a few dollars by legal tricks one degree short of knavery. The vilest of blasphemy began to garnish his ordinary conversation.

Can misfortune so change a man's character? No; it merely destroyed a pose. In this case there was no soundness of character, but only a fair-weather religion and a complacent egotism based on the assumption that wealth is proof of divine approval and may be safeguarded by showing proper respect to Providence.

The good doctor has gained something. With his money out of the way he can see himself as he is. Prosperity and righteousness no longer seem identical. And a reawakened capacity for discontent may in time reveal to him the need of a better character.

In the light of misfortune many a man awakes to discover that he has lost the world and saved his soul.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Virginia Democrat Says Rank and File of His Party in the South Are Now Opposed to Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that Dr. A. J. Barton, chairman of the executive committee of the Antisaloon League and director of the public morals of the Democrats of the South, has told the world what Dixie will do in the 1932 election, all that remains for our Democratic leaders to do in order to assure overwhelming victory in November is to follow strictly the dictation of this forecaster of future events.

The writer happens to be a Southern Democrat, also a member and officer of the Baptist Church, to which faith Dr. Barton belongs. It also happens that I am a strong believer in temperance, as are most Southerners. Furthermore, I once believed in and worked for the enactment of the eighteenth amendment.

The results, bad as they are, have not changed my views one iota regarding the great need for temperance, but they have opened my eyes to the fact that prohibition in its present form does not prohibit and has not even remotely accomplished the things claimed for it. Consequently, I have reluctantly changed from a prohibitionist and henceforth will work and vote for real temperance. I can assure Dr. Barton that, while the South holds him in high esteem, as a clergyman and as a man, the rank and file of the thinking people below the Mason-Dixon line now disagree 100 per cent with his views on prohibition and his forecast as to how the Democrats there will vote in 1932.

Incidentally, it may be added that Protestants are not in sympathy with the idea of using the churches to advance the candidacy of any person in either of the big political parties. They are anxious to live down and forget the sorry spectacle enacted in 1928 and are therefore in full accord with the admonition recently given in the address of Gov. Cox of Ohio.

Hypocrisy in Congress on Part of Men Who Are Bound to Support Law and Then Violate It.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What funny people the politicians are. Here is one, according to report in The Post, trying to fashion a new definition for hypocrisy. This orator asks citizens to unite in eliminating the hypocrisy which he says is the "controlling element in our Government," and then goes on to apply his hypocrisy notion to the prohibition laws. This is the first time I was ever informed there is hypocrisy hidden in the eighteenth amendment or the Volstead act.

Surely no one will attempt to claim that the statutes in question are false or dishonest; for they were made in Congress, by members of Congress, the amendment being ratified in legal manner by the States. It seems to me that if hypocrisy rests anywhere it is on the shoulders of those who fail to enforce the laws and those who openly defy them.

There are men in both houses of Congress and in other branches of the Government who have taken oath to support the Constitution and laws; who hold their jobs and draw down salaries provided by the taxation of the people, and not only do not keep that oath, but are engaged in flagrant opposition to these laws. It seems to me that the man in Congress who finds he cannot keep his oath of office should resign and get out.

Forest Fires From Cigarettes Delay and Endanger Motor Traffic in Florida.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of your Idaho correspondents ponited out a few months ago the extensive damage lighted cigarettes caused by starting forest fires in the Western United States. On a trip to Florida during December I was impressed with the extent of forest fires along the route.

Between Charleston and Daytona Beach, a distance of nearly 400 miles, the highway passes through a seemingly interminable forest. The eighty-mile stretch from Brunswick, Ga., to Jacksonville runs through a practically unbroken woods. The dry grass and underbrush were on fire in many places. Dense smoke held up traffic.

By requiring motorists to surrender tobacco and matches before entering forests valuable timber land could be preserved and motor traffic would be less subject to the delay and danger.

WILSON IS DEFENDED ON LOANS TO EUROPE

Senator Glass Replies to Statement Made by Secretary Hyde.

(Associated Press.)

An assertion by Secretary Hyde that the Wilson administration's post-armistice loans to Europe were illegal yesterday aroused Senator Glass, of Virginia, to an emphatic denial and an ardent defense of the man under whom he served as Secretary of the Treasury.

The slight but dynamic Virginian shouted to an intent and well-filled Senate chamber that "in spirit and in text the statement of the Secretary of Agriculture is false from beginning to end." In addition, he quoted a letter from Secretary Mellon saying "neither the Treasury nor the world War Foreign Debt Commission has ever taken the position" that the loans were "without authority of law."

Reads Hoover Letter.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, interrupted Glass to read a statement made by Herbert Hoover in January, 1920, in the closing days of the Wilson administration opposing further loans to Europe.

Glass heatedly replied that this was "irrelevant" and said that he himself as Secretary of the Treasury at that time had "more succinctly and emphatically" declared against additional help to Europe.

"The distinguished Secretary of Agriculture," said Glass, "had he desired to be informed rather than eager to project this partisan fabrication, might have turned to the head of the Cabinet table and asked the President if he regarded the $236,865,000 loaned in the postarmistice period to be expended under his administration as made in contravention of the laws of the Congress, and that is but one example of loans made in discharge of prior commitments, and a few other loans made outright without prior commitments but within the spirit and purview of the acts of Congress."

Loans Called Illegal.

Hyde's statement was made recently in a speech and Glass said he had repeated it twice since over the radio. Hyde said that Woodrow Wilson and two of his Secretaries of the Treasury, William Gibbs McAdoo and Glass, had made the loans after the armistice "without legal right."

Glass quoted Secretary Mellon as saying that the war did not actually end until 1921, when the treaty of peace was signed, and that the War Debt Commission had held to that policy.

After terming Hyde's assertion false, Glass said the Secretary of Agriculture "might easily have ascertained the facts had he been as cautious to observe the truth as he was swift to misrepresent the facts."

The letter of Secretary Mellon to Senator Glass, dated January 19, 1932, concluded:

"I can definitely advise you that neither the Treasury nor the World War Foreign Debt Commission has ever taken the position that the acquisition of any obligation from a foreign government, either for cash advances made under the authority of the Liberty bonds acts to which you refer or for surplus and relief supplies sold on credit under authority of various acts of Congress, was without authority of law."

"Thus," Glass added, "the Secretary of Agriculture might easily have informed himself by a simple inquiry across the Cabinet table, addressed to the member of the Cabinet best informed on this subject."

Car Owners Attack Proposed New Tax

Poll of Organizations in District Planned by Autoists' Group.

Opposition to the tax on motor vehicles and parts, as proposed in a bill now before Congress, was expressed yesterday at a meeting of the board of governors of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Owners Association of the District of Columbia, held in the United States Chamber of Commerce.

It was announced that a poll of various local organizations would be taken in an effort to learn general sentiment and promote cooperation between truck and bus operators and other concerns opposed to the bill.

John W. Hardell presided at the meeting. Others present included Mark Lansburgh, W. Spencer Brenizer, Paul Lum, Joseph B. Trew, P. R. Bailey, A. Biedermann, C. E. Fries, W. N. DeNeale, Ford Young, L. P. Field, Charles B. Buck, Charles P. Maloney and Francis J. Kane.

Ruling on Incomes Is Made for Banks

Depreciated Stocks May Be Charged Off Books of Institutions.

(Associated Press.)

National banks will be permitted to deduct from their gross income the value of depreciated securities which bank examiners have required them to charge off of their assets.

The Internal Revenue Bureau announced yesterday the national bank authorities had adopted a policy of requiring the banks at each examination to write off the reduced values on bonds, mortgages and notes. At present the banks are not allowed to deduct these losses until after the securities are sold.

The ruling, however, applies only to securities which have been ordered charged off the national bank assets by the examiners and does not apply to those the value of which has been affected by market fluctuations.

Man Gets Five Years In Attempted Holdup

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Louis Pettie, 22, of Birmingham, Ala., was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary today for the attempted holdup of a Valley pike filling station near here in December.

Flood Converts 200 Miles Of Mississippi Into Lake

Writer Surveys Ruined Area in Plane; Conditions Grow Worse.

(Editor's note—Merrill E. Compton, United Press staff writer, rode the American Airways southbound liner from Memphis to Jackson yesterday, over a 200-mile stretch of flooded terrain. The following account of his observations of the stricken area was written upon his arrival in Jackson.)

By MERRILL E. COMPTON.

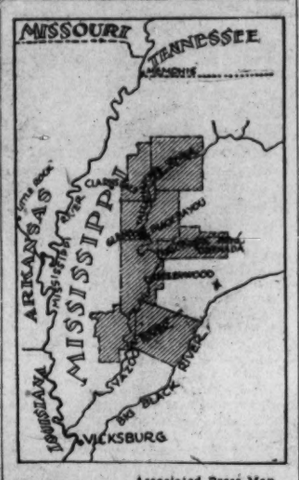
Jackson, Miss., Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Flood waters lay like a blight across the face of northern Mississippi today. The Mississippi River's network of tributaries has converted the land into a desolate lake.

There is hunger and want and despair. It was all too apparent as we roared down across the wastes, flying directly south on the 200-mile stretch between Memphis and Jackson. The flight, with Pilots Don Ator and Lee McBride alternating at the controls, took us a little more than two hours.

Town after town reeled by beneath us. Time and again people waved and signaled. It was obvious that they wanted help—that the muddy waters are climbing still higher.

Save for brief intervals, the entire flight was over flooded areas. Conditions seemed more serious as we penetrated deeper into the South. Below Greenwood, which is approximately the half-way mark, few plantation houses stood on dry ground.

We passed over Curtis Station, 55 miles from Memphis, and a few minutes later spied a plantation. A man and a boy stood motionless in the yard, looking at our plane. We circled and saw that the house, the barn and the sheds were standing in high water. No roads were open—even visible—near the plantation.



Associated Press Map.

"He'll not get out," Pilot McBride scribbled on a note pad, "unless he has a boat. He probably has none. He and his family are in a bad way."

That was only one of scores of similar sights. Frequently, as we passed the farms and plantations and small settlements, the stricken people ran about waving coats, blankets, sheets and even flags. Many of them seemed excited.

Almost every town of any size we passed seemed to have a refugee camp established on high ground. We saw many small boats, most of them loaded with people, apparently having been rescued from inundated homes and transported to the camps.

U. S. TO SPURN ALLIANCE WITH FRANCE TO DISARM

on security in an official source was taken to reflect the Government's views. In that connection, it was noted there was no reference in the official quarter to the United States becoming a military ally of France for defense purposes. This had been suggested in the Chamber of Deputies earlier in the day by Pierre Foregot, former cabinet minister.

Determination of Washington to steer away from any involvement in European affairs has become decidedly pronounced.

Consequently, although no official views were forthcoming, the disposition here was not to take the Foregot proposal seriously.

Nor was there any expectation that the Paris government will accede to his suggestion that this country be approached on it.

It was recalled that much talk of French needs for a "security" pact reached these shores from there as Premier Laval headed across on his visit to President Hoover. But, whatever he had on mind when he left France, by the time he arrived it was so plain that any such treaty was impossible that he did not bring the subject up.

Some surprise was stirred by last night's dispatch on the intentions of France as to a naval arms slash. The Geneva conference is open for any efforts toward reduction, but this Government does not want the effort to limit land arms to be hampered.

At the same time, it would gladly cooperate on efforts for France and Italy to get together on naval matters, which the left unsettled at the London conference.

The United States, as far as its own sea forces are concerned, is willing to reduce its tonnage to a level comparative with that of other nations—no matter how low. However, it opposes a reduction in size of battleships below the 35,000-ton limit set by the Washington agreement. These are considered a necessary part of America's defensive weapons because of long coast lines and far-flung possessions.

The opinion in Washington is that the question of reducing their size will not come up at the Geneva conference, since no nation in the present financial situation desires to build.

M. Foregot suggested that for a pact for the United States and France to help each other if attacked his country might cut her armaments 25 per cent. If argument along this line is advanced at the Geneva conference, it can be stated now that the American delegation will resist.

Even if it were conceivable that the Hoover administration would sanction a Franco-American treaty, the Senate certainly could be expected to reject it. Yesterday afternoon, for example, reaction in senatorial quarters to talk of a pact was that it is absurd.

U. S. ATTITUDE HIT AS LAVAL SEEKS DEBT POLICY SUPPORT

assistance with the United States was made by Deputy Forgeot in a speech in which he recalled that America stepped in during the war and predicted she might do so again.

"In the face of a Germany filled with a desire for revenge," he said, "the best asset France could have would be the defensive aid of the United States."

Declaring America's signature on such a pact would be "an enormous step on the road to peace," M. Forgeot inquired: "Why not ask her to do it?" and the deputies applauded him.

"The United States interrogated us on our intentions," he continued. "Why not ask them on theirs? One clear word would dispel these tragic misunderstandings. It is to be hoped that America understands that something must be done."

Parley Delay Aids.

Favorable groundwork for the Laval appeal for confidence was laid by the postponement of the Lausanne reparations conference. News that Great Britain had decided it was impossible to open the conference Monday was well received in official circles and in the press.

Expectations in informed quarters were that unless the British disagreed the conference would be delayed until just before the end of the Hoover moratorium, June 30.

The premier announced he would take possession of the foreign office this morning—an announcement interpreted as indicating he expected the chamber to give him his vote of confidence.

Provisional Navy Cut Is Favored by French

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Paris, Jan. 21.—When France sits in at the disarmament conference next month, the Associated Press was informed today in an official source, her delegates will offer to participate in reduction of naval armaments on condition that there is an acceptable preliminary accord fixing the ratio of naval forces with regard to the geographical needs of the several powers.

This would mean first that France and Italy would have to reach an agreement concerning their respective forces, an accord which they have not yet been able to achieve.

The French delegation will be prepared to approve any project for reducing the size of battleships as fixed by the Washington conference, but France still believes that the submarine is the best weapon for the defense of her coast.

It is the French thesis that there can be important reductions in naval or other arms only if security is guaranteed. And by security, France means a guarantee of assistance for a nation which is attacked, and of punishment for the aggressor.

Movie Industry Protests Admission Tax as Menace

(Associated Press.)

The motion picture theater industry yesterday vigorously protested against restoration of the war-time admission taxes on exhibitors.

At hearings before the House ways and means committee, C. C. Pettijohn, of New York, general counsel for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., opposed the tax on behalf of the motion picture industry. Thirty other representatives of motion picture, amusement park, baseball, circus, actors, beaches and similar organizations joined in the protest.

The administration has proposed a 10 per cent tax on all admissions above 10 cents.

Ed Kuy Kendall, of Columbus, Miss., representing the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America in Mississippi, Oklahoma and Tennessee, opposed "any kind of a discriminatory tax on any kind of amusements."

He said admission prices in the smaller towns "are down to the danger point."

Pettijohn said during the present economic situation the motion picture business was best in Washington, D. C., second best in Baltimore, and third best in Seattle.

Senator Trammell (Democrat), Florida, said in a statement that he is "emphatically opposed to the Federal Government imposing further taxes upon the automobile and gasoline."

Federal Employes Entertain Gen. Hines

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, and Representatives Frank Oliver, of New York; Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, and Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, were guests of honor last night at an entertainment given by the veterans' administration branch of the National Federation of Federal Employes in the ballroom of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Arrangements for the affair were completed by D. R. Glass, Harry Taylor, Mrs. M. A. Coyne, Miss M. Redeker, Mrs. Albra Reising, Mrs. Doris Conlyn, Dr. J. R. Ernst, Miss Ruby Martin, Miss Jean Galt, and Miss Ina Russell.

MOTORDOM TO PLAN FIGHT ON TAX TODAY

Leaders of Industry Gather Here to Map Campaign Against House Bill.

Motordom's mightiest men today will set themselves to the task of whipping into final shape their campaign to convince the House Ways and Means Committee that a special excise tax on motor vehicles, parts and accessories at this time would be ruinous to hopes for an early end of the depression. Few prominent motor company executives will be missing when the group gathers at 10 o'clock this morning in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building.

In addition to the leading car manufacturers, others at the session will include motor car dealers from all parts of the country and leaders of the steel, rubber, petroleum, textile and other industries chiefly, or largely, dependent upon the automobile industry for their prosperity.

With this aggregation of noted figures arriving in Washington last night, the National Capital has become the headquarters of the country's foremost manufacturing enterprise.

Would Cut Sales.

Frankly discussing their situation, the Nation's car makers pointed out that in their efforts to give employment to as many as possible during recent months, they have built up large inventories of parts in preparation for a renewed demand in car buying. If these can not now be assembled into finished cars, a prospect involved in the threatened imposition of an excise tax, factory employment must be curtailed at a time when it is affording immeasurable relief, leaders of the industry say.

The tax will mean an increase in car prices counterbalancing in many cases the decreases achieved by the industry as an inducement to renewed buying. Unimpeded by such a levy, the manufacturers are convinced the motor industry now is in a position to lead the country out of its besetting economic difficulties.

The presentation of the motor industry's position on the subject of the proposed tax, which would be at a rate of 5 per cent on passenger cars, 3 per cent on trucks, and 2½ per cent on parts and accessories, will be made tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The spokesman will be George M. Graham, vice president of the Rockne Motors Corporations, on behalf of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Present also at the hearing will be the following leaders of the industry:

Leaders to Attend.

A. J. Brosseau, president, Mack Trucks, Inc.; Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the board, Hudson Motor Car Co.; E. L. Cord, president, Auburn Automobile Co.; Alvan Macauley, president, Packard Motor Car Co.; Charles W. Nash, president, Nash Motors Co.; Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president, General Motors Corporation; Alfred H. Swayne, General Motors Corporation; B. E. Hutchinson, vice president and treasurer, Chrysler Corporation; Paul G. Also Paul Seiler, president, General Motors Truck Corporation; M. L. Pulcher, president, Federal Motor Truck Corporation; T. R. Dahl, vice president, White Motor Co.; W. C. Cowling, Ford Motor Co.

The motoring public, which would be so directly affected by an addition to the billion dollars of taxes it already pays annually, will be represented before the committee by Thomas P. Henry, president, and Sidney Waldon, chairman of the taxation committee, American Automobile Association, and J. Borton Weeks, president, American Motorists Association.

Other Representatives.

P. W. A. Vesper, treasurer, National Automobile Dealers Association, will present the contentions of the dealers, many of whom will be present from various parts of the country. Allied industries will be represented by J. O. Tew, president, Rubber Manufacturers Association; T. W. Litchfield, Litchfield Rubber Co.; Harvey Firestone, jr., Firestone Rubber Co.; F. B. Davis, jr., vice president, Rubber Manufacturers Association; William O'Neill, General Tire & Rubber Co.; W. H. Lalley, Kelly-Springfield Tire Co.

Notes Cheer 2 Delegates On Way to Arms Parley

S. S. President Harding, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Dr. Mary Emma Woolley and Senator Claude A. Swanson, American delegates en route to the world disarmament conference at Geneva, occupied themselves today in reading communications of good wishes from friends and peace organizations in many parts of the country.

They are being accompanied by ten technical advisers from the Departments of State, Navy and War and three secretaries, all of whom are preparing materials which they expect to use at the parley. In the absence of the three other delegates, who will sail later, no official meetings will be held during the voyage.

and the premier's hand was upheld by a vote of 285 to 5.

"I'm tired of this business," the premier declared, "and I'm going to give them back as good as they sent. This anarchist movement started outside Spain, but I am going to finish it here.

"We have rounded up about 50 of their leaders. Tonight they are in jail. Tomorrow they will be on the way to the colonies to cool their heels."

The premier said the disorders at Manresa were intended to concentrate the government's attention there while more serious assaults were made elsewhere.

In Barcelona numerous persons suspected of being connected with the uprising were rounded up by the police. A quantity of pamphlets proclaiming the "start of a social revolution throughout Spain," and urging the workers to take over power in towns and cities, was seized.

Army and civil guard detachments poured in on the area of unrest from Saragossa, Gerona, Lerida and other nearby towns. Two battalions of light infantry, a squadron of cavalry and a battery of artillery were put in the field. Replacement troops were sent out from Madrid to take over the garrisons at Saragossa and other cities from which units had been sent against the strikers.

CARRIE CATT QUITS PEACE LEADERSHIP

Still Will Work for Goal of Cause and Cure of War Society.

(Associated Press.)

Carrie Chapman Catt, feeling that "one can't go on forever," stepped from the driver's seat yesterday in the national organization she formed to further one of two causes with which her name is linked around the world.

"I want to give up general responsibility for everything that comes up," she said. But she will continue speaking occasionally.

At the insistence of the 73-year-old woman's suffrage and world peace leader, the nominating committee of the national conference on the cause and cure of war returned a slate leaving off the "chairman" which has stood for seven years before the name of Mrs. Catt.

Mentally vigorous but leaning on a polished cane, the woman who years ago braved hostile public opinion for votes for women smiled with satisfaction.

"Like every reformer—I was born a reformer—I know my cause will win. Final peace may come rather quickly, or it may come slowly. I never doubted the outcome of the suffrage movement, and I feel the same about peace."

It was this stalwart who embarked on the suffrage cause when she was a girl of 19. Educated in Wisconsin and at Ames College, Iowa, she taught school before forming the National American Woman's Suffrage Association.

She stumped for suffrage through the Far West before that cause attained respectability. She appeared before legislative committees both here and in State capitals perhaps more than any other suffrage leader.

That goal attained, she looked around for something else to work for and "chose peace and decided to stick to it."

Now, twice widowed, with whitened hair, but with a still strong Western voice, she lives in quiet at New Rochelle, N. Y. She devotes hours to reading and has a garden. She takes long drives.

3 Policemen Escorting Briand for Rest Hurt

Paris, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Retiring Foreign Minister Briand has arrived safely at his country home at Cocherel to recuperate from an illness which necessitated turning in his portfolio, the prefecture of police announced tonight.

On the way three policemen were hurt near Mantes when the car in which they were escorting him turned over because of the breaking of the steering apparatus. The police car was following him at a considerable distance and it was doubtful whether he was aware of the accident.

Power Men Urged To Simplify Talks

George Smith Wants Public to Understand Speeches at Convention.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Public discussions of the power question should be couched in the language of Main street, so that the layman may understand, George Otis Smith, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, of Washington, told the power division of the American Society of Civil Engineers today.

He asked a larger interest in public questions on the part of the engineers, saying he based the appeal, not on sentiment, but on the fact that their trained talents would "bring more sense into political and social problems."

"Both politics and sociology sadly need more facts," he added. "What is needed is more facts and facts more clearly presented. Of course, back of public discussion must be quiet study of the issue." Technical discussions were concluded in various divisions of the society. Visits to bridges and other points of engineering interest will consume the rest of the week.

feared, and nothing that this country can do would change its already well-known position.

The temper of foreign parliaments and European political leaders is so delicate that the most extraordinary efforts are being made by this country to refrain from any official statement which might be capable of an ambiguous interpretation.

The text of the State Department's memorandum to England, France and Italy on December 29 created little comment when it was sent forward to these governments. In the light of recent discussions in the Chamber of Deputies and in German official circles, the memorandum looms as a new Monroe Doctrine. An exaggerated version appeared in one of the newspapers which are opposing Premier Laval and was promptly cabled here for confirmation. The three main points of the American memorandum are known to have been:

First. No interrelation between reparations and war debts;

Second. The capacity to pay was the principle on which the first debt agreements were made and will be for any further adjustments;

Waits European Settlement.

Third. The United States will take no step toward a reconsideration of intergovernmental obligations until Europe has first adjusted its own problems of reparations.

However, in addition to these three principal points there were certain corrolary arguments which were derived from the previous trinity. These might be expressed as

(a) The attitude of the American Congress will be the determining factor in any further application of systems of relief similar to the Hoover moratorium;

(b) The debt agreements made between the United States and its debtor nations were made individually and not en bloc. Any concerted action by European powers to drive a common bargain would be certain of American displeasure.

The visits of the British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay yesterday and also last week, are believed to have had a bearing on this angle of the situation. Great Britain has paid more than any other debtor nation to the United States and at a greater rate of interest than any other now prevailing. With a tax of approximately 3.306 per cent on its tremendous debts to this country, the British treasury has paid the United States $1,149,720,000. France profiting by a more lenient rate of interest, only 1.64 per cent, has only reimbursed this Government in the sum of $38,650,000.

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The British government's announcement that the Lausanne Reparations Conference will be postponed does not mean the conference has been abandoned, it was said today in official circles.

Preliminary work for the meeting is being continued, a competent spokesman said, and the government hopes the conference ultimately will be held and will prove to be successful.

No one in official quarters took seriously what one of the London newspapers described as a "new" plan to solve the reparations problem by allowing Germany to meet her obligations with railroad bonds instead of cash.

According to the published version of this report, the cabinet had given "sympathetic consideration" to the plan, but this was denied. The scheme is not new. It has been discussed on several occasions, most recently in Paris. One authority declared today it was a "dead issue."

It was announced Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald had been forced by the pressure of domestic affairs to decline with regret an invitation from Premier Laval of France for a discussion of mutual problems over the week-end.

She Missed the Party!

THE big dance she had looked forward to for weeks—and she had to stay at home because of the wretched pain so many women suffer periodically!

The lovely new gown, bought especially for the occasion, hung in the closet, unworn. Sadly she watched the rest of the crowd drive off to the dance while a lonely evening of pain and misery awaited her.

Small good it would do her to hear accounts of the party from the other girls next day—to hear that Jim was there, asking for her, and so sorry when they said she wasn't coming. She was the most disappointed girl in the world.

It's New

SHE COUD HAVE GONE

If she had known of Dr. Pierce's Payngon tablets, which quickly relieve women of their monthly pains without any harmful effects. Her pain would have vanished, and instead of crying herself to sleep, she could have been the happiest girl in town.

No woman needs to suffer when this new remedy can be bought at the nearest drug store for 50c; in a tidy metal box that fits into your purse.

Write to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., if you desire free medical advice. Just mention the fact that you are a user of Payngon.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

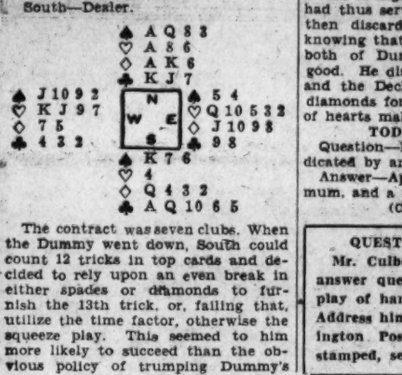
SQUEEZE THEM AND WIN.

SQUEEZE plays are a utilization of the time factor in Bridge. Often they are the only means by which a contract can be made. Thus a knowledge of squeeze plays and situations which may result in the forcing of the discard of winning cards by opponents is an essential part of the equipment of a good Bridge player.

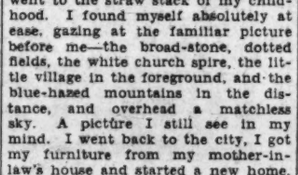
The thrill of compelling an opponent to discard an apparently winning card is one of the greatest that comes in the play of a game. The hand below, played by Mr. Sam Fry, jr., of New York, in a Duplicate game, illustrates a triple squeeze, through which both opponents were forced to discard and the Declarer enabled to take all the tricks—a contract which he had reached through rather ambitious bidding.

Both sides vulnerable.
South—Dealer.



The contract was seven clubs. When the Dummy went down, South could count 12 tricks in top cards and decided to rely upon an even break in either spades or diamonds to furnish the 13th trick, or, failing that, utilize the time factor, otherwise the squeeze play. This seemed to him more likely to succeed than the obvious policy of trumping Dummy's losing hearts, as, after all, he must depend for his success upon securing an additional trick in spades or diamonds. Winning the first diamond trick, he then led three rounds of clubs, thus disposing of the adverse trumps. Two more rounds of diamonds were taken and followed with three rounds of spades, and the Declarer then led his last two trumps.

When South led the final trump the situation was thus:



Upon the lead of the trump West was compelled to retain the Knave of spades, as otherwise Dummy's 8 would be high. The spade in Dummy had thus served its purpose and was then discarded. East was helpless, knowing that if he discarded a heart both of Dummy's hearts would be good. He discarded his last diamond and the Declarer then led the 4 of diamonds for the 12th trick, the Ace of hearts making the 13th.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question—How many tricks are indicated by an Opening bid of one?

Answer—Approximately 4, minimum, and a maximum of 7.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a 2-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FRANCES M'DONALD

The Infinite

DEAR Frances McDonald: Do you believe it possible for one in need of spiritual guidance to receive it from nature and universal beauty and truth? I believe I have experienced such help and would like to relate my experience. It started when I was a youngster. My brother and I were playing hide and seek. I hid on top of the straw-stack. As I lay there waiting for the cry "come in," there came to me a sense of great beauty and wonder of the world, blue, blue sky overhead, the fleecy white clouds, and the delicious warmth of the sun beating down. A sense of great security came to me, an infinite peace.

Years and years later, after having lost our home through the neglect and carelessness of my husband, and three months of staying in the house of a fault-finding mother-in-law, with a perpetual chip on her shoulder, I found myself almost a complete wreck. I remembered my childhood experience, and decided to have one more summer with this world I loved so much, and in the fall to find a job and leave my husband. I took long hikes through this beautiful mountain country, especially through the section called the "pine-hills." After three weeks my husband came and I realized that he still loved me, and that I still cared for him. Every doubt vanished after he had gone back to the city. I stood watching the sunset. There was a deep gulley here, and from it the swallows wheeled and turned in the early dusk. Suddenly a great heron rose from the depths, flapping its great wings, and slowly flew away. One could see its long legs hanging as it flew. And behind it all the glorious colors of the fading day against the low hills. It gave me a strange and deep sense of being strongly kin to the great beauty and mystery of life and of all creation. Then too there was the mountain beyond. Just gazing at its somber, rugged outline, gave me a feeling of strength and endurance. I went to the straw stack of my childhood. I found myself absolutely at ease, gazing at the familiar picture before me—the broad-stone, dotted fields, the white church spire, the little village in the foreground, and the blue-hazed mountains in the distance, and overhead a matchless sky. A picture I still see in my mind. I went back to the city, I got my furniture from my mother-in-law's house and started a new home. Do you think I am different from other people in gaining spiritual strength in viewing the glories of nature, and a sense of the mystery and power of God, or are there others who might find solution of their troubles and the end of hate and strife in the beauty that wraps us so closely to the heart of God?

Am still being patient with my mother-in-law, although I manage not to see her often. However, when she was ill I took my part in nursing her. She is getting very frail, and I realize that she can not find fault with any one many more years.

Aart Interprets the Mode

Charming evening touches of originality! Top—A satin crepe scarf attached at one end to the gown. Center—Tulle insertion at the back of a decolletage with diamante embroidery forming a necklace. Below—A velvet flower tucked under a double hip flounce. And an evening bag and nosegay of silver lame (lah-may) with pale pink velvet applique for a young girl.

New York, Jan. 21.

ALONG about this time last year I told you of three colors being smarter than two, and how this idea was one of the Maison Heim, offered by this couturier a few seasons before last January.

This January Palm Beach sun shines on many a tricolor combination, offered by other couturieres and accepted by we women as new and flattering, which it is. Bruyere has a tricolor offering of gray, yellow-green and dark brown; Patou offers brown, yellow and grey; also deep pink, deep sky blue and white; and Chanel says onion brown, vivid green and white.

As to accessories to be worn with the tricolor combination, the elegant woman will never make the mistake of wearing anything in the way of an accessory that is more than one complete color, even though she may choose a hat that matches one of the three colors in her costume, and shoes or gloves that match another one of them. Never hat nor shoes in in two colors, comprenez? There is such a fine line between chic and junk.

And then, if you are oh, ever so clever with colors, if you have a definite color instinct just as some people have an accurate and natural ear for music, you can vary the shades of accessories that you wear with a three-color costume. Meaning that if you choose, say, the gray, yellow-green and dark brown combination, you can wear a hat or shoes of a very much deeper green—if you are sure, by instinct, that it is the proper shade of deeper green—that it is a yellow green even though deeper. Sounds complicated, that is, doesn't it? Well, it is. And no lovely lady would dare it, were she the least bit unsure of her color instinct.

Thought you might like to see some evening gown novelties today, so sketched the scarf arrangement above, which is sewn right to a frock, and the lovely decolletage in the center. This didn't sketch so well, but it looked heavenly—just pink tulle with a diamante necklace arrangement or effect, rather, which showed from a distance when the tulle didn't. For the lady whose back is not her best point, or for young daughter who wants to be in the mode but need not be quite as barebacked as her older sister, this is a heavenly idea.

And then the hidden red velvet flower under the puffed hip fluonce of the beige satin gown. Well, I must remind you that Jeanne Lanvin continually warns her designers not to have more than one outstanding item on a gown—to play that up and leave the rest of the garment severely simple.

Lace Lore.

And so we come to the ending of our lace lore series. And we close it with "Point de Rose," another Venetian lace, made of finer linen threads than the kind used for "Point de d'Ivoire." The lines supporting the design are enriched with picots and roses, and flounces of "Point de Rose" are always edged with picots to give a delicate foliage effect.

So now you should know enough about the principal laces used in the mode, whether real or counterfeit, to distinguish them. This much lace lore at least, every woman should have. Study this little series, and you will have it, my dahr-lings.

* * * *

And do you know how to have a whole new hat box full of new hats for the price of a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post? That's how, just by sending that and getting all of your oldest and most hopeless hats out and ripping all of the trimming off them and cleaning them while you are waiting for the leaflet that will come back to you in your own envelope. This is the leaflet that tells you how to make new hats from old, you know. Better send for it.

Au revoir.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE SECRET OF HEALTHY FERNS.

IN October when you purchased your ferns they were beautiful. Now, about the middle of January, you notice that the mid stems of the fronds are covered with tiny, shiny brown mounds, all the plants look dejected and you decide to discard them, with—possibly—the remark, "I never did have any luck with house plants."

Here, in reply, let me suggest that luck, when it comes to caring for house plants, is the most undependable of all aids in gardening. Keep in mind the fact that before you purchased the plants they had been receiving systematic care. They had been growing in houses lighted on all sides, where the temperatures had been taken twice a day, and where the plants were regularly watered and cultivated. Suddenly removed from this environment so well suited to their needs, brought into your steam-heated room and after that not even watered properly—is it any wonder that the ferns became ill?

Of course, you can not convert a city apartment into a modern greenhouse; neither must you forego the joys of having a few ferns to bring a bit of the big outdoors into your living room. With systematic care there is no reason why you can not have beautiful ferns the entire winter.

First, every day sprinkle their foliage thoroughly. The water must reach the under surfaces of the leaves, as there is the favorite habitat of the brown, hard-shelled insect called scale. These tenacious pests always attack half-sick ferns, but rarely attack healthy ones.

Second, every other day set your plants for 15 minutes in 6 inches of water. This insures a thorough soaking of the soil in the lower portion of the pot, which sprinkling does not reach.

Third, each day turn the plants a bit so they have a more even distribution of light, which is so very necessary to foliage development. Then once each week go over your ferns and cut off any dead fronds that may develop and be sure to keep the surface soil in the pots quite loose.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HOW TYPHOID MAY SPREAD.

A RECENT Porto Rican experience shows again how rapidly pollution can travel through the soil. Drs. Garrido-Morales and Costa Maidry report a small outbreak of typhoid fever which occurred in Guayama, Porto Rico.

The disease began to develop in a family. Presently, it was distributed throughout a neighborhood. In warm climates typhoid does not cause a fever that continues all day and night for a matter of weeks, as is the case in colder countries, but it has a tendency to go off and come on again as is the case with malaria. However, in this instance, various laboratory tests proved that these were cases of typhoid and that none of them had malaria.

The question was, where was the disease coming from and how could it be stopped? An underground concrete cistern came under suspicion. The water in this cistern was rain collected from the roofs. It tasted good and it should have been pure, but the evidence pointed toward the cistern and its contents.

The doctors had the cistern emptied. No rats or floaters were found, but a foot or two above the floor, and several feet below the surface of the ground, there was a crack in the cistern wall. The gutters had been disconnected and the job of searching was postponed until daylight returned. The next morning it was found that an inch of water had leaked in through the crack in the wall. Plainly, the people who drank from this cistern had been getting something besides rain water. The sleuths looked about. A few feet away they saw a yard privy.

They poured a watery solution of a blue dye into this privy and then returned to the cistern and placed some blotting paper at the crack. In twenty minutes the blotting paper was turning blue. In a few hours the water in the cistern was blue.

This is a record for speed of transmission which exceeds one that I observed several years ago, and about which I have written and spoken. In that case some men had built shacks just outside of a rapidly growing city. The water came from shallow wells dug in the sand close to one of the houses. In the early morning the man of the house would get up, slip on his clothing and step out into the bracing fresh air. He would relieve himself of kidney excretion and then stand around a while taking deep breaths of the pure ozone as he listened to the birds and watched the unfolding day. After a bit he would pump some water into a pan, set the pan on a shelf and wash and brush his teeth.

But, alas! Analyses of the water showed that while he breathed the good air and enjoyed the scenery, the kidney excretion had raced to the well. When he was ready to wash it had already reached its goal. Another case of the hare and the tortoise, as developed by Mr. Aesop.

NIGHTMARE.

A Reader writes: J. N. H. recently wrote about his problem. He can't move his muscles, although he is conscious and would like to do so.

For years I had the same thing and, finally, in an emergency, when I just had to move, something within me said: "Move your little toe or little finger—you can always do that—then all the other muscles will respond also." I did, and sure enough, it worked and always worked after that until, after a brief period, the whole thing disappeared.

TRENCH MOUTH.

Mrs. A. V. wants J. M. J. and others to know how she cured herself of trench mouth after other treatments had failed.

First, wash the mouth with peroxide of hydrogen. Next, wash the mouth with a solution made by dissolving one teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a glassful of lukewarm water. This is followed by washing the mouth with a teaspoonful of table salt dissolved in a glassful of cold water.

REPLY.

I am sure your method will cure some cases, and it is safe. I am equally sure that other cases will require more active treatment.

CHAPPED HANDS.

E. M. H. writes: If people who suffer from chapped hands and face will be sure to wipe soap off they will not be troubled.

REPLY.

This method will prevent some cases and cure others, but it will fail often.

BABY CRYING TO SLEEP.

H. K. writes: Do you think it advisable to allow a baby of 6 months to cry herself to sleep? The baby is put to bed at 7 o'clock every evening.

REPLY.

Yes.

Why is the baby kept up so late

LOOK TO YOUR HABITS.

Mrs. T. H. writes: I am 58 years old, 5 feet 3 inches tall and weigh only 132 pounds. I am in perfect health, drink plenty of water, like fresh vegetables and fruit. The only foods I don't like are milk, eggs and sweets. Do you suppose not eating these is the cause of my underweight?

REPLY.

Probably not. Do you get enough sleep? Are your habits irregular? Do you worry? These are likely to be the cause. Do you worry about being underweight? If so, desist. Underweight people of your age are healthier and live longer.

POMEGRANATES.

Mrs. M. G. writes: I am interested in the pomegranate and serve it in my home in jell, punch and fruit.

Will you please write on pomegranate juice in the diet?

REPLY.

Pomegranate meat contains about 1 per cent citric acid and 13 to 15 per cent sugar. It can be burned to produce about 460 calories. I do not know what its vitamin content is, but I can believe that it contains the vitamins usually found in fresh fruits and that it burns to an alkali ash. When one purchases pomegranate by weight he buys lots of unusable woody fiber in rind and seeds.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS"

IF January 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:40 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:35 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:15 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.

Astrological influences on January 22 will affect the personal side of your life more than the business aspect. Engaged couples should take courage in their hands and marry. Recent difficulties within the home will be eased through wise compromises. Increased expenditures and normal or decreased incomes.

The child born on this January 22 will have a thoughtful nature and some inclination to despondency. It will not be expansive with its feelings and there will be a tendency to retire inward more than is good for the character.

Born January 22, you are by nature indolent, and will never attempt to put more labor into your efforts than is necessary for their execution. The art of doing nothing is something you do unblushingly, peaceably and of a set purpose. You are given to fitful lapses into activity, when you reveal the great possibilities within you, which, if pushed with more energy and backed by more ambition, could easily put your name on the map. You are somewhat the victim of the dangerous charms of solitude, probably because it is less trouble to be alone than to cultivate the society of man.

There are many fascinating things about your personality, and you could always have more friends than you, with your temperament, desire. This is particularly true with those of the opposite sex. You can be a most agreeable and entertaining companion. You have a very youthful spirit, and at heart you will always remain a child. Reading is your chief diversion, and given a good book, a comfortable chair and peaceful surroundings, you ask for nothing more. You have very simple tastes, and outward show does not appeal to you. You are very democratic, and favor many socialistic ideas.

Successful people born January 22: John Delafield, banker.
Lord Byron, poet.
Francis Bacon, statesman and philosopher.
King Henry, the VIII.
Terence V. Powderly, labor leader.
Walter Gay, artist.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

MAY BUSES CHARGED IN ROUTE COMPLAINT

Charles Orr's Accusation Is Filed With Public Utilities Group.

Affidavits charging the A. B. & W. Rapid Transit Co., owned by R. L. May, with numerous violations of the Public Utilities Commission's order setting forth its route was filed yesterday with William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, by Charles Orr, of the Alexandria-Washington Bus Line.

Immediate prosecution of the May line was demanded by Mr. Orr, who submitted evidence to prove that express buses of the A. B. & W. Rapid Transit Co. had been run across Pennsylvania avenue and over E street and that hundreds of unscheduled buses had been operated by the line, all in violation of the Commission's regulations.

Mr. Roberts took the matter under advisement and said that if the charges were sustained prosecution proceedings will be instituted in Police Court.

The Commission yesterday denied a joint petition of the Alexandria-Barcroft-Washington Rapid Transit Co., to May shuttle service, and the Arlington and Fairfax Railway for a formal public hearing on an application for a route and terminal for the shuttle buses.

In denying the request, the Commission stated that it believed the matter could be settled in informal conferences and, further, that a longer trial should be given the present route over Pennsylvania avenue.

Mr. May, who had applied for permission to operate the buses over E street to Tenth street and thence to the D street northwest terminal, as he now runs the local buses of the A. B. & W. line, has indicated that he will appeal to court if the Commission persists in its refusal to let the shuttle buses cross Pennsylvania avenue.

First in the Hearts of His Countrymen

LAFAYETTE WAS REAL FRIEND OF WASHINGTON.

Of all the men associated with George Washington during the American Revolution none became closer to him than did the Marquis de Lafayette. The generous, high-spirited young Frenchman, full of fresh enthusiasm and brave as a lion, appealed at once to Washington's heart.

George Washington quickly admitted the gallant Frenchman to his confidence. Lafayette's brilliant and devoted service in the field, together with his invaluable help in securing the French alliance, strengthened the bonds of affection and admiration between the two men.

After Lafayette's departure from America, the two men maintained a friendly correspondence; and when the Bastile fell, it was to Washington that Lafayette sent the key of the famous prison. This key still hangs on the wall of one of the rooms at Mount Vernon.

CHARLES TOWN, W. VA., VISITED BY WASHINGTON.

Charles Town, W. Va., will take a prominent place on the George Washington atlas, showing in the graphic form of map all the places which our first President visited and lived in during his life time, which will be published next winter by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

This memorial atlas will be one of the most important permanent monuments to the memory of George Washington to be contributed by the Federal Government as a part of the Bicentennial celebration in his honor.

It is interesting to note that two of George Washington's brothers, Samuel and Charles, lived in Charles Town. The latter gave his land for the public buildings of the town. It was in one of these buildings that John Brown was tried, and it was in the front yard of this same building, the courthouse, that he was hanged. Both of these brothers of George Washington are buried in the vicinity of Charles Town. Samuel is buried at Harewood and Charles at Nordington, originally called "Happy Retreat."

Dolly Paine, whose sister was the wife of Samuel Washington, was married in 1794 to James Madison at Harewood. She drove from Philadelphia in a coach loaned by Thomas Jefferson. Harewood is still owned by the Washington family.

George Washington, in his writings, often referred to visits "to my brothers, Samuel and Charles."

About The Showshops

With NELSON B. BELL.

WHEN Martha Graham gave her only dance recital so far this season in New York shortly before Christmas, the firemen in the theater where she was appearing took a hand in things and stopped the sale of standing room long before the demand had been met. One wonders how many firemen may be needed when Miss Graham brings her group of fifteen dancers to the National Theater this afternoon for their first appearance in the Capital.

Miss Graham plans to include in her Washington program today the "Primitive Mysteries," written by Louis Horst, which aroused the audience to cheers at her first New York performance. John Martin, foremost of the country's dance critics—who happens to be in Washington, by the way—has expressed it as his opinion that "this is the most significant choreography that has come out of America."

It is divided into three parts: "Hymn to the Virgin," "Crucifixus" and "Hosanna."

The entire program, it is confidently believed, will prove novel to Washington. The dance music used includes works by other modernists, such as Honegger, Poulenc, Villa-Lobos, Wallingford Riegger and Toch.

Speaking of dancers, over and above the interesting career of Harald Kreutzberg himself, it would be difficult to imagine four more sharply contrasted lives than those of the four dancers who will appear here with him at the National on January 28.

Araca Makarawa, who was born in Moscow, lived in Siberia as an exile until she was 24 years of age. During that time she shared with her family a hard fight for existence. Cutting down trees and fishing in the River Ural was about all they could do to stave off hunger. Her father, as a matter of fact, died of starvation. When, as was frequently the case, their food ran out, they smoked dried leaves to kill the pangs of hunger. Araca finally found her way to Germany, where her career was begun.

Ilse Meudtner was a champion diver before she became a dancer. In 1928 she was sent by the German Olympic Swimming Pool to compete in the Olympic games at Amsterdam, where she was chosen as European diving champion. While she is in America, following the conclusion of Kreutzberg's concert tour, Fraulein Meudtner intends to go to California and challenge Georgia Coleman, American champion.

Irja Hagfors was born in Finland of wealthy parents, who offered no objection to her becoming a professional dancer and allowed her to study at the Hellereau School of Modern Dancing, following which she became solo dancer in Darmstadt and Mistress of Ballet in Gera.

Almuth Winekelman has a musician for a father and a painter for a mother, and has studied dancing in the Kreutzberg and Georgi School since she was 15.

And in yesterday's mail:

"Dear sir:—In your column this morning you quote a letter from Mr. J. G. McFadden in which he states he is not quite sure as to what branch of the profession Ben Cotton followed.

"Ben Cotton was a minstrel and part of the time head of 'Ben Cotton's Minstrels.'

(Signed), "Frank E. Jamison, 500 East Capitol street.

"A real old-timer and friend of Nick Long, sr."

There you are, Mac; and thanks to you, Mr. Jamison, for your courtesy in supplying the information.

It has been in my mind all week to say something about the appeal being made in the newsreel by Edward F. Colladay, general chairman of the Washington Community Chest committee. It seemed to me that it was about as effective a piece of work as any I have ever encountered of its kind. To me the most potent statement Mr. Colladay made was to the effect that the Community Chest, after all, is just you and me seeking to take the surest and most efficient means of caring for our needy.

That is a thought that too many people permit to evade them.

Anita Louise, the fragile blonde who will be seen with Lew Ayres in "Heaven on Earth," at the Rialto, beginning today, in case you hadn't heard, is an accomplished harpist of considerable concert experience.

Motion picture executives responsible for their companies' production schedules waste a tremendous amount of time and burn up a colossal amount of nervous energy worrying about trends in public taste. Old John J. Public never seems to give the matter a tumble.

As a matter of cold fact, Nick Schenck, president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Loew's, Inc., didn't at all bang his thumb and miss hitting the nail on the head when he recently replied to a question about the present condition of the industry in these words:

"There is nothing the matter with the picture industry that good pictures will not remedy."

Glance over the list of the best box office bets of recent vintage and you will find that to be eminently correct. "Local Boy Makes Good," "Frankenstein," "Delicious," "Way Back Home," "Private Lives" and "The Champ." These all clicked nationally in an important way and if you can discover any kinship between any two of them, you are a keener observer than this column—and why not?

There isn't a trend in a carload of such contrasting subjects. But each was a good picture. Public recognition of that fact did the rest.

So what?

Hubbard Keavy, chief of our West Coast finger-in-the-wind department reports that Polly Moran's new dental equipment made such a difference in her screen appearance and personality that M-G-M ordered her back to the dentist to get an exact reproduction of the uneven teeth that had been removed.

Now Miss Moran is said to have two sets—working and social!

There is just a bare, outside chance, of course, that this toothsome morsel may be merely another little dash of Mr. Keavy's biting sarcasm!

CONTRASTING TALES TOLD IN POLICE CASE

Coworkers of Two on Trial Insist They Did Not See Brutality.

Two pictures of what happened to a group of young colored boys last summer when they were being questioned by Policemen Hollis H. Clark and Charles R. Bremerman, of the Second Precinct, in connection with investigations, then being made by the two officers, are now before a jury hearing evidence in the assault trials of the policemen.

One picture, that painted by William A. Gallagher and John R. Fitzpatrick, is that the boys were lined up, forced to stand on their toes for hours and hold their hands in the air, with "inducements" being added in the way of a blow from one of the two officers when a negligent prisoner lowered his arms or came down from his toe-dancing posture.

The other picture is that the boys were laughing in boyish glee, that they were smoking cigarettes, that they seemed to take their arrest as a huge joke, and that the two officers sent out to a store and bought them cake and additional cigarettes.

A constant stream of officers attached to the Second Precinct went on the witness stand yesterday to affirm their ignorance of any brutality to the prisoners. All seemed to have been in the famous "sergeants' room" on many occasions, but when they were there the boys were laughing and joking and were in high spirits.

No session of the trial will be held today. Justice F. D. Letts will be busy with lunacy cases today, and no session will be held tomorrow. Attorneys for the defense believe they will finish their side of the case by Tuesday or Wednesday. Clark and Bremerman are being tried for allegedly attacking Thomas M. Williams, 17-year-old colored boy.

Pageant at McKinley To Be Shown Tonight

A pageant entitled "Following the Lincoln Trail," written by Commodore W. E. Longfellow, of 1819 G street northwest, will be presented tonight at McKinley High School for the benefit of 22 troops of District Boy Scouts.

The production shows in one scene Washington at Valley Forge and in another Abraham Lincoln as an unknown frontier boy sitting before his mother in their rustic cabin.

Hoover Signs Change In Civil Service Rules

Spanish War veterans will benefit by an order signed by President Hoover yesterday which amends the Civil Service rules.

Under the new order, veterans who are over 55 years old and, because of disability, are entitled to compensation allowance under present law, will be given 10 points to their earned ratings for the Federal Civil Service.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S YOUTH.
By—

"George Washington was born in a plain old-fashioned house in Westmoreland County, Va., on the twenty-second of February, seventeen hundred and thirty-two. At an early age he was sent to an "old field school" as the country schoolhouses in Virginia were built in those days in fields too much worn out for agricultural purposes. Washington was taught by a man named Hobby, reading, writing and arithmetic. He liked his work and took an interest in everything he undertook. He could run swiftly and was a powerful wrestler. The stories of his long jumps are almost beyond belief. It was also said that he could throw farther than any of his companions. George was not afraid to get astride of the wildest horse or unbroken colt. All these accomplishments proved that he was a strong and fearless boy. He was noted for being fair in all his games. This trait made his schoolmates bring all their quarrels to him to settle.

"When Washington was 11 years old his father died, but his mother did all she could to bring him up with manly ideas. To his studies were added bookkeeping and surveying. Many of his copy books have been preserved to show his carefulness and accuracy. He wrote 100 rules for "Behavior in Company," for it was always his desire to be a gentleman.

"When 16 years old, Washington accepted the offer of Lord Fairfax to go into the wilderness. Sometimes men, women, and children slept around fires 'like cats and dogs,' as Washington wrote, 'and happy is he who gets nearest the fire.' At 19 the Governor of Virginia made Washington a major of militia. The governor was now looking for an able and trustworthy officer to warn the French that they were on English ground. Washington was appointed to go on this dangerous errand. He was received most graciously by the French. He remained for a few days and then he and his companion started on their homeward journey, traveling day and night for fear of being attacked by the Indians.

"When they came to the river it was covered with floating ice. They tried to cross it on a raft. Washington was pushing the raft with a pole when the ice caught the pole in such a way as to fling him into the river. He caught hold of the raft and pulled himself out again. George and his companion, Gish, spent the night on an island and went ashore in the morning by walking on the ice. On reaching land they stopped at the house of an Indian trader. Nearby was the hut of a squaw chieftain who was offended that she had not been asked to the council Washington had held with the Indians at Logtown. To make friends he paid her a visit and presented her with a blanket such as the Indians wore on their shoulders.

"Washington purchased a valuable horse for the purpose of bringing him home more quickly. He had many adventurous stories to relate, which were welcomed with widespread interest and finally made him the 'hero' of his day."

Among those who applied for the Washington booklet yesterday were: Earlyn Finney, Fort Humphreys, Va.; Doris D. Rosedale, Clarendon, Va.; Gladys Alford, 138 Waverly street, Clarendon, Va.; Bernard V. FRIDAY JANUARY 22, 1932 SPORTS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE "build-up" boys are at it again on the winter tracks and the howling of the bookies is sweet music to the mutuel manipulators, who have resurrected an old custom in the unhappy art of trying to beat the races.

The coup on Charm in the first race at Jefferson Park yesterday boosted the odds on the logical 1-to-2 favorite to $8.80 to $1 by the simple expedient of pouring the betting clique's thousands into the mutuel machines at the last minute, not on Charm, but scattering the money among the other horses in the field, thus building up Charm's relative odds.

Of course, these late thousands that were bet were protected by other thousands scattered among the bookmakers throughout the country on Charm, with the returns, as a result of Charm's long odds, offsetting tenfold the money that was given away at the track in the attempt to "build up" the favorite's odds, which was eminently successful, inasmuch as it raised a 1-to-2 shot to $19.60 in the $2 mutuels.

The danger of "build-ups," which is so great at the winter tracks, is not feared by the Maryland and Chicago tracks, where the volume of betting is so large that it would require too great an outlay by a betting ring to visibly affect the odds on any short-priced favorite.

At Bowie last year, the average amount bet to a race during the 23 racing days in spring and fall was $64,918, as contrasted with the $6,000 wagered on the second race at Jefferson yesterday. The dumping of a few thousand dollars in the mutuels at Jefferson would boost the price on a short-priced favorite from 500 to 1,000 per cent, whereas it would require a bet of approximately $50,000 to "build up" the odds to such an extent on the favorite at the metropolitan or Maryland tracks.

The sparse attendance at New Orleans accounts for the extremely small play in the mutuels. New Orleans fans are reluctant to go to the track often inasmuch as 20 bookmakers operating in the city usually lay morning odds that entice the bettors who otherwise would take their money to the track, but are fearful of lower odds in the machines.

Agua Caliente has been another fertile field for the "build-up" boys as illustrated by Baron Long's coup on Linden Tree, his short-priced favorite, which was built up to a $21.40 mutuel when he dumped $8,500 into the machine on other horses in the field.

The attendance at Agua Caliente makes for easy manipulation in the mutuels with the craps and roulette tables often boasting as many fans as actually watch the race. "Get even between races!" the cry of the croupiers in the Baja, California, establishment, draws the race fans to the wheels and the dice in such numbers that the play on the races in the machines is so small that it may be easily affected by the judicious scattering of as little as $1,000 among the mutuel field.

Agua Caliente officials attempted earlier this year to operate an open ring, but the play was so sparse that the track experienced difficulty in enlisting reputable bookmakers to lay the odds and the experiment was finally abandoned.

Because of the nature of their operations it is extremely difficult for the operators of the tracks to detect the perpetrators of the "build-up" coups, although after the plot has been sprung the bookmakers who have been the victims are instantly aware of their identity inasmuch as the books, not the track, must pay off.

New York, with its oral betting, of course, presents no invitation to the "build-up" boys. Maryland and Chicago, with its great volume of betting, would incur too great and outlay of the "wise money" to make the build-ups profitable.

But there appears to be no ready cure for the evil on the winter tracks. After all, the evil of the operations is questionable. The only element to suffer is the bookmakers who have played the percentage for so many years that none is inclined to look with sympathy upon them. In the final analysis, it is the wagering public which is given the benefit of the inflated prices along with the clique that operates the coup.

1-2 Shot Pays $19 Mutuel In Coup

Charm, Favorite, Is "Build-Up" Medium at New Orleans.

$15,878 Bet on Race; Books Throughout Nation Hit.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21 (U.P.).—A huge betting coup perpetrated on "Charm" in the first race at Jefferson Park this afternoon, reportedly cost handbook operators throughout the country hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Charm, racing in the name of C. S. Stubbs, was held at odds of 1 to 2 until post time and paid $19.60 for a $2 ticket.

The "builders" went into action at post time. At the barrier the price on the approximate odds board at the track showed Charm a 4 to 5 chance and as the field was sent on its way, the price was boosted to 7 to 2. The huge crowd at the track howled as $19.60 was posted as the pay-off on a $2 mutuel ticket.

$15,878 Is Pool In Machines.

Charm had shaped up as a logical favorite but was sidetracked by bettors because of low odds. A pool of $15,878 resulted from the attempt to "build up" the odds of the Stubbs' 7-year-old bay mare. For comparison, the pool in the second race was but $6,284.

Track officials said the "builders" waited until the last minute and then bet approximately $10,000 through the mutuel windows on other horses in the race. Previously the "builders'" had bet with private bookmakers on Charm.

Loud protesting from bookmakers throughout the country were coming over wires to service companies here.

It was recalled by racing patrons here that a few years ago a similar "killing" was made on Charm, allegedly by Al Capone and his associates, when the horse won a Fair Grounds race and paid off at better than 60 to 1.

Exceeds Coup at Agua Caliente.

Downtown New Orleans bookmakers were reported to have laid even money against the chances of Charm.

Today's coup at Jefferson Park is believed to exceed by huge proportions the recent coup on Linden Tree at Agua Caliente.

Little Betting on Charm, Chicago Bookies Assert

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Chicago bookmakers said there was little betting on Charm, winner of the first race at Jefferson Park, New Orleans, today, paying $19.60 for $2 in the pari-mutuel wagering, after going to the post at 1 to 2.

Chicago books quoted Charm, reputed to belong to Ralph Capone, at 8 to 5 in the morning line, 1 to 2 in the first betting, 4 to 5 in the second betting and 7 to 2 as they went to the post. The latter quotation, however, was flashed here too late for any big bets. It was estimated that not more than $2,500 was wagered among many bookmakers.

Central Five Defeats G. W. Freshmen, 30-27

Central High's Basket Ball Team evened its score with the lanky George Washington University Freshmen yesterday in the Colonial gymnasium, downing the Yearlings by a count of 30 to 27. Central was beaten 37-15 in a previous tilt this year.

The Blue and White outfit got into the van at the start of the game yesterday and hung there throughout. They weathered a potent G. W. attack in the last quarter to win, largely because of able defensive work by Swift and Nau.

Led by Bill Burke, leading scorer in the high school series, Central earned a 13-8 advantage at the end of the first half, and stepped out to 26-16 at the close of the third quarter. Bill Noonan, big G. W. forward, picked up the rough edges of his club and guided them into a Colonial rally, which saw his team score 11 points to Central's 5 during the remainder of the game, but the rally fell short, as Burke and Keyser applied the deciding point pressure.

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—J. N. Bozeman, of Vallejo, Calif., today supplied the second upset of the world's three-cushion billiard championship tournament by defeating Frank Scoville, of New York, who previously was unbeaten.

Bozeman, who had put up thrilling but losing battles in his two previous matches, rallied in the last five minutes to win his first victory, 50 to 45, in 54 innings. It was Scoville's first defeat in three matches.

Scholastic Scoring Aces Clash Today

TECH PLAYS EASTERN TODAY

Boyd's Five Seeking Tie for Lead in School Series.

EASTERN HIGH'S undisputed first place standing in the high school basket ball series, will be sorely put to test this afternoon at Tech Gymnasium by Tech High's entrant in the thrilling court race. Tech, if victorious, will go into a first-place tie with the leaders.

Shunted out of a first-place tie with Eastern last year, as a result of inadvertently using an ineligible player, Tech is keener than ever today to hand Eastern what would be not only its first series defeat but the first turndown of the season.

Tech Picked to Upset Eastern.

Those who go deeper than the surface of things in high school ball pick Tech to score a victory today. Eastern's one-point victory over Central and a hard game with Gonzaga, in the last three days, has not augured well the team's being at concert pitch. Tech has taken matters easier, priming fundamentally for this game.

Tech has better distributed shooting strength than Eastern. It has Everett Russell and Waverly Wheeler at forward. Between them they have scored 48 points in three series games. Reed probably will be outplayed at Center by Bernie Lieb, but Tech's guards, Reichardt and Thomas, are not only sterling defensive players but able shots, as might be attested by Reichardt's 15 points in the Western game, and Thomas' 22 points for the series.

Eastern beat Central on foul shooting, sinking 13 tries from the foul stripe and winning by one point. Tech will not commit half the fouls Central's rough and ready tactics accrued.

Kane Is Game's Big Threat.

But Eastern can not be counted out of the picture on paper. It has shown that it can fight back in the face of odds. If he gets "hot-handed," Barney Kane might almost alone win the game. At all odds it should be the most attractive game of the series.

Western and Business, two well-matched teams, will open the day's activities today at 3:30 o'clock. The big game will go on about an hour later. Western is pointed for its first series win in four starts, and has an even chance to down the Stenogs.

FIRST BAPTISTS, NOTE.

The Naval Reserves will be unable to play the First Baptists tonight due to a mix-up in schedule.

3 U.S. NETMEN SURVIVE IN CANADA

Lott, Hall and Bell to Play Today in Semifinals.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Three United States players, headed by George Lott, advanced to the semifinal round of the Canadian covered courts tennis championship today along with a lone Canadian, Marcel Rainville, of Montreal.

Tomorrow, Lott, the defending champion, will meet J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., while Rainville is tangling with Berkeley Bell, of New York.

Of the semifinalists, only Bell had to travel three sets. He found Roland Longtin, Montreal city champion, a worthy foe who surrendered only after a hard-fought match, 6—2, 7—9, 6—3.

Lott waded through Laird Watt, young Montreal player, 6—4, 6—2; Rainville eliminated Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., 6—3, 6—3, and Hall disposed of C. W. Leslie, Canadian Davis Cup player from Montreal, 6—3, 6—3.

Lott and Rainville Win in Doubles.

In the doubles Lott nad Rainville reached the semifinal round by eliminating Laird Watt and Robert Murray, of Montreal, 6—3, 6—3.

Mercur and Hall defeated William Thompson, Portland, Ore., and Frank Broida, Pittsburgh, 6—0, 6—3; Bill and Leslie defeated H. Ross Cleveland and A. S. Mills, both of Montreal, 6—1, 6—2, and Longtin and H. Paul Emard, of Montreal, conquered D. P. Hatch and Emile Durand, also of Montreal, 6—2, 3—6, 7—5.

Bell and Leslie will face Mercur and Hall in one semifinal while Lott and Rainville are playing Emard and Longtin in the other.

Petrolle 8-5 Choice Over Ran Tonight

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Billy Petrolle, cagey veteran with a dynamite left hook, and young Eddie Ran, blasting right hand puncher, meet tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden to settle once more the efficiency of two fighting styles.

As is usual in such cases the left-hooker is an 8 to 5 favorite, but Ran is conceded the ability to knock out any man he hits with his lethal right cross. Petrolle, however, has a wide edge in experience, durability and all-round effectiveness. In his last match here he knocked out promising young Billy Townsend and he once whipped the king of the welterweight right hand punchers, Jimmy McClarnin.

Ran, welterweight champion of Poland, will have a five pound edge in the weights. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds.

As an added attraction Madison Square Garden announced today that both Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, and Jack Sharkey, who will challenge his title right here in June, will be introduced from the ring.

St. Alban's Five Host To Camp Chesapeake

Tomorrow's feature local game, involving a D. C. scholastic five, stacks the fast St. Alban's five against Camp Chesapeake, of Gloucester, Va., at St. Alban's gym. The Virginians were downed last year by St. Alban's, but are bringing a stronger team here than in 1931. The visitors are led by Willis, center, and Smoke, stellar guard.

TWO PIRATES BALK AT TERMS

Lloyd Waner and Gus Suhr Return Contracts Unsigned.

ADA, Okla., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, said today he had returned unsigned a one-year contract received from the club management.

He declined to reveal the proffered salary but said the amount "had not been cut much," and intimated the one-year clause was the chief obstacle.

Lloyd and his brother, Paul, also a Pirate outfielder, have been fishing in Florida. Paul remained in Miami while Lloyd and his wife came to Oklahoma for a visit.

San Francisco, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Gussie Suhr, Pittsburgh Pirates' first baseman, has added his name to the swelling list of baseball players who have returned unsigned contracts because of salary cuts.

"I sent the contract back," Suhr said today. "The cut was only a small one, $500, but the contract didn't mention anything about transportation, which I got last year."

Lake Placid Snowfall Cheers Olympic Teams

Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A heavy snowfall blanketed the mountain slopes about this Adirondack resort today and gave the Olympic ski teams their first opportunity for ski running and jumping practice in several weeks.

All traces of the springlike weather that removed signs of winter two weeks ago disappeared as the village and its athlete guests welcomed the storm. The Olympics committees bustled about the work of getting the ski and the bobsled runs ready for use.

Olympics Voted Greatest 1932 Sports Attraction

(This is another of the series of stories on results of the Associated Press sports editors' poll of newspaper experts on topics of national interest. It answers the query: "Among the outstanding prospective sports features for 1932 which would you prefer to see or cover?")

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—It will be necessary to enlarge the accommodations for the experts of the Nation's press at the Olympic Stadium this summer if the desire of the majority to "cover" the 1932 international games is fulfilled.

In response to the Associated Press questionnaire, 51 out of 90 sports editors and writers declare they would rather cover the Olympics than any other feature on the year's calendar. This represents 56 per cent and probably is a fair index of the feeling generally among newspaper experts.

Most of those desirous of going to Los Angeles indicate a preference for the track and field sports, blue ribbon feature of the Olympics, but the varied appeal of the international program of events is indicated.

Dempsey Magnate For Many.

On an "if-and-when" basis, a Dempsey-Schmeling fight for the world heavyweight boxing championship, is the second choice. Fifteen would rather see the old "Man Mauler" in action than anything else.

The world series of baseball is preferred by eight others, among them one who would like most to see John McGraw's Giants and Connie Mack's Athletics meet again after a long interval.

The Kentucky Derby appeals to four observers as the most attractive event, especially if Top Flight, the winter-book favorite, runs at Churchill Downs.

Various features of the 1932 football season are most attractive to six others, including the next Notre Dame-Southern California game, the Army-Navy renewal, and even the Rose Bowl encounter, which takes place on the first day of 1933.

Bobby Jones Chief Golf Attraction.

Preferences in golf are hinged upon a possible return of Bobby Jones to competition this year. An old campaigner in Los Angeles would like to be around if it could be arranged in the National Open Tournament to have Jones, Mac Smith, Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel, Walter Hagen, Johnny Farrell and Tommy Armour all tied for the lead going into the final round. He would elect to follow Jones and Diegel.

The results of the poll:

Olympic games	51
Dempsey-Schmeling title fight	15
Baseball world series	8
Kentucky Derby	4
U. S. Open Golf (if Jones comes back)	2
College football	2

Shikat Halts Szabo With Body Slam

6,000 Watch German Win After Taking Punishment.

Blow on Jaw Helps End Bout in 53 Minutes.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

DICK SHIKAT, who used to have polishing rights over the heavyweight wrassling singles bowl, absorbed 53 minutes of lethal punishment at the hands of a young Hungarian named Sandor Szabo, 17 years his junior, last night before 6,000 zealous burghers at the Auditorium. But form held true once more in the mat game and Shikat staggered through to a thrilling victory in the final few seconds.

The last two minutes of the bout were the wildest seen in several full eclipses of the moon here. The lead changed so many times that the reporters had to drop into shorthand, but to the best of this reviewer's knowledge Shikat started the end by slapping the frailer Szabo about the place like an underweight ping pong ball. Szabo took a count of nine outside the ring, then limped back and assailed Richard with three blasting flying mares.

Szabo Fails to Follow Up.

Instead of following up this advantage Szabo chose to apply a standing split to Shikat. Shikat rested a while and then wormed out of it easily. He got up and lashed Referee Burns' legs and the ring posts with Szabo, only to have that young man crawl out of this buzzsaw and throw Dick with two bone buckling backdrops. He tried to finish it with a flying butt, but went out of the ring and saved himself a three-point landing in the orchestra pit by grasping the bottom rope and hanging suspended.

Spectators helped him back and Dick roughed him mightily. Szabo turned once more and applied pressure, only to be met with a heavy, but legitimate, blow on the jaw with the side of Shikat's arm. He rallied and tossed Shikat, but the next time he tried it Shikat cracked him again and Szabo walked around the ring as though he had accidentally strolled under the tunnel entrance of a pile driver. Shikat dumped him with a body slam.

Shikat Unpopular Throughout.

Shikat was as unpopular as a Government pay cut throughout, and his victory elicited nothing but crumpled programs hurled by righteous defenders of fair play.

Just as last week when Leo "Ten Ton" Pinetzki ran away with the show, a preliminary stole much of the spotlight. The light thief was Fred Grubmeyer, who has been rassling with the Strangla Lewis gang on the Pacific Coast. Grubmeyer is six-foot-three and is built along the voluptuous lines of an anemic needle. He tangled legs and arms around the vast circumferences of Matros Kirilenko for 30 minutes, and had applied what looked like the finishing hook scissors when the whistle blew. We probably will see more of Mr. Grubmeyer.

George Calza, one of the better wrestlers, won handily over Ivan Zalosnik, a substitute for Alex Aberg, who is having the carbon cleaned out of his grimace. Zalosnik, a Russian, was extremely rough with Calza, but was dropped in 18½ minutes when the 240-pound Italian Apollo flattened him with a flying tackle.

In the semiwind-up Herb Freeman dumped George Hagen in 23½ minutes with a backdrop, and the show was introduced to the big audience by Doc Wilson, who toyed with Bill Lewis for 26 minutes before throwing him with a Dusekian rocking cradle that was a good replica of the old master himself.

Schmeling to Sail For Home Tonight

Cancels Exhibition Tour to Rest Up for Sharkey Bout in Summer.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, will sail for Germany tomorrow night aboard the liner Europa, his manager, Joe Jacobs, announced tonight.

Jacobs said he had decided not to permit Schmeling to go on an extended exhibition or vaudeville tour in the United States while awaiting his Jack Sharkey title bout in June. He said he would take no chances of the champion's "burning himself up" in such exhibitions.

Max will return to the United States in March, according to present plans. He may go on a short exhibition tour in April or May, and then begin training for the June battle.

Jacobs made his announcement at offices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation tonight during a conference with Sharkey's managers, Johnny Buckley and Jack Conway, regarding the proposed bout. Jimmy Johnston, manager of boxing at the Garden, presided over the meeting, which accomplished nothing definite regarding the title bout. The conference will be continued at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Jacobs indicated that he and Sharkey's managers had not been able to agree on percentages.

No site was announced.

VIRGINIA FIVE OVERTAKEN BY MD.

Berger's Foul Shots Prominent in 36-31 Old Line Victory.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 21. Maryland's Southern championship quintet, thanks to the sharp shooting of Berger from the charity mark, overcame a 4-point lead which Virginia enjoyed midway the second half, and nosed out the Cavaliers here tonight, 36 to 31. Berger, crack Terrapin guard, sank 6 out of 7 tries, but was guarded so closely that he registered but a single field goal.

The Cavaliers as usual, got off to a good start by playing the invaders off their feet, quickly running up a 12 to 5 lead. Coach Shipley then sent in Berger to replace May and the Terrapins launched a rally. Goals in quick succession by Norris, Chalmers and Buscher all but knotted the count, but just before the whistle sounded Young made good on a foul shot and the half ended with the Cavaliers enjoying a 2 point lead, 13 to 11.

Lead Changes Twice In Second Half.

The second half was a thriller. Maryland soon tied the score, and after six minutes of play was out in front by a margin of 6 points, on clever shots by Ronkin, Buscher and Norris. Here the Cavaliers suddenly came to life and at midway were leading the Terrapins by 4 points, 26 to 22.

Vincent was shot into the lineup by Coach Shipley and the Virginia rally was checked. Berger dropped three shots in the basket from the foul line and Chalmers contributed a basket to give Maryland a lead that could not be overcome. After Vincent had caged two goals, Delafield, back into the fray, made a clever shot. With four minutes left the Old Liners led by 3 points. Berger made good on two foul shots, and Harrison duplicated the feat. With 15 seconds left, Chalmers got a snowbird while the Cavaliers were trying to prevent the Terrapins from freezing the ball.

Each Team registered an even dozen field goals. Chalmers, with four, tied with Berger for high point honors. Young and Thomas made sensational shots from midfloor for Virginia.

Visitors Trail, 23-18, at Half After Holding Advantage.

Capacity Crowd Sees G. W. Reach New Heights on Court.

By JACK ESPEY.

LITERALLY running and shooting their foes into the floor of the H Street Gymnasium, the basket ball giants of George Washington University last night routed the hitherto unbeaten Duquesne Dukes, 48 to 27, to register their sixth straight victory of the season. Attracted by the prospect of seeing two spotless records tossed into battle, more than 1,000 persons sought admittance, but the comparatively small structure—rafters and windows included, could accommodate only a few more than 700.

The clever visitors from Pittsburgh, conquerors of Georgetown and Catholic on successive nights previously and victors over University of Pittsburgh, were completely subdued at the end of the pulsating contest. The Colonials set an almost superhuman pace and maintained it for the entire 40 minutes, not even slackening for breath in the last five minutes when they had piled up a convincing lead of 18 points.

Fast Attack Brings Results.

Closely following instructions from Coach Jim Pixlee to rush their attack and shoot at every opportunity within 30 feet of the basket, the Colonials found success crowning their efforts shortly after the start. Duquesne took the lead at the outset on goals by McDougal and McGeever, but when Forrest Burgess whipped the cords from the side, a storm of G. W. shots pelted the hoop with devastating effect.

Duquesne hung tenaciously on the heels of the home talent for 12 minutes of the first half during which time Burgess, due to overanxiousness, fouled himself out of the proceedings, and by dint of accurate foul tossing together with scrimmage goals by McDougal and Reiter, the invading quintet assumed a lead of 13-12 with eight minutes remaining before intermission.

Malvey Factor in Attack.

At this juncture, Mulvey, substituting for Burgess, and Parrack and Chambers engineered a George Washington rally that swept the Buff and Blue out front, the score mounting to 21 before the Dukes again counted a point. At half time the figures were: G. W., 23; Duquesne, 18.

Two charity points were all the Dukes could secure in the first five minutes of the second half as Zahn, the game's outstanding player, and Chambers, Parrack and Hertzler ran G. W.'s total to 30. Midway of the half Brenner and McGeever scored from scrimmage, but thereafter every goal scored was the work of a tireless Colonial. Hertzler and Parrack went on a rampage in the last ten minutes to place the decision well beyond reach of the Pittsburghers.

Last night's victory swelled George Washington's point total to 269 for six contests for an average of 44 5-6 points per game.

HIALEAH THRONG SEES FOUR STRAIGHT FAVORITES SCORE

Street Singer Triumphs in Feature

Wears Down Dancing Mack in 7-Furlong Sprint Victory.

Tack Ends Successes of Choices by Winning Sixth Race.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Form players were in their glory here this afternoon. After their selection fell down in the opening event, they saw four straight choices register.

The fifth event, called the Palm Island Purse, held the honored position on the card and resulted in a driving victory for Street Singer, who flew the silks of Jack Howard, former jockey, who won so many races in Florida last season. Street Singer won by three parts of a length, while Dancing Mack took the place from Martis by a length and a half. Street Singer paid $4.40 and completed the 7 furlongs in 1:24 3-5 over a dried-out track. The well-balanced card and delightful weather served to bring out another good-sized attendance.

Field Is Bunched In Feature.

The feature event was anybody's race most of the way, the half-dozen starters racing well bunched until the latter stages of the running. Martis was first to take command, but Dancing Mack, Chatford and Street Singer were right on his trail.

Dancing Mack, with Mills aboard, forged to the front along the back stretch and maintained a head advantage around the bend, with Street Singer the chief opposition. Chatford dropped out of it entering the stretch. Street Singer gained steadily through the final furlong and wore down Dancing Mack in the final strides to win going away. Martis was an easy third.

Tack Jolts Talent In Sixth Event.

Tack, well-played second choice, foiled the efforts of the talent to put over five favorites in a row. The F. H. Carpenter 4-year-old beat Typhoon by a length in a drive to pay $7.60. Ben Blair was third, losing second money by two lengths. Typhoon showed the way until overtaken by Tack around the bend and turning for home the latter appeared to shut off Typhoon, which might have decided the issue. Typhoon was weakly ridden at the end, but easily held Ben Blair safe.

Noah's Pride Takes Jefferson Sprint.

Jefferson Park, New Orleans, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Noah's Pride, which won 4 of his 24 starts as a 2-year-old last year, showed a reversal of form today and accounted for the 6-furlong feature at Jefferson Park.

Third in one race was the best the 3-year-old son of Noah could do in the last three starts, but today, under the guidance of J. Battista, he stepped the six panels in 1:13 1-5. At the finish he was three lengths in front of B. S. Mitchell's Wise Seller, with E. K. Bryson's Hasola third.

As the result of his recent poor races, Noah's Pride paid $15.60 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

Polly's Folly and War Tide formed the winning daily double combination and paid $190.80 for $2.

MAE SWEEP stood long stretch drive gamely, came again last twenty yards and was up in the final strides. LOVE OFFERING saved ground all the way, looked to have the winner beaten fifty yards from the finish, but quit right at end. DIANA D. saved ground at top of home stretch, where she slipped through on inside, bore out at furlong pole and Lewis was forced to stop riding to straighten her out. SUNNY SUSAN met with interference on back stretch.

CHUCK B. moved up stoutly after first sixteenth and hung on with good courage under punishment last furlong. REVONAH broke from outside the stalls. He ran straight all the way, hung after getting to leader a furlong from the finish. STRAIT JACKET swerved over against NORMAN, causing a jam in which MIKE REYNOLDS and SMOKE CLOUD were pulled up. CANDY KING, very fractious at the post, unseated his rider a couple of times. BRIGHT MONK broke through barrier a couple of times and was finally brought to the extreme outside.

MY SIS, quick to begin, drew away first furlong, was rated in front to top of home stretch, but was roused up couple of times by Hooper to keep her going. MISS CHILLA, during her best entire trip in an effort to get to the leader, had to be hard ridden last furlong to stall off BRUSH. Latter began slowly and worked her passage up on the outside of her field and hung in final drive. MEEK closed strong.

STREET SINGER was rated off the leaders and moved up stoutly on the outside rounding the far turn, fought it out with DANCING MACK all through home stretch and was drawing away last dozen strides. DANCING MACK hung on well after racing MARTIS into submission first six furlongs. Latter, probably a bit short, tired.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:53½. Off at 4:56. Winner, F. H. Carpenter's ch. g. TACK outran his field to first turn, but was taken back when TYPHOON went to the front, moved up stoutly on outside rounding the far turn and drew away into an easy lead, was inclined to stop last sixteenth and had to be ridden out at end to stall off TYPHOON, who came again. Latter began slowly and worked her passage up on the outside of her field and hung in final drive. MEEK closed strong.

SHOW DOWN, showing high speed, was urged into a commanding lead, then was ruined along without ever being fully extended to hold GRIFFIN safe. GRIFFIN had no excuse, was in closest pursuit of leader at all times, but could not threaten winner. FAIR BILL, badly outrun as usual in early running, moved up gradually and closed steadily. VACATION could not keep up but finished well. BIRD OF PREY tired.

A LEXANDRIA HIGH PLAYS "FIVES"

Charlottesville Team to Invade Armory for Game Tonight.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 21.—One of the best basket ball games to be presented for the entertainment of local fans will feature tomorrow night at Armory Hall when the Charlottesville Fives invade this city for a game with Alexandria High.

The Charlottesville quint has played over 21 games so far this season and records disclose they have copped from teams in Richmond and other sectors of the State. They are making a determined bid for all-State honors and this fray marks their first invasion of the northern sector.

Athletic Director Given is wasting no time in getting his proteges ready. Today the boys held a long workout at the armory and special attention was directed at a new defense. Given is banking heavily on Capt. Snubby Schriener and Horton to aid in rolling up points. These two midgets have been the main cogs on the offense.

Players Are Named.

The starting team for Friday's game will be selected from the following: Schreiner, Bruin, Moore, Gist, Horton, Hudson, Embrey, Carr and Routzahn.

Given's club has shown much promise in previous games. They toppled Washington and Lee High and Fredericksburg Collegians in games in the past week by good sized scores.

The Alexandria boys are also leading in District Three for entrance into the State championship series. They must defeat Fredericksburg High to achieve this honor.

Fredericksburg High School courtmen will play Washington and Lee basketeers tomorrow night in the Generals' gym at Ballston.

Park View Girls Plan For A.A.U. Tournament

The Park View Girls' Basket Ball Team, under the direction of Frank Carr, is preparing for the District A. A. U. championship tournament, sponsored by The Post. These girls, prominent in playground athletics, are seeking games with other junior class clubs. The Park View team has the use of the Park View School gymnasium for Friday nights. Mr. Carr may be phoned at Columbia 1231. Members of the squad are Mary Hoy, Thelma Burton, Louise Smith, Frances Wilkins, May Clark, Mary Smith, Ada Luben and "Mickey" Herl.

Skinker Eagles Play Fast Courtmen Sunday

Recent conqueror of Atlantic City Y. M. H. A. and Morris Guards, also powerful basket ball representative of the New Jersey resort, Passon's professionals will be pointing for still another upset when the Skinker Eagles are opposed at Bolling Field Sunday.

In competition thus far this season the crack Philadelphians have specialized in checking unbeaten clubs. Morris Guards were administered their first beating by the Quaker City independent champions shortly after the new year, while innumerable other opponents have been taken over in more decisive fashion.

This being their first visit to the National Capital, the clever Passon tossers are particularly desirous of continuing their sensational stride at the expense of Bernie Peacock's undefeated combine.

FOUR 8-ROUND BOUTS LISTED

Jacobs Gets Bout With Bashara

Gomer and Burns to Clash Also Tuesday at Alexandria.

Strickler Returns to Ring After Layoff to Meet Lawson.

THE Day Nursery's all-star benefit boxing card, scheduled next Tuesday night in Portner's Arena, was completed yesterday with the addition of two bouts involving boxers representing Norfolk and Baltimore. The card now consists of four eight-round bouts and one four-rounder, a larger program than has yet been offered the fans this season at the Alexandria Arena.

Those matched yesterday are Tommy Bashara and Stumpy Jacobs, of Norfolk, and Charley Gomer and Bobby Burns, of Baltimore, all of whom are lightweights. Bashara, who dropped a close decision to Burns recently, will meet Gomer, a rugged little Frenchman, who appeared at Fort Washington last summer. Jacobs, who never has shown his wares in this vicinity, but who has been mopping up in fights in and near Norfolk, will tackle Burns, whose victory over Bashara gained him much favor with the customers.

Strickler to Return After Lay-Off.

In the bouts previously arranged, Bob Lawson, clever light heavyweight from Newport News, will engage Billy Strickler, Washington boy who is returning to the wars after a six months' layoff, while Kid Cosden, Cordova, Md., featherweight, will oppose Nick Antonelli, of Patsy Donovan's stable. A four-round curtain raiser will bring together Bingo Brodie, wild-swinging middleweight of this city, and Young Perry, another local lad.

Tickets go on sale today at Vic's Sport Shop. Women with escorts will be admitted free of charge.

Hitting The Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THIS year witnessed the departure of three names from that select group of bowlers who have either started and finished, or started and resigned at some stage of the grind, in each of the Howard Campbell Sweepstakes since the start of the tournament in 1927.

Up until this year Campbell, after whom the event is named, Henry Hiser, Fred Moore and George Isemann had started and finished in each tournament, and Maxie Rosenberg and Al Work had started each time, but did not go the route on one occasion. Moore, Isemann and Work failed to start this year. Hiser, although no longer a contender because of an injured hand, is sticking in the race merely to keep his record clear.

This list of those who have started in all but one of the runnings also shrank, dropping from ten to six. Glen Wolstenholme, Clem Weidman, Al Fischer and I. Billheimer are the ones who failed to enter this year. Those still trying for the purse include Jack Wolstenholme, Reds Megaw, Brad Mandley, Paul Harrison, Jack Whalen and Joe Harrison.

Howard Campbell's All-Stars, Ollie Pacini, Reds Megaw, Earl McPhilomy, Astor Clarke and Howard, himself, will roll the Original Washington Juniors tomorrow at 2 p. m. at Convention Hall. Eddie Espey, Paul and Joe Harrison, Jack Wolstenholme, Hokie Smith and Johnny Anderson will uphold the Juniors' honor.

Diamond Cab swamped the Wonder Bread in the Commercial League at Convention Hall, compiling a total of 1,651 pins to win all three games. Woodward & Lothrop scored the only other clean sweep, winning from Occidental Hotel. Peoples Drug Stores equalled the Cabmen's set and rolled a game of 579 on their own hook to win the odd-one from Times-Herald. Carry's Ice Cream and Sterrett Operating Service won the deciding tilts from the Evening Star and Daily News. Rus Kilby's 149 game and 375 set were high for the night.

Maxine Fleming's two games of 122 each enabled the Veterans' Bureau to down Treasury in the odd game and advance from third to second place in the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia. Miss Fleming's set total was 335. Commerce won a close match from Interstate by a single game, after tying at 516, and winning the roll-off in the deciding tilt. Doris Goodall's 134 game and 351 set was a big help to Commerce. Henrietta Stanley bumped the bottles for a game of 133. War chalked up a 1,502 set in beating Commerce Comets in all three. Agriculture took a trio from Labor, the Marines were one better than Census, G. A. O. took two from Mines, and Commerce Juniors stopped Internal Revenue in the odd one. Economics finally won a game, in fact they won three games, all from G. P. O.

Sylvester's 137 game and Elbert's 353 total led the War Department League scoring at Arcadia. War College registered a game of 556, and Constructioneers toppled an even 1,600 pins for the team laurels.

Ray Barnes plastered the pins for a game of 147 and set of 378 in making his debut with Lucky Strike in a match with Columbia on the latter's alleys. The Strike won all three with ease, running a string of 528, 51 and 616 to Columbia's 510, 491 and 575. Lonnie Krauss is planning to sell several of his boys down the river because of their poor work, we understand.

Three of the four prizes distributed in the Interior loop at Columbia were garnered by Survey bowlers. The team paddled the pins for a set of 1,553 to win all three from Disbursing, and one of its members, Peterson, kicked in with a game of 145 and set of 356. The other matches were decided by the third game. Land downd Fension, G. H. I. saved itself from being shut out by Secretaries with a game of 554, and Engravers trimmed the Indians.

Princeton climbed right up on the heels of the leading Maryland quintet in the intercollegiate loop at the Rendezvous by winning three close ones from Dartmouth. The Tigers had only 21 more pins than their opponents at the conclusion of the match, winning the last game by two. Both teams suffered the loss of approximately five pounds of excess ovoirdupois, so hot was the match. Cornell socked the wobbling Terrapins for the odd game. Brown defeated V. P. I., Harvard whipped Michigan and Lehigh bested Yale, all by the odd games. Navy stopped V. M. I. cold, winning everything in sight. Muskoe Garnett, of V. P. I., war again the star with his game of 152 and set of 368. Maryland's 546 game and Cornell's 1,579 set topped the team scoring.

Hendon's 135 game and 330 set, not only helped Investment take Income into camp for a 2-1 win in the Interstate Commerce Commission League at Arcadia, but were also high for the evening. Depreciation dropped the odd one to Finance despite its total of 1,431, and Recapture lowered the Costs by one game.

Miss Bookmiller's 114 game and 300 set, led the Veterans' Bureau Ladies' loop at Arcadia. Her team followed the example and bagged the honors in its class with a game of 462 and set of 1,350.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

AN airplane propeller acts as a brake whenever the speed of the plane exceeds the pull of the propeller. For instance, in power dives, Boeing Wasp-powered-fighters attain speeds of 300 miles an hour, and more. At 300 miles an hour, the whirling blades of the propeller tend to hold the plane back because the pulling power of the propeller is less than the speed at which the plane is traveling. Instead of biting the air, the blades offer resistance against the increased air pressure.

In the Northern Hemisphere the shadows on sundials travel clockwise, or from left to right. That is why the hands on clocks move in the direction they do, for they follow the course of the sundial's shadow. If clocks had been invented south of the Equator, the hands would, no doubt, move in the opposite direction. In the Southern Hemisphere, sundials tell time counter-clockwise; that is, the shadow moves from right to left.

Incidentally, tornadoes turn in just the opposite directions to the sundial's shadow. South of the Equator they turn clockwise, and north of the Equator, they turn counter-clockwise.

White Flint Golf Club Committee Maps Plans

The steering committee of the White Flint Golf Club, composed of Stanley R. Wolfe, Dr. A. M. Stimson and W. W. Spurgeon, held its first meeting at the club last night, and mapped a course for the coming spring and summer.

The guest fees will be continued at the same rate as set last year, 50 cents on weekdays and $1 on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. The fee entitles the player to as many rounds of golf as desired. Ladies will continue to be permitted to use the course free of charge on Tuesdays. A motion to set a regular initiation fee for membership in the club was tabled, but a reinstatement fee of $10 was passed by unanimous vote.

The committee announced that it will have locker and shower bath facilities available for members by the 1st of April. A new green, which will be ready for play before May, has been built at the dog-leg No. 6 hole.

9-GAME GRID SCHEDULE FOR G. W.

Westminster to Play Here; 5 of Contests Intersectional.

WITH the signing of Westminster College of New Wilmington, Pa., yesterday afternoon, George Washington University completed its football schedule for bicentennial year, a schedule listing more intersectional games than ever before attempted by a local institution.

Since it has participated in football Westminster has finished either first, second or third in the Allegheny Conference, which loop last year was headed by Allegheny itself, coached by the former Colonial grid instructor, Maud Crum.

The addition of the Westminster game give George Washington a nine-game schedule, five games of which are of an intersectional character. The Westminster game will be played here October 1.

Last Year's Squad Returns Intact.

Imaginatively timed has been the progress of George Washington in football so that the full power of the team should bloom during bicentennial year. The 1931 Colonial squad, which earned a name for itself last year by its power and versatility, will be intact. The team will be captained by Wayne Chambers, husky end and all-District choice for that position.

Unusual interest surrounds the George Washington-Alabama game, to be played here October 8 at a yet to be determined site. The Colonials' stand against the Crimson Tide's Rose Bowl team, in the charity game last fall, augurs well the promise that the contest will be the outstanding grid attraction of the season.

Iowa to Invade On Oct. 29.

Iowa, bulwark in Big Ten circles, comes here on October 29. George Washington stunned the Corn Huskers by holding them to 7-0 last fall in Iowa City.

The nearest approach to intrasectional warfare G. W. has scheduled will be the opening and penultimate games on the schedule, against Washington and Lee and William and Mary.

The complete schedule:

September 24—Washington and Lee, at Lexington, Va.
October 1—Westminster, here.
October 8—Alabama, here.
October 15—Catawba, here.
October 22—Tulsa, at Tulsa, Okla.
October 29—Iowa, here.
November 4—North Dakota State, at Fargo, N. Dak.
November 11—William and Mary, here.
November 24—Oklahoma U., here.

COUNCIL REFUSES TRADE BOARD SITE

Alexandria Body Denies Application for Booth; Other Business Transacted.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The City Council yesterday denied the application of the Greater National Capital committee of the Washington Board of Trade, for a permit to erect an information booth on the 500 block North Washington street, directly south of the old cotton factory, where information regarding hotels and points of interest in the National Capital might be dispensed. The committee, headed by Curtis Hodges, appeared before a previous meeting of the council and stated they desired to move the booth now been investigated by the committee at Hybla Valley. Several sites have and found unsatisfactory or unobtainable.

The council was asked by Leslie C. Lane, representing the Virginia Federation of Postoffice Clerks, to waive the license fee for a dance to be given February 2, and granted the request. A request by John W. Brookfield, on behalf of the Old Dominion Boat Club, to reduce the license fee for dances, was taken under consideration.

Painting to Be Copied.

The council granted permission for a copy to be made of the old oil painting now hanging in the City Hall, depicting George Washington standing beside a horse at Valley Forge. A commission of the War Department, headed by Gen. L. H. Bash, is of the opinion that the painting originally hung in Arlington Mansions, having been painted by George Washington Parke Custis, and requested permission to return the painting, or place a copy on the walls of the mansion. The council was unable to establish ownership of the painting, but decided to permit a copy to be made for Arlington.

A permit was granted to Hellmuth Bros. for alterations to their store building at 801 King street.

A resolution appropriating $1,000 for legal expenses in defending the suit of Robert F. Downham against the City of Alexandria, to restrain the city from interfering with the erection of a gasoline filling station at King street and Russell road, was held over under the rules.

Zoning Hearing Set.

The petition of A. J. Maschauer to rezone the property at 603 North Columbus street was set for a public hearing on February 11.

Building permit was granted to the Coca Cola Co. for a bottling plant on King street on the property formerly occupied by the Virginia Hotel.

A communication was received from Gilbert J. Cox, jr., clerk to the Alexandria school board, transmitting the action of the board in regard to the budget for 1932 and stating the board reserved the right to call on the council for additional funds if the amount appropriated, which was $9,000 less than asked for, proved insufficient. The council directed that a reply be addressed to the president of the school board, thanking the board for its cooperation.

The matter of construction of sidewalks on Mount Vernon avenue from Lloyd avenue to the school annex was referred to the city manager to have a representative interview the property owners affected. The city manager stated the sidewalks in question are lower than the grade of the street and very dangerous, and he recommended that they be rebuilt, one-third of the cost to be borne by the city and two-thirds by the property owners.

Permit was refused for a proposed sign to be placed at the corner of Washington and Wolfe streets, advertising the Crocker House.

Plan to Increase Truck Tax Scored

Held Threat to Haulers of Milk and Supply in Capital.

Milk haulers from nearby Virginia farms are threatened to be forced out of business and Washington's milk supply greatly impaired if a proposed increase in truck taxes, recommended by Gov. Pollard's special Virginia truck and bus legislation commission, is adopted, according to an announcement made yesterday by Jerome Fanciulli, an official of Washington and Virginia Truck Owners Association.

Trucks hauling milk to markets for farmers are exempt from paying the "for hire" license fees under existing Virginia laws. The proposed tax boost would increase the cost of transportation, it was said, forcing truck owners to abandon their business.

Montgomery Valuation Of Gas Company Is Cut

Montgomery County, Md., Commissioners yesterday reduced the assessment valuation of the real estate and intangible property of the Washington Gas Light Co. in the county by $89,225, following an appeal filed by Robert B. Peter, jr., counsel for the gas company.

The reduction was recommended by a special committee consisting of Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, of counsel to the county commissioners; A. H. Griffith, chairman of the county board of assessors, and Lawrence Chiswell, State supervisor of assessments for Montgomery County. The Committee reported that the reduction probably would be granted if the petition was taken to court.

Children, Nearing Six, May Enroll in School

The superintendent of schools of Alexandria has announced that parents who have children that will be 6 years old on or before February 1 may enroll them next week. The schedule provides that white children, who reside in the annexed territory, may enroll at the George Mason High School January 25 to 29, inclusive, from 9 to 12 and from 1 to 3 o'clock.

White children living in Alexandria proper may enroll in the office of the superintendent of schools, Jefferson School Building, on the same dates and same hours. All colored children may enroll at the Parke-Gray School on the same dates and same hours.

Maryland Club Favors Ritchie for Presidency

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland was unanimously indorsed for President of the United States last night by members of the Democratic Club of the Nineteenth Maryland District, meeting in Stephens Hall, Riverdale, Md.

The motion was made by Judge Harry K. Clare and upheld by the entire membership of the club. State Delegate Kent Mulliken, of Prince Georges County, addressed the meeting on the coming George Washington Bicentennial celebration. Mark Moran, president of the club, presided.

4 WIN NAVY CROSS FOR ROUTING REBELS

Virginia Naval Officer and Three Marines Cited for Nicaraguan Work.

(Associated Press.)

To First Lieut. John N. Hart, of Portsmouth, Va., goes the Navy's distinguished flying cross for participation in an aerial rout of Nicaraguan insurgents in 1930.

Secretary Adams announced yesterday Hart and three more Marine Corps fliers would receive the cross. They are Capt. Byron F. Johnson, commanding the patrol, and First Lieuts. Charles L. Fike and John S. E. Young.

"At great risk over the jungle under constant enemy rifle and machine-gun fire," the Secretary said, the two-plane patrol continued an assault with bombs and machine guns until their ammunition was exhausted. Later, Johnson returned with a six-plane patrol and, said Adams, "as a result of these contacts the bandits suffered many casualties, were forced to retire and organized banditry was dealt a severe and telling blow."

In the first attack, one plane was struck by six bullets from the enemy riflemen, led by Sandino.

Hart, who attended the Virginia Military Institute before entering the Naval Academy in 1921, is stationed at the Pensacola, Fla., naval air station. His home is 12 Hatton street, Portsmouth.

Capital Firemen to Join Parade.

George S. Watson, chief engineer of the District of Columbia Fire Department, has notified Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., of Alexandria, that he expects to have fire apparatus from Washington in the parade to be held in Alexandria the afternoon of February 22 under auspices of the George Washington Birthday Association.

Allen, of Fairfax County, Va., to work in the State Assembly for a reduction in the costs of license for private passenger automobiles and trucks of 1 ton and under has been adopted by the Improvement Association of Merrifield, Va., at its recent meeting.

TRADE BODY FIGHTS REDISTRICTING PLAN

Cooperation of Organizations in Arlington Sought to Fight Plan.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Meeting yesterday, the executive committee of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in a resolution unanimously adopted opposed any solution of the redistricting problems which will affect the Eighth Congressional District in any manner other than by enlargement.

President Louis C. Carl declared the idea of destroying the district by placing it in the First District in which the City of Newport News is located, where the interests of that section are in no way in common with those of this section was a most unreasonable plan.

Adjacent to the Nation's Capital there should be a representative in Congress who is thoroughly familiar with and in sympathy with the problems which are bound to present themselves. With the District divided as is being advanced by members of the General Assembly at Richmond there is grave danger that it would prevent many measures from being enacted.

Successful Republican candidates at the last county election, Judge B. M. Hedrick of the county court, and Fred A. Gosnell, member of the county board, were guests of honor at a dinner given last night by the League of Republican Women of Arlington County at Windsor Arms, Glebe road, Arlington County. Mrs. Harris presided. She presented Mrs. Margerye Prytherch as mistress of ceremonies.

Among the speakers were Judge Hedrick, Fred Gosnell and County Manager Roy S. Braden, all of whom made brief addresses.

The program of entertainment included solos by Arthur Parson and Raymond B. Leavitt with Mrs. Hugh A. Allen and songs by Mrs. Frank Bushong. Mrs. Wilda McNemar and Mrs. Prytherch. The feature of the program was the dancing by Billie Severn and Doris Rosedale.

Concluding the program was dancing.

Miss Agnes Petterson, assistant chief of the Woman's Bureau of the Department of Labor, and Arthur Orr, president of the Arlington County Bicentennial Council, are announced as the principal speakers at the dinner of the Business and Professional Woman's Club of Arlington County to be held this evening a 6:30 o'clock at Windsor Arms, Glebe road.

SOME INTERVIEWS ON THAT MATTER OF LEADERSHIP.

* * * *

TO determine the reaction of various notables to this charge, the Inquiring Reporter has been gathering interviews. Some of the results follow:

PRESIDENT HOOVER.

Q. Mr. President, it has been charged by many speakers that the country is suffering from a lack of leadership. Do you regard this as a criticism directed at you?

A. WELL, I HARDLY THINK IT'S AIMED AT CHARLIE CURTIS.

Q. To be quite frank, it has been directly stated that you were not a leader.

A. THIS IS NONSENSE. I'VE BEEN LEADING THE COUNTRY FOR FOUR YEARS. THE TROUBLE IS THAT THE PEOPLE ARE FACING THE WRONG WAY.

MR. COOLIDGE.

Q. Mr. Coolidge, it is said that what America lacks is capable leaders?

A. SO I'VE HEARD.

Q. The suggestion has been made that you haven't done any leading in the crisis?

A. IT WASN'T MY LEAD.

Q. Do you agree with the viewpoint that the country needs more leaders?

A. NOPE! IN THE PRESENT SITUATION I'D SAY THE LEADERS NEEDED MORE FOLLOWERS.

MR. DAWES.

Q. What is your opinion on the matter of leadership?

A. I DUNNO; I'M A STRANGER HERE MYSELF.

MR BORAH.

Q. Senator, what about you doing some leading?

A. I ANNOUNCED MY POSITION ON THAT QUESTION LAST WEEK.

Q. Yes, but what is your position this week?

A. I WILL MAKE THAT CLEAR NEXT WEEK.

MR. AL SMITH.

Q. Mr. Smith, are you a leader?

A. WELL, I'D LIKE ANOTHER CHANCE TO PROVE WHETHER I AM OR NOT, IF ONLY FOR MY OWN SATISFACTION.

Q. Do you believe that the great need of America today is for leadership?

A. AMERICA DOESN'T NEED ANYTHING TODAY THAT SHE CAN'T EAT.

Q. Would you consent to give the country your leadership if the occasion arose?

A. YES, BUT I'D HAVE TO KNOW ONE THING.

Q. What's that?

A. THAT IT WOULD BE ALL RIGHT WITH TOM HEFLIN.

GOVERNOR RITCHIE.

Q. Governor, how are you fixed for leadership?

A. I'VE BEEN FIXED FOR IT FOR TWELVE YEARS, BUT SOMETHING ALWAYS HAPPENS.

MR. JOHN W. DAVIS.

Q. How would you like to be the Nation's leader?

A. NO, THANKS. ONE ATTEMPT WAS PLENTY.

THE CONSPIRATORS, GADARXTL AND KAXLA, HAD ESCAPED ON MY AIRCYCLE—THEN WILMA, IN ANGER, HAD DISAPPEARED AMONG THE JAGGED ROCKS AND BLACK SHADOWS, INTO THE COLD NIGHT. ON THE SURFACE OF DIONE, FRANTICALLY I SEARCHED FOR HER—THEN—AT LAST—I HEARD A DISTANT HAIL—I DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS KAXLA.
TAKING FULL ADVANTAGE OF MY MORE POWERFUL EARTH MUSCLES AND MY JUMPING BELT—I LEAPED FOR THE SROT.
I'M COMING WILMA!

GAD YANKED THE ROPE!

STOCK PRICES CLOSE LOWER UNDER SALES

Steel Proves Exception as Shares Touch New High Level for 1932.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A diffident stock market today failed to reach a decision on trend. Although during most of the session prices looked a little stronger, there was a sell-off toward the close, and the average had a fractional decline. Volume was around recent low levels at 1,237,768 shares.

Trading seemed to be under professional auspices. Operators in the rail group were reluctant to leave the carriers idle and bid them up 1 to 3 points, presumably on the strength of a conviction that an agreement on the wage cut was surely coming; in fact, advices received by some brokerage houses said a settlement was expected by the end of this week. Gains in the rail shares tapered off eventually and a few, including New York Central, Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific, finished with small losses.

U. S. Steel touched a new high for 1932, selling a point higher at the best but losing virtually all its gain. Certain market circles feel the corporation will make another quarterly dividend payment of $1 on the common; nevertheless, there is no unanimity of opinion as to what action will be taken and the usual assortment of guesses is going the rounds.

Position in Fourth Quarter.

The fourth quarter of 1931 was undoubtedly the poorest, but much probably depends on how the directors view current trends.

American Tobacco shares were banking on the hope of an extra dividend. Other issues in the group quieted down. General Electric and General Motors sagged. American Telephone crossed 122 before slipping back. American Can, Union Carbide, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse and Western Union closed steady to firm. Case, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, International Telephone & Radio reacted fractionally.

As had been foreshadowed by the money markets and Government bonds, the New York Reserve Bank retained the 3½ per cent rediscount rate. Thus it would seem that the central banking authorities do not plan to be very aggressive about credit expansion, perhaps because of the reaction abroad to interpretations placed on antideflationary moves already made here. It was hardly believed that losses of earmarked gold had influenced the decision against a rate cut at this time.

England's Credit Payment.

Rumor said the Bank of England was rapidly repaying its credit at the reserve. It has been expected for some time that the accommodation will have been fully retired by the first of February and that the British banking authorities will not change their own discount rate until that has been done.

Meanwhile, bankers have come to terms on the "standstill" agreement for short term German credits. The reparation situation, however, remains highly confused.

The weekly statement of the reserve system showed that no important changes had taken place despite the talk of mild inflation. Bill purchases by the New York bank, which last week cut its buying rate, declined; so did discounts. Currency circulation dropped $6,000,000—a move in the right direction, but still not as much as bankers would like to see. Reserve credit was off $27,000,000. Brokers' loans, down $32,000,000, clearly indicated the lack of nibbles at the stock market bait.

Wheat, corn and cotton made nominal changes.

BOND MARKET'S RISE LED AGAIN BY RAILS

Financial and Wage Reports Aid Upward Turn; Sales Total $12,414,000.

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Secondary rail lines again led a modest upward movement in the bond market today, and quiet strength was manifested in various sections of the list.

Sentiment was moderately improved by further steps toward early passage of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill and reports from Chicago that the railway wage conference, although experiencing unlooked-for delays, still was headed toward success.

The majority of the United States Government bonds established slight gains, and losses on Liberty 3½s and Treasury 4s were fractional.

A number of the transportation mortgages picked up from 1 to 4 points. Included among the advancing carrier loans were some of those of Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern, Central of Georgia, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Pere Marquette, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Texas & Pacific and Wabash.

There was a mixed trend in foreign obligations with the Argentines gaining ½ to around 3 points and some of the German corporate issues advancing. German government 5½s dropped half a point and the 7s were somewhat higher. British 5½s eased and Japanese loans were steady.

Utilities and industrials added a trifle to their averages. Communication and gas and electric bonds were firm, while Armour & Co. liens were up moderately under relatively heavy trading. Shell Union and Sinclair Oil securities were higher.

While the market verged on dullness, there was somewhat more activity than yesterday. Sales totaled $12,414,000, and the averages for 60 corporate bonds were four-tenths of a point higher.

The new directors are Albert Di Battista Frank J. O'Connor, Robert Wolfe and Henry A. Schweinhaut, the latter being named counsel for the bank.

Leonard H. Hoyle, an assistant cashier of the bank, was elected its cashier, filling the vacancy caused by the promotion on October 10 of Frank J. Kaufmann, jr., to the presidency, succeeding the late Joseph Schiavone.

All other officers were reelected as follows: Mr. Kaufmann, president; Hugh W. Barr, vice president; Walter E. Birch, assistant cashier. Directors reelected were Hugh W. Barr, Peter Borras, Domenico Del Vecchio, Joseph E. Heffron, Dr. S. S. Jaffe, Frank J. Kaufmann, jr., John W. Lyles, Jerry Matico, Elias Weinstein.

Reelection of all officers of Departmental Bank has been announced following the annual meeting of organization of the board of directors. They are J. T. Exnicios, president; C. E. McCoy, Clyde Reed and E. W. Libbey, vice presidents; L. A. Rosafy, secretary.

Net income for the twelve months totals $2,030,848.03, as compared with $1,895,508.54 for 1930.

The annual meeting of shareholders of Home Plate Glass Insurance Co., of the City of Washington, was held yesterday at the office of the company, 918 F street northwest, and the following trustees elected: Byron S. Adams, printer; William H. Baden, vice president and trust officer, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Charles R. Brown, secretary, Thomas J. Fisher & Co.; George M. Emmerich, secretary American Fire Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia; Albert J. Gore, realtor; Charles E. Hood, insurance broker; Albert W. Home Plate Glass Insurance Co. was incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia February 11, 1882. One of the organizers, John B. Larner, late president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., was its president for many years, until his death, November 9, 1931.

The company confines its operations to insuring plate glass within the District of Columbia. As it is an entirely local institution, it enjoys the confidence and patronage of many of the leading business firms of the Nation's Capital. The recent examination by the insurance department of the District of Columbia shows the company to be in sound financial condition, it is stated.

Credit & Finance, Inc., of Washington, D. C., has held its annual stockholders' meeting, electing as directors Chester H. Warrington, James N. Warrington, Donald C. Barnhart, Harry A. L. Barker, Frank P. Morse, Charles E. Hood and Harry Friedman.

Following this, a special meeting of the board of directors elected Chester H. Warrington, president; James N. Warrington, vice president; Donald C. Barnhart, secretary and treasurer, and Harry A. L. Barker, general counsel. This company, since its incorporation in August, 1926, has had a continuous dividend record of 8 per cent, payable quarterly, it was announced.

At the recent annual meeting of the Mutual Building Association, the following officers and directors were elected for the ensuing year: Thomas P. Brown, president; J. Walter Stephenson, treasurer; Thomas E. Petty, secretary; Joseph P. Burke, Percy C. Brady, Joseph Dant, Joseph Fitzgerald and Max Kohner, directors. The association is entering its fortieth year in successfully financing home purchasers in the District.

Reward Given Employe.

Sidney Simon, Washington office, New York Life Insurance Co., by making one of the outstanding records for the company in the Southern division in the last two months of 1931, was invited to the company's annual convention of agency managers at Miami, Fla.

Earl D. Krewson, local agency director, who attended the meeting, said that the opinion of the company's president, as well as that of one or two of the directors who were present, is that business conditions in 1932 will be better than in 1931, and the quotas for the various offices were based on that belief.

An informal opening of the new addition to the Park Savings Bank at Fourteenth and Kenyon streets northwest, will be held tomorrow between the hours of 8:30 o'clock in the morning and 9 o'clock in the evening.

Klehmet Is Elected.

American Asociated Dealers, Inc., sponsor and distributor of Trusteed American Bank Shares, announces the election of Hans Klehmet as vice president, representing the company in Baltimore, Washington and eastern Pennsylvania, including Philadelphia, Scranton and surrounding districts. Mr. Klehmet has had 14 years experience in the distribution phase of the security business, 11 of which have been spent with leading security houses of New York City. He will make his headquarters in Philadelphia.

On Tuesday 36 of the leading life insurance producers in the District of Columbia for the year 1931 enjoyed an interesting luncheon at the Hamilton Hotel. When Washington Was Younger—No. 171

THE above picture is a copy of an old wood cut of Seventh street between C and E streets made when the Family Shoe Store was the best-known shoe store in town.

Saks' may be seen on the corner of D street in the building that now houses the Lincoln National Bank.

Note the old-fashioned drays and carriages. The wagon coming this way looks like an old brewery cart loaded with barrels of beer. A horse-drawn street car may be seen in the rear.

The old-time street lamps, like the one in front of the Family Shoe Store, were poor excuses for illumination, but in those days they were considered quite fine.

The women crossing the street are dressed in the fashions of the day, and the man with the derby and facial adornments assisting his companion across the street was probably quite a Beau Brummel.

GILBERT MEASURE WOULD REGULATE COURT BAIL BONDS

Bill Would Provide Code to Stop Irregularities Exposed by Post.

RATE OF $5 PER $100 URGED AS STANDARD

Provision Insures Penalty for Violation With Fine or Prison Term.

Alleged irregularities in the business of writing bail bonds in the District would be regulated once and for all under legislation proposed yesterday by Representative Ralph Gilbert (Democrat), Kentucky.

Heavy penalties where collusion is proven between bondsmen, attorneys and police would be imposed under his bill, and a maximum 5 per cent bail rate would be set up.

The proposed measure is the culmination of an expose by The Post more than three years ago, subsequent charges by members of the local bench and bar, and testimony brought out later at a grand jury probe.

Exposed by Post.

The Post exposed "complete lack of uniformity" in regulations governing the bail bond business here, and pointed out that only in Police Court was a limit of $5 on every $100 of bail provided in the District.

Later charges that police, professional bondsmen and certain attorneys were in collusion in the District were aired before a grand jury after Judges Hitz and Schuldt hinted an overzealousness on the part of police in certain liquor cases.

The Gilbert bill, which will be pressed by the Kentucky representative when it comes up before the House district committee, makes the opening assertion that the bail bond business here is "impressed with a public interest."

The bill would make it unlawful for any bondsman "to give, donate, lend, contribute, or to promise to give, donate, loan or contribute any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever to any attorney at law, police officer, deputy, United States marshal, jailer, probation officer, clerk," for persuading any one to employ a bondsman.

A similar prohibition would be placed on any attorney making payments or offering to "split" his fee with any one procuring him a criminal case.

Sets Maximum Fee.

Besides setting up $5 per $100 as the maximum fee for executing a surety bond, the bill provides that the bondsman may not receive "any sum of money or other thing of value, other than the regular fee for bonding." Bondsmen would further be restricted from attempting to obtain the dismissal of an indictment, information or charge against any one taken in custody.

Police precincts would be supplied with a list of bondsmen authorized to practice here, and this would be posted in a conspicuous place or given any prisoner asking for information on how to make bond.

Under no conditions would a bondsman be permitted to enter a police precinct, jail or prisoner's dock for the purpose of obtaining employment as a bondsman, unless he had previously been called by a person detained there, or some party representing him. Whenever a bondsman entered a precinct, a public record would be made of his mission there.

Passes on Qualifications.

Police Court, Juvenile Court and criminal divisions of the District Supreme Court would prescribe rules and regulations regulating bail bonding and pass on the qualifications of those engaged in the business.

Under the bill, no one would be permitted to execute bonds for compensation who had "ever been convicted of any offense involving moral turpitude, or who is not known to be a person of good moral character. An affidavit would be required of each bondsman, requiring him to abide by the regulations.

One section of the measure makes it unlawful for any policeman or public official, in advance of a raid, to give out information concerning the raid to any bondsman or attorney.

Police Court judges would be directed to designate a member of the police force to accept bail or collateral in criminal cases "at all times when the Police Court is not open and its clerks accessible."

Fines of from $50 to $100 and imprisonment from 10 to 60 days are provided for violations of the act. Policemen convicted of violations would be dismissed, bondsmen disqualified and attorneys suspended or disbarred.

Yeggs' Efforts Fail To Open 3 Safes

Cracksmen Vent Spite on Cash Drawer, but Get Only $6.

Three safes balked the best efforts of burglars to open them by knocking off the combinations, police were told yesterday.

Cash drawers did not prove so hard, however, and after the cracksmen had been foiled at one place they went upstairs to another place and rifled the till of a small amount of cash.

At the M. E. Horton Co., 606 C street southwest, a second-floor window was forced and the combinations knocked from two safes. The burglars failed to open either of them, but got a small amount of cash from a drawer. Bars were sawed from the back window of William T. Gary's plumbing shop at 3111 Fourteenth street northwest, and the safe battered in an attempt to open it. Failing, the burglars sawed a panel from the door of Joseph Carnell's beauty shop upstairs and took $6 from the cash register.

RUM CAR COMES TO GRIEF; TWO MEN ESCAPE

Pursued at a mile-a-minute clip by a police car containing Privates R. A. Williams and C. P. Flynn, of the Third District special squad, the coupe pictured above came thus to grief when it tried to turn into Sixth street southwest as it sped east on K street. Twenty cases of supposed corn whisky were in the car, much of which was spread on the surrounding sidewalk. Two Negroes in car kicked their way through the damaged top and scampered away, apparently unhurt.

QUIZ CLEARS BOARD OF RILEY NEGLECT

Palmisano States That Further Hearing Will Be Dropped.

Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, chairman of the special congressional subcommittee investigating the Edith Riley case, has been "unable to discover any evidences of neglect on the part of the Public Welfare Board," he announced last night.

He will hold no further hearings unless requested to do so by Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, proponent of the resolution which led to the inquiry, he declared.

Representative Bowman declined to intimate whether he would ask further hearings. He said he would confer today with Chairman Palmisano and Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York), the other members of the subcommittee and determine his course of action.

Calls Case Unfortunate.

"I have no desire to shut off the inquiry, if Mr. Bowman thinks it will do anybody any good to go ahead," said Palmisano.

"I think it was very unfortunate about the Riley child. But after examining the Public Welfare Board's records in the Riley case, and listening to testimony at Tuesday's hearing, I don't see that a lot of neglect was shown."

Asked what he proposed to do about other complaints arising out of the Riley case, he said he thought most of these grievances were either "imaginary" or would not bear up under close examination.

Testimony Refuted.

He said a number of people have come to his office since the inquiry started, and after he questioned them they either backed down on their original statements, or their case was not in the proper jurisdiction of the committee.

"Because of the publicity given the Riley case, everyone who has a grievance or an imaginary grievance, wants to be heard," he said.

Representative Bowman recently announced he has more than a score of cases alleging neglect or laxity on the part of the Public Welfare Board that he thinks should be gone into by the House District committee.

Corporation Rights Of No Profit Asked

Bill Introduced Seeks Privilege for District Organizations.

"Nonprofit corporations" could be organized in Washington under a proposed amendment of the code of law of the District, introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania.

Any three persons desiring to associate themselves for any lawful purpose, but not for profit, could be incorporated under its terms. Such organizations would be required to file a certificate with the recorder of deeds. They would elect trustees or directors, and have all of the privileges of a corporation.

Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), Vermont, introduced in the House a bill to reorganize the Women's Bureau, giving it a staff of five officers, headed by an assistant superintendent of police. A similar bill has been introduced in the Senate.

20 Gallons of Rum and Man Seized.

Lieut. Frank A. Varney and Private T. F. Heide, both of the Second Precinct, yesterday carried a warrant to 2108 Fourteenth street northwest and arrested Jack Cisenfield, 30 years old, of 1418 W street northwest. They said they found 20 gallons of whisky. Cisenfield was released under $500 bond.

Poet Terms Folklore as Aid to Trade

Members of the Arts Club, 2017 I street northwest, last night heard Percy Mackaye, poet and dramatist, in a talk and character reading from his folk-tales and poems, and a description of his masque, "Wakefield," to be presented here on February 22, in connection with the opening of the George Washington Bicentennial celebration.

Mr. Mackaye was introduced by Frank B. Steele, who recounted a few of the author's early literary efforts and classed him as the greatest of present-day dramatic poets.

Selected by the Government to prepare "Wakefield," an American folk-masque of George Washington, Mr. Mackaye described in detail the object of his work.

He said he regarded "Wakefield" as a "Midwinter Night's Tale," depicting the birth of America, not only as a tribute to America's folk-hero, George Washington, but as a tribute to early folk life of this country.

"We are in the midst of tremendous times," he said, "the aftermath of war. The result is that two great forces are working against each other—the powers of the folk age and of the machine age. The soil has all the elements of greatness, the machine can not yet strike down into the deep things in American life and character—hence the reason for the masque being built on Wakefield, the home in which George Washington was born and spent his early years."

Mr. Mackaye called attention to the Irish Free State as an evidence of his reasoning. The satisfactory conditions in Ireland today, he pointed out, are not so much the product of politics as of the folk of Ireland.

In concluding his talk Mr. Mackaye read from his own folk tales of the Kentucky mountains, which he has been collecting and publishing for more than fifteen years.

Two Boys Given Year In Newspaper Thefts

Three youths were found guilty yesterday of thefts of newspapers and two of them were sentenced in Juvenile Court to year terms in the Blue Plains Reformatory. The other was fined $25.

According to the testimony, William Boyd, 16 years old, colored, of 2224 Virginia avenue northwest, and William Morgan, 17 years old, colored, of 505 Twenty-second street northwest, formed a "racket" for stealing the papers, and Paul Davis, colored, 13 years old, of 1917 E street northwest, "hijacked" the other two of the proceeds of their sales. Boyd and Davis were given year terms, while Morgan was fined $25.

Salvation Army Guest Dies of Gas

B. S. McKnight, 65, Found Unconscious in Room by Clerk.

Booker S. McKnight, 65 years old, was found unconscious from the effects of illuminating gas in a room at the Salvation Army Hotel, 119 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, yesterday afternoon. Charles W. Boyce, day clerk, who forced his way into the room, said a gas jet was opened and unlit.

Fire rescue squad members worked over the man for about half an hour when Dr. N. J. Wilson, Emergency Hospital interne, pronounced him dead. The coroner was notified, but had not issued a certificate last night.

Officials at the hotel said McKnight had not given any address. He had told of being unemployed and penniless and had asked for shelter the night before.

Zoo Storks Present Rats; Two Bald Eaglets Added

The stork, which usually is kept busy at the Zoo in the spring, had an extra call this winter. It left three young coypu, an unusual type of South American water rat. The adult coypu were among the specimens obtained by Dr. William Mann, director, last summer.

The coypu is mainly known for its fur, which under the name of nutria is sought for the cheaper grades of furs and for trimming on hats. The most outstanding trait of the young is ability to swim shortly after birth.

Two young bald eagles have also been added to the Zoo. They arrived yesterday from Chester, Va., and are being kept in the old bird house awaiting transfer to the new aviary, which will be the finest in the country when completed.

NEW STADIUM SITE IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Planning Commission Recommends Filling In Land at Anacostia River.

A site for the proposed erection of a stadium at the end of East Capitol street at the Anacostia River, was approved yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission in opening a three-day meeting. The commission expressed opposition to any location in the central section of the city.

Recommendation was made that Maj. Joseph D. Arthur, jr., District engineer for the War Department, complete arrangements for the filling in and grading of the Anacostia River bank.

Disapproval was also expressed to a university stadium on the Brightwood Reservoir. It was suggested, however, that the reservoir be used as some sort of a recreational center.

The employment of an outside expert to aid in the drafting of the final plans for the Union Square, the eastern terminus of the Mall near the Capitol, also was approved. Following a study of the detailed traffic problems arising at Union Square and of a plan submitted by its staff, the commission decided that a more thorough study was needed.

In addition the commission went on record as favoring a 50-foot width for Constitution avenue as recommended in the report of the coordinating committee. The committee had made the recommendation to relieve any traffic congestion that may result when the Arlington Memorial Bridge is opened.

The commission also heard a report read by Charles W. Eliot 2d, in which he advocated that the building line in the Mall area be restricted so that new structures could not obscure certain vistas.

Alien Markets Hit In Talk on Slump

W. J. Lauck Addresses Chevy Chase Citizens on Depression.

The country does not have the chance to recover from the depression through foreign markets, as it has before, as the whole world is temporarily dislocated, according to an address made last night by W. J. Lauck, consulting economist, at a mass meeting at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church of the citizens of Chevy Chase and neighboring communities to formulate plans to aid in relieving the unemployment situation in the city.

The meeting was sponsored by the Men's Bible Class of the church and the plans of the class for relieving the problem was presented by Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, the leader of the class.

The unemployment situation throughout the country and especially in Detroit, Mich., was explained by J. F. Anderson, of the United States Employment Service. A committee will be appointed to make a house to house canvass of the section and any home owner who needs work to be done in their houses and who can afford to pay for it now, will be asked to give this work to unemployed skilled laborers.

PAY CUT PLAN SCORED AT CHARITY GATHERING

Chest Activities Praised at Annual Conference of Catholic Body.

Expressing the hope that she can be of assistance in helping to solve problems of the District, Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the House District committee, assured members of the Catholic Charities at their tenth annual meeting at the Willard last night, that the other members of the committee are ready to do everything possible to help the people of Washington, especially the unfortunate.

Representative William P. Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, chairman of the House labor committee, told the welfare organization that if Representative William R. Wood (Republican), of Indiana, succeeds in putting over the wage cut legislation for Government workers "that the Community Chest or any of its subordinate charities will not have enough money to take care of the needy in Washington."

Representative Conners made the prediction that with Mrs. Norton at the head of the District committee "Washington will be the winner," he asserted. "She will fight for legislation to take care of the weak and unfortunate."

Blames Corporations.

Representative Connery declared that the large corporations are behind the movement to cut wages of Government employes. "The United States Steel Corporation, General Motors and other large corporations have broken faith with President Hoover in their promise not to cut wages," he charged. "Now that they have reduced salaries, they are trying to alibi themselves. They hope to be able to say: 'Look, the Government is reducing wages. Could we follow a better example?'

"The Government workers are underpaid," he asserted. "Many of them, remaining in Government service because they love Washington, could get five times as much with private organizations."

Representative Connery averred that the Catholic Church and the American Federation of Labor are the strongest bulwarks against communism and bolshevism."

Mrs. Norton said that the District committee will welcome ideas as to what the Capital needs. She intimated that without such guidance, the committee will be groping in the dark. She indicated that she is ready to place help for the needy before everything else.

She described welfare work as the finest a man or woman can undertake. She also discussed her bill providing for old-age pensions in the District, and expressed hope that this legislation will be passed. Representative Connery is fathering similar legislation for the States.

Chest Is Praised.

Mgr. Patrick C. Gavan, Maj. James Asher, in charge of the Salvation Army, and Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of Associated Charities, told of how the Community Chest has enabled welfare workers to reach more of the unforunate than could be possible otherwise. Mgr. Gavan described the Chest as "the greatest blessing that has come to Washington."

Mr. Ufford declared that Washington is facing a tremendous task and a new experience in "easing the burden of the thousands of willing workers for whom there is no work. All sympathy, leadership and support is necessary and elimination of racial prejudice to tackle the problem," he said.

Dr. L. J. Shehan, assistant director of Catholic Charities, presented an annual report showing that the charities had $85,738.53 at the beginning of last year from the Community Chest and other sources, that $85,755.79 was distributed and that the organization had left $2.74 at the beginning of this year.

Report on Relief Work.

A total of 1,298 families are under care, 456 having been carried over from last year; 889 married couples are receiving aid who in normal times would be self-supporting, and 851 children are under care, representing 416 families, Dr. Shehan reported.

He attributed one-third of the total number of cases to unemployment.

The following officers were re-elected: Admiral William S. Benson, president; Dr. H. J. Crosson, vice president; Allen Pope, secretary, and Adam Weschler, treasurer. Dr. Crosson presided in the absence of Admiral Benson, who is ill. Dr. John O'Grady, director of Catholic Charities, was also absent because of illness. Resolutions in respect to the memory of the late B. F. Saul and Charles W. Darr, introduced by Dr. Shehan, were adopted.

6-Year-Old Child Lost From Home Seeking Paper

"Georgene Condolin" went out to buy a newspaper and as a result spent the night away from home. Here she is with Pvt. C. Natheny, who found her.

Police Will Renew Search Today to Find Where Parents Live.

She only wanted a newspaper, but her attempts to buy one for her mama kept this 6-year-old youngster away from mother's side for quite a few hours. Early this morning she still had not been reunited with her parents.

Private C. Natheny, of the Second Precinct, walking his beat at Fifth and M streets northwest, saw quite a crowd collected and heard a child crying. He pushed his way through the crowd and there met "Georgene."

The child tearfully explained that she had been sent out by her mother to buy a newspaper and that she couldn't find her way back home. It was getting dark and she was afraid.

Private Natheny took her to the Second Precinct Station, where the child rapidly made friends with everybody. She said her name was "Georgene Condolin" and that she was 6 years old. She looks much younger, however. Her mother's name is Beatrice, she said, and father's is Stanley, and he is out of work. But the only information about her home was that it was above a grocery store. Police combed the section near where she was found, but none could claim the child.

Since her parents had not been found early this morning the child was sent to the Receiving Home and police will start out again to find them.

HOOVER HELD AS ONE OF 2 DRY PRESIDENTS

Wet Chief Says Hayes Only Other Who Would Meet Antisaloon Ideals.

Rutherford B. Hayes and Herbert Hoover are the only two men in the long procession of Presidents from George Washington who would meet Antisaloon League requirements, Capt. W. H. Stayton, founder of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said last night in a symposium on the "Economic Phase of Prohibition" at the Eighth Street Temple of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Capt. Stayton's adversary was Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Public Morals. Dr. Wilson indicted 160 years of American history in his arguments against the former license system of liquor control. He spoke of members of Congress, before the prohibition act, as "guttersnipes and drunkards."

The Methodist leader, who was first called to the platform by Dr. Abram Simon, placed himself on the defensive when he stated that the eighteenth amendment was not designed to prohibit the use of intoxicants. He disdained the use of statistics in his arguments, telling an anecdote which placed statisticians one degree above "damn liars."

Stayton Cites Figures.

This opening was not lost on Capt. Stayton, who launched an offensive of figures compiled by the Antisaloon League and the Wickersham Commission to prove failure of the law to accomplish its purpose.

Dr. Wilson's only venture into the economic side of the question was his statement that prohibition and prohibition alone was responsible for the fact that there was no depression in the Nation immediately following the World War, as had been evidenced in every previous war in which this country had engaged.

Capt. Stayton reminded the doctor of the times of 1922, and also of the fact that the United States had profited greatly by the war financially.

Outlines Benefits.

Six benefits of the law, "to justify the sacrifice, blood, time and money" as outlined by Dr. Wilson, were the outlawing of the liquor traffic, the elimination of the license system, the removal of temptation, the making of "news" of liquor law violations, the prosperity of the Nation, and the clean-up of American politics.

Referring to the death of the liquor traffic, he said that a chicken with its head chopped off continues its death struggle lustily and for considerable time, to which Capt. Stayton replied, "but not for ten years."

Prohibition has been far from the hopes of its protagonists, the captain said. He believes that the "for rent sign is not yet on hell" as prophesied by Billy Sunday.

MINA VAN WINKLE'S RETIREMENT IS SEEN

Police and Firemen's Board to Ask Action Today Due to Illness.

The Police and Firemen's Retiring and Relief Board today will recommend the retirement of Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle as commanding officer of the Woman's Bureau of the Police Department. The District Commissioners are expected to order the retirement.

Dr. John A. Reed, of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons yesterday reported at a hearing of the board that Mrs. Van Winkle is totally physically disabled and that the board recommended her retirement. Dr. Reed expressed the opinion that she would never be able to resume her duties and recalled that she has been ill for the past two years and away from her office altogether since last August.

Now she is able to walk at her home only about two hours a day, he said. T. Gillespie Walsh, assistant corporation counsel, presided as chairman of the retirement board.

Stolen 2 Years Ago, Loot Is Recovered

Washington Police Arrest Man in Connection With Alexandria Theft.

Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims and Detective James Bayliss have recovered a part of the loot stolen nearly two years ago from the home of Chester G. Pierce, who then lived at 219 South St. Asaph street, Alexandria.

The amount of the robbery reported was $663, and the articles recovered are a cone-shaped pin containing 72 pearls, valued at $250, and a fox fur, valued at $50. A pin, valued at $125, and described as platinum, diamond and sapphire bar pin—is said to have been traced to a pawn shop in Charlotte, N. C. A man, giving the name of John B. Lowry, was arrested by Washington police in connection with the case.

Man Snatches Woman's Purse.

The pocketbook of Mrs. Elizabeth Sykes, 1221 M street northwest, was snatched from her yesterday by a colored man near a theater of Rhode Island avenue, near First street northwest. Mrs. Sykes said the man escaped up an alley. She lost a small amount of bills and change.

Rabbit Hunter Brings Home Canvas Bag Full of Silver

Rabbits and squirrels were scarce when Walter L. Hayhoe, 25 years old, of 2606 Monroe street northeast, went hunting the other day, but he and his dog did very well. They returned home with a canvas bag full of silver.

The man said he was tramping through the woods with the dog near Bunker Hill road, between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets northeast, when he espied a shiny object half hidden among leaves. He picked it up. It was a silver plate. He then saw a canvas bag nearby and discovered the rest of a handsome silver service. He kept the articles for several days, but, unable to find the owner, last night he turned them over to Fifth Precinct police.

Through the influence of A. Julian Brylawski, sound picture machines will accompany the party and shots for the various newsreels of the city will be made, including interviews with the prominent persons.

The trip, which was arranged by George H. Adams, will be made under the personal direction of Gen. Michael J. Denihan, chairman of the "Come and See" committee of the Community Chest, and is designed to present at first hand the evidence of the kind of work being done by Community Chest organizations. Most of the party will make the trip in a chartered bus, with a few private cars for those who cannot complete the entire itinerary arranged for this afternoon.

According to arrangements as completed last night, the party will assemble in room 508 of the District Building at 2:15 o'clock, leaving there at 2:30 for the Messer Building, 1000 Pennsylvania avenue, where a brief study of the methods of receiving applications for work will be made.

The party will leave at 4:40 so as to return to the District Building by 5 o'clock.

In order to expedite the handling of the trip, a motorcycle escort will be provided for the party.

Approves Lay Speakers.

The resolution adopted by the federation approved the use of lay speakers in affiliated churches on "Community Chest Sunday," or for sermons on that particular topic by the pastor. Churches were urged in the resolution also to invite speakers to address Bible classes, Sunday schools, evening services and other group meetings of the day.

Calling attention to the Second Commandment—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"—the resolution of the federation said "the practical means of expressing that commandment" for most citizens of Washington is through giving to the charitable and philanthropic organizations of the city.

"The 65 accredited agencies of this nature have united in the Community Chest," the resolution said, * * * "for the benefit, not merely of the members of the Protestant churches, but of all persons in need, al all races and all creeds * * *" General social conditions are enhanced greatly by the Community Chest work, the resolution continued.

Urged to Attend Meeting.

Pastors of all churches in the federation were earnestly urged to be present with as many of their members as possible at the opening meeting of the Community Chest campaign at 2:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall.

The Community Chest flags will be displayed on each block in the downtown section, with two of the banners in some blocks. Regulation American flags will be displayed on the American Legion poles in front of each store.

Arrangements for the flag display were made by Ernest S. Johnston, chairman of the Chest publicity committee, who went before the Commissioners to ask the permission. Distribution of the flags to the merchants will be through the American Automobile Association, which has donated its services.

Mr. Johnston has also arranged for the distribution of 12,000 posters, for billboard displays and for the placing of 10,000 stickers on automobiles which will also be handled by the American Automobile Association. About 750 advertising tire covers are to be distributed through Whitney Leary, of H. B. Leary & Bro.
